Party would like still more security

WHIP maintains vigil over ballots until canvass

by LYNN ASINOF

Members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) are expected to continue guarding the ballots and election results from last Tuesday's election until the official vote canvass tonight.

WHIP members began their vigil last Thursday afternoon, more than a day and a half after the ballots were counted and sealed in a locked cabinet in the village hall.

Otto "Skip" Hedlund, WHIP candidate for village president, said the vigil was a way of safeguarding the ballots until the vote returns were made official at the canvass.

All election results are unofficial until the vote tallies are compared against the returns called into the village hall by election judges Tuesday night. Since several positions were decided by as little as three votes, any error in reporting the results could turn the apparent winners into losers.

HAROLD FAGAN, a WHIP candidate for trustee in the election, said he was not satisfied with the present security for the vote returns. "I would like the ballots kept more secure than they are now," he said. "If they would put them in a safe which (Village Clerk) Evelyn Diens was totally responsible for, I would buy it."

When asked why the party waited more than 36 hours to begin their watch, Fagan said, "It's better late than never."

Hedlund said the decision to guard the ballots was made only after several WHIP members tried to get other agencies to provide better security. Hedlund said he contacted the Cook County Election Board, the state's attorney and the county sheriff's police.

"They all expressed a great deal of desire not to do anything," he said. He added that the WHIP members were still hoping to find some agency that would assume responsibility for the ballots, relieving the party members of their vigil.

WHEELING's deputy clerk, Roberta Krause, said the ballots have been handled the same way they have been in all other elections. She said all election materials are in locked cabinets in a locked village hall storeroom. All of the cabinets have been sealed with official village seals.

"They've always been sealed in there and locked," Mrs. Krause said. She explained that while there was a safe in the office, it was not large enough to hold all the election materials.

While several village staff members have keys to the storeroom, Mrs. Krause said she and Mrs. Diens have the only keys to the cabinets.

WHIP members originally asked to be allowed to guard the ballots inside the storeroom. "They wanted to sit in the room with the ballots," said Village Mgr. George Passolt.

PASSOLT SAID he did not think this request was practical. He did, however, allow the WHIP members to sit outside the village office where they could watch the door to the storeroom.

The manager also refused the WHIP request to allow members to stay in the village hall after closing hours. He did, however, leave the blinds open and the lights on in the office, so WHIP members could watch the door to the storeroom from outside the village hall.

The ballot watchers, who are on rotating shifts, said they would continue their watch from outside the hall after the village closed for business at 2 p.m. Friday.

Many village officials said they thought the WHIP vigil was uncalled for and unnecessary. They said if such a guard was to be posted, it should be have been done immediately after the election.

Attorney John M. Burke, representing the WHIP party, said the decision to post the guard was made only after his clients learned that Village Clerk Evelyn Diens would not be in the office until Monday. "So there was some concern about who was watching the ballots," he said.

Burke, however, said he was satisfied with the present arrangements.

WHEELING VILLAGE PRES. Ted C. Scanlon, who was reelected by only 11 votes in last Tuesday's election, views the locked and sealed cabinet that holds the official tally sheets and ballots. The bags in the foreground hold the unused ballots. The cabinet will not be opened until the village board tonight conducts the official canvass of the votes. The board will then announce the official winners in the closely contested village election.

Strong St. response Friday

W. Strong Street residents will respond Friday to new evidence that has weakened their case in a zoning suit filed against the Village of Wheeling.

Judge Robert J. Downing ruled last week to allow attorney John M. Burke, representing the homeowners, to present new testimony and argument in the case.

The suit challenges last year's rezoning of 47 scattered lots in the Strong Street area for six-flat apartment buildings. Residents claim this action was spot-zoning because it ignored the single-family homes already in the area.

In the middle of the case, the village took action to rezone the entire W. Strong Street area to allow apartment buildings. Residents charge that this action was a deliberate attempt to undermine the spot-zoning charge.

In granting Burke the right to present new evidence, Judge Downing requested that testimony be kept brief. "It is Judge Downing's feeling that we have already presented enough evidence to cover all implications brought out by the new zoning," Burke said.

BURKE SAID Judge Downing will be prompted to the appellate court effective May 1. He said in order for Downing to rule on the case, all court proceedings would have to be completed by April 30.

"I might have some additional testimony on Friday," Burke said. "But I'm still mulling over the necessity of it, because, in all fairness, I think we should have a judgment from Judge Downing."

Burke said Downing did indicate he (Downing) would be able to rule on the case. Burke expects a judgment in the case either Friday or next Monday.

Two-project annex vote set tonight

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove Village Board tonight will vote on two annexations that could bring almost 5,000 persons and 240 acres into the village. It is expected to approve the annexations.

The first project, the 124-acre Hawthorn development, has been proposed for an area directly north of the Lake-Cook county line, east of Weiland Road. It will house about 4,000 persons.

The second project, the 40-acre Swanson development would be constructed at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads. It will house about 900 persons.

Next to the Hawthorn development, a 60-acre tract adjoining the Soo Line R.R. tracks is also expected to be annexed for future industrial development. A 16-acre corridor, for which there are no construction plans at present, will also be annexed to connect the rest of the land with the village limits. Joining the land with part of the village is required by law.

A PUBLIC hearing on the project, which will take about five years to complete was held last week before the village board. The board voted to direct Village Atty. Richard Rayas to prepare the final annexation agreement.

The developers of the Hawthorn property, Tekton Corp. and the Richards Group told the village board they wanted "total flexibility" in varying the types of units to be constructed. The developers, however, compromised after the board said it would not accept the project without some control over the kinds of units built.

The developers said they need some flexibility in case one or more of the types of units fail to sell as planned.

The development, as planned, will contain 1,234 individually owned units, consisting of 288 apartments, 522 townhouses and 424 multi-plex units.

The village board has agreed to allow the developers to vary the units to include no fewer than 30 apartments, 280 townhouses and 250 multi-plex units. This will allow them to vary the units by as much as 70 per cent from original plans.

THE PLAN commission, which approved the project several weeks ago, recommended the board allow more than a 10 per cent variance.

The plan commission also suggested the board allow the developers only a 10 per cent variation from original plans in the number of one, two and three-bedroom units. The board made no stipulation as to the bedroom mix.

If the annexation is approved, neighboring Wheeling's expansion northwest of the county line would be virtually blocked. Wheeling officials said several weeks ago they might protect the development, however, they did not send a representative to the public hearing.

The Swanson development, if approved, will contain 319 individually owned townhouses and apartments. The project should be completed in about three years.

Park board to let bids on first project plans

The Wheeling Park Board is ready to let bids for the first of the projects approved in last December's referendum.

Improvements at Heritage Park rank No. 1 on the board's list of priorities for the $700,000 in referendum monies.

Park Supt. Dave Phillips will send out bid specifications for the construction of a maintenance garage, a locker room and showers and remodeling of the board room at the park.

The board also has authorized Phillips to seek alternative bids for a storage room, a warming shelter, inside handball court and enclosing the front area of the Heritage Park building.

The firm of McFadzean and Everly Ltd., park and recreation planners, will oversee the Heritage Park improvements. The firm also prepared the district's referendum work and is presently compiling its master plan. Bids also will be sought for work at Neptune's Pool, including the installation of ceramic tile in the hall, on the deck of the pool and in the shower rooms. The cost of these improvements will be shared equally with Wheeling High School.

PHILLIPS INDICATED the work at Neptune's Pool will probably be done between mid-August and mid-September. He said this was a time of low attendance at the pool.

The park board postponed discussion on other proposed referendum projects at their meeting last Thursday night, until more information about state and federal matching funds is available.

There is currently an 18-month freeze on funds from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). The freeze went into effect Jan. 5 when local HUD offices were instructed not to accept applications for certain types of funds for the duration of the freeze.

The park board may decide to add some non-referendum priority items to the proposed budget for next year. The commissioners are currently studying the spending outline drawn up by Phillips.

12 cases of cigarettes reported stolen

Twelve cases of cigarettes valued at $1,390.20 were reported stolen Thursday from the Jewel Food Store, 240 Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Police said the theft was discovered early Thursday morning. The cigarette cases have been inventoried Wednesday. The manager of the store reported a suspicious person had been wandering in the storeroom Wednesday night, police said.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnapping and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the blue banners of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in observance of the 57th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising that eventually resulted in independent for the Irish Republic.

Two North Vietnamese army divisions have withdrawn from their positions in South Vietnam and returned home across the Demilitarized Zone separating the two countries.

Thousands of pilgrims, protected by armed Israeli troops and police, knelt reverently in Christianity's holiest places for the traditional Easter celebration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Jurors may visit scene of killing

Silas Jayne to testify in murder case

by BARRY SIGALE

Silas Jayne will testify in his own behalf this week along with the two other defendants in the George Jayne murder trial.

In a bold move by defense attorneys, the three men will testify they didn't have any connection with the murder, in which George Jayne was gunned down while playing cards with his family in the basement of his Inverness home Oct. 28, 1970.

Silas Jayne, Joseph LaPlaca and Julius Barnes each are charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder. Jayne is alleged to have hired LaPlaca to kill his brother and LaPlaca, in turn is supported to have hired others to do the job. Barnes was the alleged triggerman.

In addition to the testimony of the defendants, jurors are expected to visit Silas' Elgin farm and may be taken to see the site where the killing took place. Judge Richard Fitzgerald still must rule on this defense request.

AS OF TODAY, the three defendants will have spent 23 months in Cook County Jail, despite legal attempts to be released on bail. They were arrested May 22, 1971, and entered jail one day later.

Two others are involved in the case. Edwin Nefek, a former Markham policeman, is serving a 10-year sentence at the Vienna Correctional Center in Johnson County. He pleaded guilty to conspiracy to commit murder.

The other is Melvin Adams, who has admitted his part in the conspiracy, but who has turned state's witness in return for immunity from prosecution.

The defense case, which was begun last Friday, is an attempt to discredit the testimony of Adams, who provided the key facts to investigators which lead to the arrest and charges against the defendants.

Adams testified earlier in the trial that he was hired by Silas Jayne, through LaPlaca, to murder George. He then hired Barnes to do the killing, he has said. The prosecution last week produced a confession signed by Barnes which fit some of the pieces into the murder plot puzzle.

Criminal Courts Judge Richard J. Fitzgerald

SATURDAY, DEFENSE attorneys sought to repudiate several statements made by Adams in trying to prove he is a liar out to save his own neck. But two defense witnesses appeared to damage more than help the defense.

Richard Cheska and Robert Brown, both friends of Silas Jayne and acquaintances of LaPlaca, made conflicting statements concerning a defense attempt to provide an alibi for LaPlaca two days after the murder.

Cheska said he was with LaPlaca from noon to 4 p.m. Oct. 30, 1970. He said he ate lunch with LaPlaca and was with him at Silas' brother's (Frank) farm at the same time Adams said he met LaPlaca in Aurora for a payoff.

Brown said he was with LaPlaca and Cheska at the farm from 1 to 2:30 p.m., substantiating part of Cheska's story. Through cross examination by assistant state's attorney Nicholas Motherway, it was revealed by Brown that LaPlaca was gone from his presence for up to a half hour of that time.

The contradiction, according to Motherway, supported Adams' story that he met with LaPlaca in Aurora that afternoon to receive $15,000, the remainder of the $30,000 payoff. It takes about a half hour to travel from Silas' farm to Aurora and back, according to the prosecution.

IN OTHER testimony Saturday, witnesses contradicted Adams' testimony that his wife, then Pat Farmer, obtained the murder rifle from a friend before the murder, and that Adams and LaPlaca took target practice at Silas' farm prior to the killing.

Markham policeman James Acres said he was with Patrolman Michael Vest the night he agreed to loan Mrs. Adams the gun and that he recalled the date was in November, one month after the murder.

Clarence Baumgartner, an Elgin farmer who harvested corn on property he rented from Silas, said the corn was 10 feet high during October, 1970 and that Adams and LaPlaca could not have been target shooting at a tree because the corn was too high. He said the stalks were cut down in October or November, after the corn was picked.

Hopes that the three-week-old trial would be over by Easter Sunday evaporated late last week when it was apparent the defense would need several days to complete its case. However, the jury was allowed to visit their families but will return to the courtroom this morning at 11 when the trial resumes.

TWO WHEELING INDEPENDENT Party (WHIP) members, Dorothy Miller, left, and Marilyn Lewis, right, take their turn watching the door to the storeroom where the election ballots are being kept until tonight's official canvass of the vote. The WHIP members began their vigil last Thursday afternoon, more than 36 hours after the votes were counted and sealed. Since the election returns indicated that several positions were decided by only a handful of votes, any error in reporting the returns could turn the apparent winners into losers.

Wednesday rape suspect not connected with area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1½ years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

But Ekblad said Madsen is not the same person who has been assaulting women in the area.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Lt. Paul Vanick of the Cook County

Sheriff's Police said the physical descriptions make him believe that there is no link between Madsen and the series of rapes in this area.

Police reports describe the area rapist as white, 25 to 30 years old, between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing from 160 to 175 pounds. The man has worn either a ski mask or nylon stocking to conceal his face.

Madsen, 30, is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds with blondish hair. Madsen reportedly would pose as a salesman of religious articles and approach women working alone in churches, police said. In each case the rapes took place in the church, police said.

Madsen, who was arrested Wednesday near the Evangelical Free Church, 1331 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Cook County jail.

Rep. Macdonald protests Nike housing plans

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, has joined a growing list of public officials protesting plans to build 140 Naval housing units at the Arlington Heights Nike Base.

"It is inconceivable that this project should be approved after Sen. Percy and other Washington officials have indicated support of local interest in reserving the Nike Base as a flood control basin and recreational area," Mrs. Macdonald said.

"If the housing is intended to serve Glenview Naval Air Station, then the units would be more appropriately and conveniently placed in that area where government land is also available."

Earlier this month Congress appropriated funds for 140 Naval housing units at the Nike base, located at Wilke and Central roads in Arlington Heights. Construction of the units is scheduled to begin this fall.

Mrs. Macdonald wired her opposition to Senators Percy, Adlai Stevenson and Congressmen Philip Crane and Samuel Young.

Cost-of-living hike for employees tentatively OK'd

Village board, wage panel agree on many key points

by LYNN ASINOF

The first negotiating session between the Wheeling Village Board and the employee wage and salary committee resulted in a tentative agreement on several points.

The village trustees expressed little opposition to requests for a minimum 5.5 per cent cost-of-living increase and an increased vacation schedule.

All requests, however, have been tabled for further discussion at the next negotiating meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the fire station.

The wage and salary committee, made up of representatives of the village departments have proposed an over-all program for village employee benefits for the coming year.

IN ADDITION the cost-of-living adjustment, the committee also is seeking a 5 per cent salary increase for employees who have been at the top of their salary range for two or more years.

Committee chairman August Lockfeer said this increase was needed for employees who could not earn more money unless they were promoted to another job classification.

Most other members of the committee agreed with Lockfeer. The fire department, however, said they did not favor this raise because "the men who are not in that category do not get one." The fire department is seeking a 7 per cent across-the-board salary increase.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he did not favor this increase because the present village longevity program provided enough salary incentive for people at the top of their range. The longevity program provides additional money to employees based on the number of years of employment.

IN THE cost-of-living discussion, Trustee Michael Valenza agreed with the employees that 5.5 per cent appeared to be a reasonable figure. He suggested, however, that the employees consider establishing a base increase that could be adjusted upward each quarter.

Employees also asked that sick leave compensation for six months absence become effective after three years employment, instead of the present five years. A minority group of employees did not go along with this request, saying it would jeopardize some of their present privileges.

Passolt suggested that the sick leave schedule be adjusted so that persons with less time at the village would be paid a proportionally smaller amount of their salaries in case of disability.

The employee committee further requested that longevity pay be paid on the employee anniversary date instead of at a fixed date each year. The employees noted that the present system is inequitable because some people work almost an extra year before receiving their longevity pay.

PASSOLT SAID this system would require changing the bookkeeping system at the village, and therefore said the request should be denied. The trustees, however, indicated some flexibility on the point and said they would investigate the request.

The proposed increase in vacation time called for three weeks vacation after six years and four weeks vacation after 12 years. Passolt said he thought this request was reasonable provided that management could exert stricter control over when these vacations were taken.

Police, firemen seek pay hikes

Both the police and fire department in Wheeling are seeking substantial salary increases in their current employee negotiations with the village board.

The police department did not specify an amount for this raise at Thursday night's meeting, but asked the village board to make an offer which will then be negotiated.

The fire department, on the other hand, is asking for a seven per cent across the board increase. Both are asking for cost of living increases as well.

In addition, the fire department is seeking a 10 per cent increase for those men who have Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) licenses to operate an ambulance service. The firemen claim that this training allows them to provide the village with additional services for which they should be paid.

The trustees, however, indicated that firemen in the village have always handled emergency situations, and therefore should not be paid more for their services. Trustee Bill Hein said that the village had paid for the original EMT training.

THE FIRE department also is asking for a three-hour reduction in their work week. Presently the firemen work 24 hours and take the next 48 hours off. This averages out to 56 hours each week.

In addition, the firemen are seeking time-and-a-half pay for all non-emergency call-back and extra duty.

Village Mgr. George Passolt said he did not think the fire department knew what it was asking for in these requests. His tabulations showed that by granting all requests the firemen would be receiving a 38.4 per cent increase.

The committee also requested an additional holiday on President's Day in February. Passolt said he favored a personal day off instead of the set holiday. The employees said they requested the specific holiday because of the board's opposition to personal days last year.

The employees also urged the board to give immediate attention to the Career Employee Ordinance, which provides employees with protection from arbitrary suspension or firing. It also would establish a grievance procedure. A rough draft of the ordinance was submitted to the board in March.

The trustees said they would notify the village attorney to draw up a rough draft of the ordinance immediately. They said they would go over the draft with the committee and make any corrections needed before its passage.

THE COMMITTEE further requested that employees who work for absent persons in their department be compensated with additional pay for their increased responsibility. The trustees expressed little opposition to this proposal.

An annual awards dinner was also suggested by the committee. The dinner would honor those employees with 10 or more years with the village. Other employees would be invited and would pay their cost of the party.

The committee asked that the village complete the employee's handbook and

The firemen argued that Passolt's figures were inflated. They said the salary increases would only amount to 12.5 per cent by eliminating those increases which should not be considered in the estimate.

Passolt also expressed opposition to the police department's request for a five per cent differential between the day, evening and midnight shift pay. The police said since some men currently work regular day hours, men with night shifts should be compensated.

THE POLICE also asked for a revised grievance procedure that would make use of two types of grievance board. The first board would consist of department heads and village officials. If this board did not resolve the grievance, a second board would be formed of community representatives.

An expanded police uniform wardrobe was requested to solve the current problems with the uniforms. Police said their jackets now are not warm enough for the cold weather and were too warm for the warm weather. The trustees indicated there would be no problem with this request.

The police further requested that their vacation schedule be revised to allow three weeks vacation after five years employment and four weeks vacation after 10 years employment.

Both the police and fire departments requested that civilian employees be provided with a uniform allowance. While several trustees said they felt the civilian employees should be uniformed, Passolt said this would mean all employees would have to get a clothing allowance.

the evaluation of jobs and ranges approved at last year's negotiations. The manager said the handbook was nearly completed and would be submitted to the committee before printing.

Passolt said he would sit down with both department heads and employees to work out the evaluation of jobs and their pay ranges.

ONE SPECIFIC request from the clerk's office was to place the deputy clerk's position in a category that would be covered by the Career Employee Ordinance. At present, this position is an appointment of the village clerk and is therefore subject to firing with a change in the office of village clerk.

Passolt said he would change the deputy clerk's salary in the budget to 90 per cent of her job would be assistant collector and 10 per cent would be deputy clerk. He said he could not cover the deputy clerk part of the job under the proposed Career Employee Ordinance.

The employees, however, indicated they would hold out for a 100 per cent job classification change since no job should be subject to political influence.

In a minority report, some employees, suggested they be allowed to sell back accumulated sick leave after five years with the village. Passolt indicated he did not favor this proposal and would prefer to allow one personal day for each year of perfect attendance.

Nuclear power debated at Harper

Year of decision for the atom and the lake

by LEA TONKIN

This is the year of decision for the atom and the lake.

Both sides in a Harper College debate last week on nuclear power and nuclear safety would have agreed with that.

If the 100 interested listeners didn't get the final answer, they at least got a feeling for the problems involved in our growing dependence on nuclear energy as a source of electrical power.

The debate, held Thursday night, was sponsored by the Lake Michigan Federation and a number of civic and government agencies that believe an informed citizenry can make a difference in the issue of nuclear safety.

In the background were the licensing hearings being held this week on Commonwealth Edison Co.'s mammoth Zion nuclear generating station on the shores of Lake Michigan.

THE UTILITY WANTS permission from the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) to start operations this summer. The Chicago area, which now depends on nuclear energy for 32 per cent of its electricity, could be caught with power shortages if the plant remains idle. Com Ed has argued.

When the debate had aired all the hopeful claims, disturbing disclosures and a series of charges and counter-charges, the question-nuclear power: safe or unsafe? — could be replaced with another question:

Does it really make a difference how you and I react to the operation of a massive nuclear generating station in our midst?

Nuclear power plants are designed and built using the highest standards in the world, argued Peter Van Nort of the Project Management Corp. of which Commonwealth Edison is a member. Backup systems, he said, are installed in every plant to overcome any anticipated disaster, making nuclear generators the "safest machine."

Of the AEC's Atomic Safety and Licensing Board relationship to utilities, he concedes "it looks like we're in bed to-nuclear power plants, counters professor Elmer Lewis, professor of nuclear engineering at Northwest University. The demand for power will increase even if energy conservation is practiced, he said, and that demand will have to be met.

Natural gas, oil and other energy supplies are running short, Lewis says. This is where the nuclear breeder reactor especially can step in to meet the need.

The risks involved must be stated in terms of probabilities, the professor said. Deaths, injuries, radiation leakage which could cause cancer may be given the probability of occurring once every 50,000 years of once in a million years. If this is the case, why wait to move ahead with nuclear power plants which are operated on the basis of some past experience and computerized projections, he asked.

The question of accountability for safety problems inherent in the nuclear field was raised by Richard S. Lewis, editor of the Bulletin for Atomic Scientists and the book, Nuclear Power Rebellion. He sees the nuclear power establishment as one comprised of the AEC, the utilities and the suppliers of their equipment.

THIS CLOSELY knit circle of associates, he says, are an example of the agency set up to regulate an industry itself being regulated by that industry. This along with the closed circle of the Joint Committee on Atomic Power, accounts for the priority given appropriations for nuclear power, he said. It also accounts for the quashing of reports by gether." This close relationship is necessary to allow full access to information and the surest route to successful operation of nuclear plants, he said.

THE INTEGRITY of Commonwealth Edison's planning standards was questioned by Jacob DuMelle of the Illinois Pollution Control Board. In early licensing hearings for two nuclear power plants in this state, he said, no radioactive cleanup equipment was included in the designs submitted for approval.

A decision last May by the Supreme Court removed the regulation of the nuclear power industry from the state agencies and maintained the AEC's absolute control in this field, he said. But DuMelle still questions the "incidents" which occurred at the Dresden II and III stations in Illinois, when a series of monitoring mishaps caused the plant to go "haywire," finally shutting down after signal cables were damaged.

DuMelle ticked off a list of worrisome aspects in nuclear energy production: core cooling system leakage; buildup of low level radioactive emissions; problems of transporting dangerous nuclear materials; fuel mining hazards; and the problem of waste disposal.

When an industry is beset by questionable safety planning, he said, why go full-speed ahead in its development, and why maintain secrecy on the "incidents"?

CONSIDER ALTERNATIVES to the ## Emergency Preparedness chief sees no gas rationing

NEW YORK (UPI) — The director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness (OEP), report spot shortages of gasoline may hit the northeast this summer, but the OEP does not foresee gas rationing.

Darrell M. Trent told newsmen before speaking to the American Statistical Association ASA Forecasting Conference, that independent gas producers may have a difficult time getting fuel because "the spot market for gasoline does not exist anymore."

He also said major oil refiners may have difficulty obtaining crude oil because of a very "tight world supply situation." But, he said, his agency was optimistic the oil industry would meet the rising demand for gasoline.

Trent said the OEP has a gasoline rationing program "we hope not to use."

Trent declined comment on reports gasoline prices would rise 5 to 6 cents a gallon this summer.

Last week President Nixon lifted oil import quotas and tariffs on oil in a move aimed at minimizing fuel and power shortages.

Trent, in his speech to the ASA, said while increased oil imports would help ease the situation, refiners would find their facilities hard pressed to refine the crude oil.

AEC's own safety experts of "incidents" and their questions on the lack of testing experience for safety systems.

"They have failed to devise an emergency core cooling system that works," the author said. The China Syndrome described by scientists as the result of a serious accident at a nuclear plant could send out a lethal, low lying cloud of radioactive emissions affecting all residents in surrounding areas as much as 100 miles away.

Explaining away some of these issues took up a great deal of time at the debate. And the conclusion is that a tremendous effort goes into planning for safe nuclear power production, but nobody knows how much planning is enough.

Moderator Abner Mikva said the AEC and the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy would never win a democracy award. The promotion of the atomic energy industry is in capable hands, but the regulation of that industry is in those hands. As long as the two are one in the same, how does a citizen learn to judge the safety of the nuclear power industry?

Little chance of Kerner impeachment

Chances of impeachment proceedings against Judge Otto Kerner appear remote, despite the fact that he is now under sentence of three years in prison and a $50,000 fine.

There has been conversation on Capitol Hill over the possibility of impeachment, particularly among the Illinois congressional delegation.

But, U.S. Rep. Thomas Railsback, R-Moline, a member of the House Judiciary Committee, told this corner the day after Kerner's sentencing that the chances of such an attempt are "about zero." A resolution for impeachment would most likely originate in the Judiciary Committee. If approved by the House, the resolution would be delivered to the Senate, which would try Kerner.

Kerner has earned a footnote in history — though not the one he sought — as the only federal judge ever to be tried for a felony, let alone to be convicted. Three former judges — only one of whom was convicted — were tried for conspiracy to commit bribery, but they had all resigned before trial.

WHILE AWAITING outcome of his appeal, Kerner may continue to draw his $42,500 yearly salary and in fact could collect it for life, in or out of prison, unless he voluntarily resigns from the bench or is impeached.

Theoretically, at least, he could even continue to serve on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. And congressional sources concede that the only way that impeachment could ever come about would be if he were to attempt to retain his salary after exhausting appeals, or, inconceivably, to serve as a sitting judge.

Most Illinois congressman, including Rep. Philip Crane, R-12th, agree wholeheartedly that Kerner should not be drawing his salary, and most expect that sooner or later, he will resign.

There is an understandable reluctance among each of the Illinois congressmen to be the man who starts the sensational and messy business of impeachment. There was, following the judge's conviction, talk among some members of a joint resolution by the entire delegation to take the onus from any one man. That notion died aborning.

Otto Kerner

IT ALSO IS reported that Democrats in the Illinois delegation were asked to prevail upon Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to seek Kerner's resignation "for the good of the party." Apparently nothing came of that effort.

The reluctance to impeach is both political and personal.

A spokesman for Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, said that Young, as an attorney, feels that impeachment should not be considered until all Kerner's appeals are exhausted. Beyond that, he pointed out, Young has been a personal friend of "the governor."

Surely many of the congressmen from Illinois in both parties have known and respected Otto Kerner in better times, and their reluctance to heap further humiliation upon him is understandable.

Republicans also fear that initiating impeachment would appear to the public as a cheap partisan trick. Democrats undoubtedly fear the wrath of their own party — and Kerner's — which has got enough troubles at the moment, thank you.

Meanwhile, Otto Kerner continues to declare his innocence and has shown no signs of resigning. The taxpayers could be picking up the check for his non-service for years while he fights his case.

Forest preserve areas now open to public

Cook County Forest Preserve picnic groves and boating waters now are open to the public, the forest preserve district has announced.

In the Northwest suburbs Big Bend Lake near the southwest corner of Golf Road and East River Road and Beck Lake located on the north side of Central Road west of the Tri-State Tollway are both open to sailboats, rowboats and canoes.

Coho fishermen heading for Lake Michigan may use the Calumet River Boat Dock located on the east side of Ashland Avenue on the south bank of the Little Calumet River at 131st street. Rowboats, powerboats and canoes are permitted at the dock. The lake also can be reached from the Beaubien Dock located south of 130th Street and west of the Calumet Expressway.

Additional information on various boating locations throughout the metropolitan area is available by calling district offices at FO 9-9420.

Pahl elected vice president of NIPC

Jack Pahl, former Elk Grove Village president, has been elected vice president of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission.

Pahl, of 248 Wellington Ave., Elk Grove Village, serves as chairman of NIPC's Intergovernmental relations committee. He is an agent for State Farm Insurance Companies.

Other new NIPC officers elected unanimously at the quarterly meeting last week include Earle Harrison of Libertyville, a former vice president and treasurer of Marshall Field and Co., was elected NIPC president.

Ira J. Bach of Chicago, president of Urban Associates, was chosen secretary.

Waldemar Rakow, of Elgin, and a member of the Kane County Board, was elected treasurer.

Obituaries

Gladys G. Dolan

Miss Gladys G. Dolan, 82, of Boynton Beach, Fla., and Arlington Heights, a retired accountant in advertising, died Thursday in Magnus Nursing Home, Libertyville. She was born Nov. 25, 1891, in Chicago.

A Blessing was said Saturday morning in Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, Arlington Heights. Burial was in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are a brother, Vernon Dolan of Elmhurst; a sister, Mrs. Berenice Long of Chicago; many nephews and nieces. She was preceded in death by a brother, Earl Dolan on Jan. 7, 1972.

Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, Arlington Heights, was in charge of the arrangements.

Henry Hyczyk

Funeral Mass will be said at 10 a.m. today in St. Alphonsus Liguori Catholic Church, 411 N. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights, for Henry V. Hyczyk, 55, of Prospect Heights. Burial will be in a local cemetery.

Mr. Hyczyk, a plumber, and a veteran of World War II, died Friday morning in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born Feb. 16, 1918, in Springfield, Ill.

Surviving are his widow, Mary, nee Hannon; daughter, Mrs. Jan (James) Perz; sons, John and James; three sisters, Mrs. Alice Leschnek, Mrs. Anna Serafine and Mrs. Pauline Sokolski, and two brothers, Joseph and John.

Matz Funeral Home, 410 E. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, is in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Robert E. Hartje

Funeral Mass for Robert E. Hartje, 14, of 1115 S. Robert Dr., Mount Prospect, will be said at 10 a.m. today in St. Zachary Catholic Church, 467 W. Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines. Burial will be in family lot.

Robert, a student at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, died suddenly Friday morning in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. He was born Sept. 14, 1958.

Surviving are his parents, Robert F. and Olga, nee Chuchray, Hartje, and a sister, Mrs. Joan (Richard) Blood of Des Plaines.

Carl Winter

Funeral services for Carl Winter, 88, will be held at 10:30 a.m. today in the chapel of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, 800 W. Oakton St., Arlington Heights. The Rev. Gerhard Barthel will be officiating. Burial will be in Memorial Estates Cemetery, Northlake.

Mr. Winter died Friday morning in the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged, Arlington Heights, where he had been a resident. He was born June 2, 1884, in Russia.

Surviving are three sons, Fred and daughter-in-law, Grace, Alex and daughter-in-law, Violet, and Herman and daughter-in-law, Dorothy Winter; nine grandchildren, and six great-grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his wife, Emily, and a son, David.

Contributions may be made to the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged Building Fund, Arlington Heights.

Minnie Summers

Mrs. Minnie Summers, 81, nee Collins, of 1035 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines, died Thursday in Niles Manor Nursing Home, Niles. She was born in Alkin, Ill., on Oct. 15, 1891.

Visitation was Saturday and yesterday in Walker Funeral Home, Carbondale, Ill. Burial is today in East Lawn Memorial Gardens Cemetery, Herrin, Ill.

Preceded in death by her husband, Elmer G., survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Gladys (Louie) Boismenne of Des Plaines; two grandchildren; two great-grandchildren; sister, Mrs. Sophie Saunders, and a brother, Clyde Collins, both of Benton, Ill.

Funeral arrangements were made by Oehler Funeral Home, Des Plaines.

Edward Fletcher

Edward Fletcher, a resident of 625 Burton Pl., Arlington Heights, for 16 years, died suddenly Thursday in Kansas City, Mo., after an apparent heart attack while visiting relatives. He was a national sales manager for Scott Foresman Publishing Co. in Glenview, before retiring seven years ago. He was also a member of Our Lady of the Wayside Catholic Church, Arlington Heights.

Funeral services will be held today in McGilley Funeral Home, Linwood and Main streets, Kansas City, Mo.

Surviving is his widow, Monica.

'But that gin bottle may be mined, sir...'

WASHINGTON — Sen. William Proxmire has undertaken a campaign to prohibit military officers from using enlisted men as personal servants.

The Wisconsin Democrat says enlisted aides are being required to wash cars, prepare lunch, do laundry, run errands, baby sit, walk dogs, tend bar, make beds, grocery shop, wash dishes, weed gardens, clean swimming pools and sculpt ice carvings for parties. Among other duties.

Any GI possessing all of those skills obviously is a jewel and someday will make some girl a good husband. But Proxmire says this service to generals and admirals is costing the taxpayer almost $22 million a year.

He has proposed that "any order to an enlisted aide must be related to a military objective," which may be a fatal flaw in his campaign.

ANY GENERAL who isn't ingenious enough to improvise a military objective for baby sitting, dog walking, car washing, etc., clearly is unfit to lead our troops into battle.

They probably have three or four courses on that subject at West Point. The field manual may read something like this:

"Private Hargrove reporting for duty, sir."

"At ease, private. Perhaps you have been wondering why I asked you to meet me here."

"Yes, sir. The rear of a doghouse does seem rather a strange place to be meeting a general, sir."

"Exactly. That's why I picked this spot. The enemy won't be expecting us to meet here either."

"The enemy, sir?"

"I SENT FOR you, private, because I need someone to handle an important mission. I must tell you that the future of your country may depend on how well you perform. Are you ready to undertake such an assignment?"

"I'll do my best, sir."

"Very well, here are your orders: Walk my dog Hannibal around the post a couple of times a day."

"Begging the general's pardon, sir, but I thought any order to an enlisted aide was supposed to be related to a military objective."

"I'm glad to know you have been reading up on the regulations, and believe me I wouldn't have it any other way. But see here, Private Hargrove, what you, and the enemy, don't know is that Hannibal isn't any ordinary schnauzer."

"Hannibal has been trained to detect the scent of elephants."

"Elephants, sir?"

"Right. If any enemy agents try to infiltrate this post disguised as mahouts, Hannibal will sniff them out."

Local Explorer heads to attend national meeting

Presidents of Explorer posts in this area will attend the National Explorer Presidents' Congress in Washington, D.C., between April 26th and April 30th to represent the 1,106 Explorers in the Northwest Suburban Council, BSA.

The contingent will be led by William Butchart, chairman of the local presidents' association. He is a member of Post 391, sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Fire Department.

The April 26-30 congress will include leadership seminars, discussions of current issues with Government officials, a voice in the future of Exploring, and the election of the national Explorer president and his cabinet, according to Butchart.

The annual National Explorer Presidents' Congress is not all a working session, but will also include time for sight-seeing, visits to member of Congress, a carnival night and Hawaiian luau, and special entertainment at Kennedy Center.

Post presidents representing the Exploring Division besides Butchart include Joe Bucalo, of Wheeling Post 340, sponsored by St. Hilary's Episcopal Church; Kathy Sheehan and Kurt Piepenburg, both of Arlington Heights Post 412, sponsored by the Audubon Society, Park Ridge Chapter; Karen Pedersen, of Rolling Meadows Post 332, sponsored by the Northwest Bar Association; Owen D. West, of Arlington Heights Post 365, sponsored by Church of Jesus Christ L.D.S.; Larry Holt, of Park Ridge Post 77, sponsored by Park Ridge Transit Co., and Kelly Sheffield, of Arlington Heights Post 65, sponsored by Church of Jesus Christ of L.D.S.

Cook County drug deaths down: Toman

Drug deaths in Cook County have dropped this year compared to last year, Cook County Coroner Andrew J. Toman announced last week.

Toman reported 40 drug deaths for the first three months of 1973 as compared to 66 for the first quarter of 1972.

Three of the 14 deaths in March occurred in the suburbs, Toman said.

Toman said the deaths included three from overdoses of morphine or heroin, one from morphine and barbiturates, two from morphine and alcohol, five from overdoses of barbiturates, one death from an overdose of barbiturates and alcohol and one from an overdose of barbiturates and salicylates.

Should reporters be willing to go to jail?

Laws can't protect news sources

by RAY CROMLEY
Fifth in a Series

WASHINGTON—Freedom of the press depends on whether a reporter is, in the last analysis, ready to go to prison to protect his sources and to preserve his right to print views that are unpopular with whatever administration may be in office.

It is impossible to guarantee freedom of the press by legislation. The Freedom of Information law, in practice, has curtailed press freedom. The necessary exceptions written into this law have been used to justify withholding information which was formerly available.

It is likewise impossible to fully protect a journalist and his sources by law. For any government, including a democracy, must have the right to protect its documents and to some degree of secrecy in areas such as defense.

And the reporter, in addition to being a newsman is a citizen. He has a moral and legal responsibility. Absolute right for the reporter and absolute right for the courts are inevitably in conflict, as in the case of all rights. So the very nature of freedom means that its preservation depends on the willingness of the reporter to pay a penalty for his beliefs.

on at the start of World War II for pieces I spent six months in a Japanese prison at the start of World War II for pieces written for The Wall Street Journal. The ceded to quiz me on who I was and what I wanted. He insisted on seeing an identification card, then wanted to take me down to his office for a thorough going-over.

I refused, and left to find the Defense Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs, to find out what was going on.

But Arthur Sylvester wasn't in. Back in the hall, I found the major general who was then chief of Army public affairs hurrying to catch me. There's been a mistake, he said, and they'd set up an interview for me that afternoon.

IN THE ROOM for that talk on exercise was the colonel I was to interview — and also an information monitor (censor), a major, taking notes of every word said. In almost every sentence, I was addressed as "colonel" (my old wartime rank) so I knew I'd been checked out thoroughly.

When we had finished talking about army exercise, I asked what the fuss had been about. I'd asked nothing, I said, and he'd answered nothing that could not have in perfect safety have been told the Russians.

He was taken aback, but said he'd tell me, I promised on my word of honor as an officer that I wouldn't pass it on. I refused this restriction. Then he asked if I would promise on my word as a gentleman. Again I said no.

Finally, he said there was a slight difference in one exercise is the Medical Corps program and in the Army Operations plan and that he'd been afraid I was going to write a story about that — an apparent minor boo boo.

This, then, is the real problem newspapermen face. Men in government, military and civilian (there are much worse departments in Washington than Defense in this regard) are afraid of embarrassment. The problem is not national security or government interest. It is, in more cases than not, the fear that some goof, great or small, will be exposed.

THIS IS NOT to say there should not be government secrets. There should be. Or that reporters should not respect these legitimate secret restrictions. They should. But my problems have not been of that sort. I have voluntarily killed stories — or paragraphs in stories — when I learned that officials had inadvertently given me information which was legitimately classified. So has every other reporter I know well.

Because of the basic embarrassment problem mentioned above I don't believe the adversary relationship between newspapermen and officials can be changed. It is human nature for men to want to protect themselves and their colleagues from criticism and ridicule.

Therefore, so long as human beings work for the government they will attempt to cover their mistakes, honest mistakes and foolish ones alike. (I have also met this custom in interviewing men in private industry and in seeking information from social reformers.)

ACTUALLY, so far as freedom of information goes, the Defense Department is, as mentioned above, one of the better government agencies in my experience. But on one occasion I have seen misguided officers in an Army-occupied area attempt to pin a false hit-and-run charge against a fellow reporter to get him to leave the area, then attempt to intimidate fellow newsmen who rose to his defense. (He'd been writing pieces they did not like.)

But worse than the intimidation of reporters, which is difficult, is the intimidation of officials (which is quite simple) to prevent them from talking to reporters and to discourage them from disclosing mistakes.

Sometimes officials are routinely asked to submit reports of everything they say to reporters. Sometimes they are required (or encouraged) to have a monitor present. And sometimes they are merely harassed in the petty ways a supervisor can harass an underling when he wants. It's effective.

Blase's law won't work

It had to happen, this latest local war against what newsstands are selling to children under 17 years of age.

In the past few years, the magazine industry, spurred on by the success of Playboy and supported by the U.S. Supreme Court, has produced a "new frankness" in sexually-oriented magazines.

Magazines such as Gallery, Penthouse and Oui have become best-sellers here and everywhere else across the United States. They can be found on almost every newsstand, and in drug stores and "convenient" grocery stores.

The New Frankness is part of a permissiveness which is sweeping through all levels of publishing. Such formerly staid publications as Cosmopolitan have used it, via Burt Reynolds, to boost circulation; other publications are following in its wake.

Thus, the campaign against the New Frankness which Niles mayor Nick Blase is waging, both in his community and across the Northwest suburbs, is a logical reaction.

The Niles village board passed two ordinances — one to ban the sale of "obscene" publications to persons under 17 years of age and another to ban sex-oriented radio programs, such as WGLD-FM's "Femme Forum."

Blase has encouraged other communities to pass similar ordinances, on the theory that, if a kid can't buy a dirty magazine in Niles, he shouldn't be able to buy it in Arlington Heights or in Palatine.

A neighboring community, Wheeling, is considering an anti-magazine ordinance but it has wisely ignored the radio regulation ordinance (a law which attempts to usurp power from the Federal Communications Commission, where such control over the airwaves should remain).

As well-intentioned as Blase's efforts are, these ordinances are going to prove ineffective against the New Frankness. They also may be proved unconstitutional and a threat to freedom of speech.

The Herald has no desire to encourage the sale of Playboy, Gallery and the others to minors. But, if kids are to be prevented from buying such magazines, the parents should set the rules, not the politicians.

The danger in Blase's ordinance is that it subtly threatens the right of all Americans to choose freely what they shall and shall not read.

There are currently laws which control the media in the areas of libel, and these laws are designed to protect the common good. We've seen no proof that anatomically specific photographs are going to incite someone under 17 years of age to commit a crime.

We also feel that Blase's law, even if other mayors were inspired to pass local ordinances like it, wouldn't achieve its desired goal. There's always an over-age buddy to buy a youth magazine, and there's always another suburb a few miles away where a boy can buy the kind of magazine which Nick Blase regards as obscene. There's no way such magazines are going to be kept away from high school kids.

It's a far better idea for parents to teach their children what is valuable reading and what is exploitative trash. The whole point of the American tradition is individual responsibility, and passing this responsibility along to politicians, we feel, isn't a good idea.

Undoing (?) prejudice

After all the nation has been through, it's hard to believe that a guy could be turned down — legally — for the job of policeman simply on the basis of his race.

But it happened in Cleveland, where a U.S. district judge had ordered that at least 35 of 194 recently appointed rookies be black or represent Spanish-speaking minorities.

Thus, because the Civil Service Commission had classified him as white, Winford L. Terrentine was passed over while 10 minority applicants who scored lower than he did on the examination were appointed.

Only it happened that Terrentine was not white but black. The racial identification was in error.

"This is one of the few times being classified black was an advantage and I lost out," said Terrentine.

Oh, what a tangled web we weave when we labor to undo the prejudice of generations.

The new army

This is now the Army, Ms. Jones:

For the first time, a new Army command policy allows members of the Women's Army Corps to exercise disciplinary authority over men.

The actual change in Army Regulations enables Wacs to be assigned to any command position, except those associated with combat or tactical combat support.

Up until now, women have been permitted to command women and to supervise both men and women, but were not permitted to exercise the disciplinary authority of a commander over men (contrary to what is frequently the case in civilian — er, that, is married — life).

Wheeling draws fire

It is always question, speculation, and rumor time in Wheeling. This would not necessarily be true if our "corporate authorities" did not always seem so secretive and appear so threatened by questions. Here, not in alphabetical order nor in the order of importance, are some of the questions, speculations and rumors.

First, Trustee Valenza. Everyone knows the reasons he gives for not running for reelection to the Village Board. But, after all these years of watching him so obviously enjoy his roles of ersatz D. A. and castigator of the poor soul who dares to speak out at meetings, the role of plain old John Q. is out of character. Rumor has it that he hopes for one of the government sponsored environmental jobs said to be in the offing. Or, the job of Village Finance Director may still be open (he'd love that) or of course, a job to his liking could be created, like Assistant Manager. He may just return to his first love, the Plan Commission, or the Zoning Board, but these have no pay, to speak of.

Then there is our boot patrolman on our police force, Mr. Stricker, ex-several village positions, the eternal student. Don't misunderstand, anyone who will make such sacrifices to continue his education is to be encouraged. Past happenings, however, where our "Golden Boy" is concerned, bring out that old credibility gap. This one is hard to figure. Will he join the CCPA? Will he be openly involved in the upcoming negotiations with the Village Board? How do the other patrolmen feel about having him in their midst? They should probably discipline their very thoughts because here is a direct line to "the man." Very nervous situation, I should think.

Here is one. Sometime ago the AM VETs on S. Milwaukee Avenue were being pressured because of building safety code violations. Next, lo and behold, one hears they have sold the property, are planning to build a new place on McHenry Road and are applying for a club liquor license to replace their old liquor license which was included in the sale. Their old building is razed and on the old site one hears that the Hein Dynasty (of the Wheeling Auto Parts, et al) plans to build a million dollar development of some kind, complete with a liquor business, using the AMVET's old license. Incidentally, Wheeling Auto Parts et al, somehow get almost all the village auto parts business (conflict of interest, Trustee Hein?). We also hear that not all the AMVETs are happy with the deal. They feel they have been "had."

And so it goes, questions with no answers. This leads to speculation and thence to rumor. For instance:

There is the rape of poor old W. Strong St. Quite a saga, and since there could be no questions, that leaves only speculation as to why this was done so heartlessly, right in the middle of "litigation."

Question: Is it true that President Scanlon has a "piece of the action" in a recently approved PD-4 development in the flood plain on S. Wolf Road?

Question: For whom are the two American Motors "Ambassadors" we recently bought? Is it true that Mr. Bieber was driving one of them back from Springfield at the time of his "reported" accident? Why were details of the accident withheld? Was he really driving for our millionaire Northbrook friend?

Question: Will changing the flood plain map change the location of the flood waters in Wheeling? If so, we must have a Moses in our Village Hall. One heavy, drenching rain will answer that.

There may be explanations for all these things, but when the "corporate authorities" seem to assume it is none of the citizen's business, they start guessing. They feel that since it is their tax money which supports the operation, they are entitled to facts and answers.

Paramedics applauded — again

The family of Jack Clark, Sr. of 9 E. Hawthorne, Arlington Heights, wants to thank you for the very prompt and excellent service rendered by your ambulance team on Thursday, March 15, at 5 p.m.

Due in large part to your efficiency and care in rushing Mr. Clark to the emergency room of Northwest Community Hospital following his stroke, he is now home and recuperating very satisfactorily.

We certainly appreciated your help and cooperation in that time of need.

Jack Clark, Jr.
Arlington Heights

Minton criticized

We heartily congratulate Bob Teichert in his great victory, and we suggest to Michael Minton that he reread his law books and consider taking courses in civics and in good manners.

Demagoguery, wild statements and plan old-fashioned lying are tactics and he should abandon. It is unbecomingly typical of his recent campaign for Mr. Minton to blame his defeat on the Herald's support of his opponent.

Quite to the contrary, the Herald's generous provision of front page coverage gave his demagoguery more publicity than we believed he deserved. That, Mr. Minton, is democracy and a free press in action.

Instead of knocking others, we suggest that you admit that the voters of Mount Prospect chose the man we had greater confidence in.

'Support Nike park'

The Nike Base property, if it were developed into a regional park, would not just benefit a few citizens of Arlington Heights, but all the citizens of Arlington Heights and the nearby surrounding communities.

Therefore, I urge everyone in Arlington Heights and nearby communities to send letters to Senators Charles H. Percy and Adlai E. Stevenson and Representatives Philip Crane and Sam Young, and anyone else that will listen to our plea for a regional park.

Don't let one of the last remaining natural resources in the community be lost forever, because of citizen inaction.

Let's unite — and write, write, write.
Mrs. Stuart (Betty) Stevenson

Letters welcome

The Herald welcomes and encourages letters from readers. Letters are published in "The Fence Post" column; no anonymous mail is considered for publication, and we will not withhold names on request. Letters in excess of 300 words are subject to condensation. Direct your mail to Herald Fence Post, P. O. Box 220, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

Henrikson honored

The wife of a former President of the United States has thanked Art Henrikson, the Herald's editorial cartoonist, for a cartoon donated to the LBJ Library in Austin, Texas.

In March, Henrikson was invited by a member of the staff of the late Lyndon Baines Johnson to submit a cartoon to the library. The cartoon was published in the Herald following the death of the 36th President.

Henrikson received the following letter last week from Mrs. Carole Bryant, secretary to Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson:

"Mrs. Johnson has asked me to thank you for your kindness in sending the original cartoon from your newspapers in Northwest Cook County of Illinois. As you may know, the LBJ Library has been collecting original cartoons which date back as far as the early 1930's, and now has one of the most outstanding collections in the country.

"Mrs. Johnson sends her warm appreciation to you for your partnership in adding to this fine collection."

The cartoon was published on the Herald's editorial page two days after President Johnson's death in January.

School vote drew yawns

In the wake of Tuesday's excitement — the municipal elections all over the Northwest suburbs — it's hard to remember there were school board elections on the preceding Saturday.

Indeed, there were some local school board elections that were interesting — Dist. 26 had one and Dist. 25 was supposed to have a good one. Dist. 207 and Oakton College had some fiery issues and interesting candidates, too.

Then, of course, there are two local high school districts, Districts 211 and 214. Dist. 211 had a strong field, but voting which was characterized by the usual formula: Live in Palatine and you stand a better-than-even chance of becoming a board member. It's the way people vote.

Dist. 214, the richest local high school district (about $24 million in its education fund) has a field of candidates which generated a vigorous but unsuccessful campaign for a blue-ribbon write-in candidate — which says something about the nature of the field.

Then there's Harper College in Palatine.

Out of a total of 9,000 votes cast in the Harper election, a total of 787 were defective or objected to ballots. That's 8.7 per cent of the total.

Dist. 211, by comparison had 135 such ballots out of about 5,207 cast. That's about 2.6 per cent.

(These are generally ballots which are cast blank. In the Harper election, the percentages held up fairly evenly across all polling places; there's no suggestion here of vote fraud.)

Then, there's Dist. 15 — four candidates for four seats, and a total of 25 spoiled and objected-to ballots. Total vote was somewhere over 1,000, and the percentage is again low.

I have no up-to-date figures on the barn-burning local village elections, but I suspect there were only a handful of blank ballots cast. And I have some suspicions about why so many people cast blank ballots in the Harper election.

First, Harper's a community college, and local residents have no tradition in voting for its board. The college is somehow too far above them, and the Harper election is something to be ignored.

But there are issues present at Harper. A second campus looms big for the college, and there's a self-imposed "budget freeze" in effect, due to a consultant's failure to anticipate a decline in the college's phenomenal growth rate. And the board's about to vote — unilaterally — on salary increases for the teachers.

As in Palatine's and Wheeling's village elections, it must come down to concrete issues. Our schools tend to run themselves pretty well, and although we gripe and scream, there's little we think we can do to cut our tax bills (and remember how large those educational budgets are).

But when the water level rises in the basement, and the furnace has to be moved to higher ground — or there's a threat of a black family moving in nearby — there's a question of the loss (real or imagined) of money. We face a direct financial threat to our hard-bought home, and that hurts.

Maybe that's why the intense interest in Tuesday's municipal elections and the lethargy toward Harper (and, secondarily, other school districts) on Saturday. The remedy is in your hands.

Business Today

by DEAN C. MILLER

NEW YORK — Some people think it crude. Some, rude. Others view it as a sign of nervousness.

Whatever the case, Americans have been invertebrate gum chewers since 1871. If sales figures are any indication they'll continue chomping away, Emily Post notwithstanding.

Chewing gum sales in 1972 rose 13 per cent. Americans chewed more than 200 million pounds of gum that year, according to the National Association of Chewing Gum Manufacturers. At retail, that big wad of gum was worth $371 million dollars, more than twice the $220 million figure 10 years previous.

Thus, in the last decade, the use of chewing gum has increased 160 per cent.

BECAUSE chewing gum is a product sold largely to children, never known for their large cash reserves, the manufacturers have tried to keep down the price.

"Prices rose 25 per cent at the turn of the century," said Gordon Garrett, vice president of sales for the American Chicle Division of Warner Lambert Company. "gum sold for a penny a stick. Today it costs a quarter of a penny more, a 25 per cent increase in 73 years."

Wrigley, according to the latest Nielsen figures, has 44 per cent of the market, American Chicle 34 per cent and Beech Nut 16 per cent.

Oddly enough, a Mexican general — Santa Ana, victor in the Battle of the Alamo — indirectly led to the creation of the chewing gum industry.

He had fled the internal problems of Mexico in 1869 and taken a secretary with him to a haven in Staten Island, N. Y.

That secretary — Rudolph Napegy — traveled regularly between Staten Island and Manhattan. Thomas Adams, a glass dealer and inventor, had a shop on Cortlandt Street, just a block from the foot of Liberty Street where the Staten Island ferry then docked. Displays in the Adams glass shop attracted Santa Ana's secretary. He made inquiries from time to time, and those inquiries turned into social visits.

ONE DAY Napegy left several lumps of chicle with Adams, telling him he thought it might be useful in adulterating rubber, then about four times more expensive than chicle.

Adams got several chemists together. They experimented but finally gave up on the idea. Shortly after that, Adams walked into a Jersey City drugstore and, while waiting, noticed that a young girl came in and asked for paraffin chewing gum.

"Is there much sale for the paraffin gum?" Adams asked the druggist. "Not really," said the druggist. And that gave Adams, the inventor, an idea.

HE REMEMBERED how his chemists, during the unsuccessful robber experiment, often had broken off a piece of the chicle and chewed it as they worked. That evening Adams and his son, Horatio, who lived to be 102, took some chicle, put it into hot water and left it there until it had the consistency of putty. Then they kneaded it into little balls, took them to the New Jersey druggist and a few weeks later the chewing gum boom had been launched. Adams patented the product on Feb. 14, 1871.

Adams soon realized that rolling the chicle into balls was too time consuming. He devised a machine that ran the chicle into long, thin strips that the merchant could cut off into penny lengths.

And from that day on Americans have been stuck on gum.

Proxmire wants corporate head pay curbs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today President Nixon's administration permits corporate executives to increase their pay up to 215 per cent in a year, while the government holds workers to 5.5 per cent annually.

Proxmire said Dr. John Dunlop, head of the Cost of Living Council, should change the policy, making wage guidelines apply to big business executive pay raises and bonuses as well as to workers.

"The guidelines must be applied equally to the big shots as well as to the average American wage earner," Proxmire said. "What is sauce for the goose should be sauce for the gander."

"The time has come to end this rank discrimination which applies one policy for the mass of Americans and another for the elitist few. Dr. Dunlop should change the policy and change it now."

Wall Street chatter

NEW YORK — Wright Investors' Service calls the current sag in the list's valuation "much more severe than at any time in more than a decade." Growth issues will continue to suffer and further distort many of the popular market indexes, but "most equities of superior investment quality now offer outstanding opportunities for a period of unusually rewarding investment growth during the next few years," the company says.

Opening the floodgate on prime rates, stepped-up inflation and the specter of renewed bombing in Indochina "continued to keep the buyers on the sidelines," according to E. F. Hutton. The real impact of these developments may soon be felt on the market. If it can be shrugged off, however, "it would be another sign of the limited downside momentum in the latest decline," the firm says.

History suggests what could happen with a runaway boom, especially when accompanied by equally rapid inflation. The Neill Letter of Contrary Opinion says. It presents the question: Should we keep away from the stock market, and sit out the boom, or try to beat the game by speculating before the boom runs out of steam. "It is habitual for people to be out when they should be in, and vice versa. Right here is where I leave you," the market writer says.

The general market seems to have put on a brighter face "that well could carry throughout the spring," Walston & Co., Inc. says. Still, the three Dow Jones averages will need time to find secure bases, and a backing-and-filling period in the coming weeks would be both healthy and expected. "Rather than be concerned, investors should view any such movement as an opportunity to add to their growing list of quality holdings," the letter adds.

'Stand Up For Business'

Campaign will boost image of business

Business makes too much profit, most advertising is dishonest or misleading, products are of poorer quality than 5 to 10 years ago and most large companies are too impersonal towards their customers, in the opinion of Illinois adults polled in a statewide survey by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce.

The results of the statewide opinion poll on the image of business were recently announced in conjunction with the launching of a three-year public education campaign, Stand Up For Business. It will be conducted throughout the state by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce and its 20,000 members.

In releasing results of the ISCC survey at a press conference at the Sheraton-Chicago, Lester W. Brann Jr., state chamber president, said, "The image of business, in the opinion of the public, has never been lower. Many people don't know the true story of business and the free enterprise system and the vital role it plays in the economic and social progress of our nation."

The ISCC president pointed out business itself is partially to blame for the misconceptions about business and profits in the minds of the people — "not because of business' poor performance as a corporate citizen — but rather because of business' lack of performance in educating the American people so they'll understand and appreciate their own free enterprise system."

THE ILLINOIS State Chamber also has launched an education campaign on Lester W.

a statewide speakers bureau. He indicated that future activity will include a program to educate teachers and students and a statewide public education campaign.

In discussing the survey results, Brann said only 8 per cent correctly estimated business profits as approximately 4 cents out of each sales dollar while a majority of 60 per cent estimated too high. Of the over-estimates, 43 per cent put the profit figure at more than twice the actual figure.

ON THE PLUS side, a big majority (78 per cent) believe the average worker lives better today than 10 years ago and credit this improvement in living standards to labor unions by 45 per cent and to the business system by 31 per cent with only 14 per cent giving credit to the government.

Business got good marks in several areas. A high majority believe the good features of business outweigh the bad and that business is trying to improve its products, is trying to correct pollution, is doing its share in minority hiring and backs up its warranties on products.

The opinion survey was conducted by personal interview with 1,500 persons over age 18 on a statewide basis in proportion to the 1970 census. Central Surveys, Inc. of Shenandoah, Iowa, a nationally known polling firm conducted the interviews between April 1-10.

a statewide basis, Brann announced. "The big outpour of business and the American system of free enterprise is over. The silent victim — the businessman — is going to stop being silent as of today! The ISCC and its members — more than 20,000 Illinois businessmen are going to stand up and speak out for business starting right now," Brann said.

Phase I of the Stand Up For Business Campaign includes the distribution of a kit, titled Profits Mean Paychecks to ISCC businessmen throughout the state. Posters, paycheck stuffers, house organ articles and a booklet titled, If Business Is Your Bag — Say So Out Loud are featured in the kit.

Brann reported that Phase I will be followed by a local community action program with audio-visual materials and

Our Pre-Season Installation of Central Air Conditioning Offers You Nothing BUT Savings on

FEDDERS SYSTEMS

Over the past sixteen years, "Ray's" has become one of the country's largest installers of residential central air conditioning. To accomplish this, many factors were necessary and if you have the time, we would appreciate your reading the following.

- Our prime concern always has been to deal with people honestly. Deception in advertising has not been or will never be used to sell our product.
- Our products have to be the finest quality for the benefit of our customers and for ourselves.
- We believe in fair pricing and will never take advantage of our customers with hidden add-ons.
- We excel in efficiency of installation to keep the cost down without cutting corners that impair the quality of your installation.
- Same day service on all out-of service heating systems.
- Same day or very next day service on air conditioning depending on the time your call is received.
- We employ top caliber personnel only — who have a desire to take pride in their work.
- Some things, we do the hard way like pouring concrete pads with legs below frost line to assure the balanced level of your condensing unit to help fulfill its longest life expectancy.
- All surveys are made by our top combination installers and servicemen who are much more familiar with sizing your home than a salesman having no field experience could be. Questions you may have at the time can be answered accurately.

Our fair pricing, top quality installation and dependable follow-up service is hard to beat unless you've made a practice of it. We pride ourselves with being unapproachable by anyone on our performance of service and installation.

We are the franchised dealer for the top brand of central air conditioning in this area. OUR OFFER IS SIMPLY LOWER PRICES FOR EARLY INSTALLATIONS. After surveying your house to determine your size unit, a written proposal is sent to you through the mail.

Youth are 'turned on' to Christianity

by BILLIE BACHHUBER

Kevin Dyer has circled the earth many times, been chased by hostile mobs and gone behind the Iron Curtain to pursue the work he believes in. Now he directs Literature Crusades, an international training center in Prospect Heights where young Christians prepare for missionary work.

Kevin and his wife, Eloise, met in an Oak Park Bible school. After several years of study, they married and traveled the world before settling down in Prospect Heights with their three children.

The son of an Australian government worker possessed of a missionary spirit, Dyer learned early the joys, hardships and restrictions of practicing evangelism. He remembers that, as a teenager, he briefly was "turned off" religion.

At 18, Kevin and an older brother hitchhiked all over the world just for adventure. But the most important thing he gained from his travels was the discovery of a real need to help the many "floating" young people he met to become creative and useful. This insight turned him back to religion and his early training.

IN THE EARLY '60s Kevin devised a plan to direct the energies of idealistic young people. His idea was to organize teams of 10 young adults to distribute Christian literature around the world.

Many deemed his plan "impractical," but with help and encouragement from family and friends, Dyer put the idea into action. Right now 10 teams (that's 100 missionaries) are working throughout the world. Literature Crusades is completely financed by individual contributions, most about $10. "And as God provides, we expand," said Kevin.

The Prospect Heights Center provides training in languages, customs and cultures of countries as well as in Bible studies. But its missionaries are not careerists; they spend a year and a half abroad, then are finished.

Literature Crusades also sponsors work behind the Iron Curtain; a local contemporary church; The Catacombs, a coffeehouse run by local youth; and Kings' Inn, a temporary shelter for young adults.

AT KINGS INN, young people may come for refuge and redirection (a six months maximum). The shelter is dedicated to Kevin's father, who envisioned such a refuge for the young.

The home, a tastefully furnished modern residence, provides a stabilizing, home-sharing situation, Dyer explained. "This experience provides a strengthening, maturing ministry where brothers and sisters in the Lord's family help to build each other up to the principles of God's word," he said.

"God pointed me to Kings Inn," said David MacIntosh, a 23-year-old Canadian. An art major, Dave worked in construction after leaving college. He didn't know where he was heading. He first learned about Kings Inn from a brochure his parents received in the mail, and he came to Prospect Heights "to get his head on straight," as Dave put it, smiling.

ing. Now he says he is ready to dedicate his life to God... not himself.

Gail Petersen, 19, faced even tougher problems. She argued constantly with her parents, was selfish and depressed, as she tells it. She even smoked pot. Gail came to Kings Inn, now works in the center's mailroom and is sure that "the Lord takes first place in my new life."

THE LOCAL contemporary-oriented church was the outgrowth of the Friday night coffeehouse, The Catacombs. As Kevin got to know the area young people who came, he saw the need for a church where those "turned off" from traditional church attendance could meet.

He and Eloise first held meetings in their own home. Now about 160 persons of all ages gather Sunday mornings in the Literature Crusades main building, located on a seven and a half acre campus in Prospect Heights. Dressed casually, the worshippers share problems and pressures and pray for one another in a relaxed atmosphere.

Guitar playing, contemporary Christian music, conversational prayer, communion and teaching time are all part of the Sunday scene at this new church.

"These meetings have revolutionized our family life," declared Kevin. He explained: Beth and Mark, the Dyer children, see for themselves that the family practices religion rather than just "putting on" for Sunday.

"It all goes back to a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," says Kevin. "When that happens, an exciting change takes place."

The Catacombs

Where coffee and the gospel mix

by MONICA WILCH

Through the dimness of the redecorated basement, the words "One Way" with a finger pointing up, and the name Jesus, all in fluorescent orange paint, glow eerily from the far wall.

As one's eyes adjust to the dark, the rest of the scene comes into view. Several construction reeds painted black serve as tables, and cushions provide seating. The walls are hung with fishnet and various types of posters and pictures.

A young man and girl seated on high stools on a platform are singing current tunes to the strumming of their guitars.

Coffeehouses hit their heyday back in the early '60s, when social consciousness first began blooming on college campuses and was translated into folk music. Then, the Judy Collinses and Joan Baezes, and others of lesser fame traveled the coffeehouse circuit where between musical fare, the concerned generation listened to dramatic readings and participated in discussions of current issues.

BUT COFFEEHOUSES, for the most part, have faded, a phenomenon of the past — perhaps another victim of the war that brought the young people screaming into the streets.

Yet a vestige, 1973-style, still exists in Prospect Heights. Called The Catacombs, this little retreat from the world, is snuggled in the basement of a large, old house on the grounds of Literature Crusades. Its clientele are high school students and its raison d'être—to provide a gathering place for the young people who have been attracted to this gospel organization. Or perhaps to propagate the gospel to any strangers who may wander in and appear receptive to the message.

By 10 o'clock, on this Friday night, about 25 young people were sitting around at the Catacombs, sipping coffee or coke and talking quietly, or listening to the singers, who were professionals brought in from Chicago.

Bill Bonakowski, a young Literature Crusades staff member who manages the coffeehouse, was saying that last year, attendance had been much greater — sometimes up to 100 kids. This year, it varies from one weekend to the next, but usually not more than around 30 kids, most of them Hersey High School students.

"WE PUT UP POSTERS in all the area high schools, but it's mostly Hersey kids who come. They live nearby," he said.

One of the "regulars" is George Bozinski, who also lives in the neighborhood. A Hersey junior, George saw the literature at school and started coming a few months ago. He has a lot of friends who come here, he said, and he likes the atmosphere.

"People here have a personal relationship with the Lord," George explained. He had been turned off by what he considered the too-bigness and coldness in his Lutheran church. Here, he maintains, is where he "found" Christ.

George's story is repeated to varying degrees by the others in the coffeehouse. Formerly Lutherans and Catholics and other mainline church members, the kids have been attracted to The Catacombs and the fundamental gospel message of Literature Crusades.

(A non-denominational organization, Literature Crusades is supported mainly by the Church of the Brethren.)

BUT IN THE corner on the floor behind a table are two girls who seem somewhat less concerned with the message of Literature Crusades. Debbie Greco and Shar Blackwell, Hersey juniors, have just dropped in to The Catacombs tonight for something to do. Although not many of their school friends come here, they said, they like the peaceful atmosphere. They enjoy just sitting here and chatting and drinking cokes.

Meanwhile, the singers have returned to the platform and are trying to get their audience to join in on the chorus. But about the only takers are a lively group in front of the platform who are friends of the performers and came along to The Catacombs tonight as part of their entourage.

Suburban Living

ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

Mary Sherry

You can't teach a dog

I have been trying to do my part in participating in the meat boycott. I frankly have had mixed emotions about its effect, but my participation has been motivated by the belief that the housewives of America can be a powerful group. How to unite them and how to use that power are something else again.

However, if nothing more is to be gained at this point than to demonstrate that such a power exists, that alone, I believe, is worth a few meatless meals.

So far my family has been rather cooperative about the whole thing. The fact that we are in the season of Lent was a help in the beginning. But when the distinction between economics and penitential sacrifice began to get confused, the dinner-table discussions became quite interesting, though obviously in need of some straightening out.

NOW OUR under-10's are all capable of discussing the theory of supply and demand, the Soil Bank Program, and FDA inspection procedures. Even though the middle child still tends to think it was Marie Antoinette who said, "Let them eat cheese," it is comforting to know they understand the basic problem.

Everyone seems to understand except the dog.

For more than a week now the dog has left the kitchen after dinner in a pout. And for the past two days she hasn't come running at the sound of a knife scraping the first plate after the table is cleared. She knows. No meat.

Now, it is very difficult to explain the principles of a boycott to a dog — even a very smart dog, which this one is not. So the whole family has taken on the project of educating the dog's taste in fish, cheese, eggs and lentils.

But the dog must be spoiled by all those all-meat dog food ads on television. She has begun to watch them hungrily with a look I have noticed she has also reserved for the mailman and for a horse that occasionally is ridden through the neighborhood.

As with the rest of us, the dog is not starving though. By morning her nibbled dog food, plus the meatless left-overs are always gone from her bowl. Occasionally I have awakened in the middle of the night to hear her munching a very late dinner, after she has given up all hope for some meat.

In fact, last night I awoke to the sound of eating. But since the noise lacked the usual canine crunch, I got up to investigate.

There assembled in the kitchen were all my understanding boycotters — husband, daughter and two sons — and my reluctant boycott — the dog. They were all in the dark feasting on hamburger for which they had sent out.

Of course, I knew what my reaction should have been. I should have shown my concern about their commitment to a cause. But I was in fact most worried that they might have not ordered one for me!

Sissy Farenthold chides McGovern for retreating from party reforms

by STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sissy Farenthold, chairwoman of the National Women's Political Caucus, has denounced Sen. George S. McGovern for backing off from the reforms which opened the Democratic Party to women, minorities and youth.

In a letter to McGovern, Mrs. Farenthold said she was "confused and dismayed" by the recommendations of the 1972 presidential candidate to the Democratic Party Charter Commission.

Testifying before the commission last week, McGovern recommended that the guidelines for selection of delegates to the national conventions be stripped of language widely interpreted as requiring a quota system.

Mrs. Farenthold said "how pitiable is the state of the party that you should suggest the removal of the delegate selection guideline calling for women, youth and minorities to be represented at conventions in 'reasonable relationship to their presence in the population.'"

Fashion

by Genie

Babylonian kings sprinkled gold in their hair and beards and although undocumented, ancient Egyptians are said to have pictured their gods with blue hair. Concocting their own dyes, the males colored their own heads of hair to match divinity.

Noblemen during Queen Anne's reign wore wigs of cascading curls down the shoulders and over their chests, and who can forget the powdered wigs of our first American gentlemen?

With such a hairy history why shouldn't 20th century males also be concerned about their cuts and trims?

The male grooming market is growing by leaps and bounds and it's almost becoming fashionable to say, "It's getting masculine to be feminine" ... meaning, of course, that men are allowed today to pamper themselves as much as their women do.

BUT THERE IS one area that is still relatively unexplored. Men's wigs. Custom toupees and hairpieces have been big business for quite some time ... since fashionable emphasis was placed on full heads of hair.

But soon to be on the market is a male wig of Monsanto modacrylic fiber designed by wigmaker Leon Buchheit of Leon J. A. Buchheit, Inc.

The wig comes complete with its own adjustable sideburns. And due to a flexible construction, it can be parted wherever a man would normally part his own hair.

These are wigs for men, conceived and created as wigs for men, not women's wigs adapted. How can you tell? They even have hairline recesses built in ... a realistic approach.

LEON BUCHHEIT, whose company will manufacture and distribute the new handmade wig, said, "In today's society there is a premium on youth. A middle-aged man who has lost all or much of his hair is always at a competitive disadvantage with a younger man ... or someone who looks younger. Hair on a man easily removes 10 years. Of course, it is very important for the hair to look natural. A woman is more interested in having her wig look beautiful. For a man, it is more important for the wig to look natural."

Initially the new wig will only be available in one basic type, essentially conservative. The wig will, however, come in 25 different shades and range in style from straight to curly.

The wig is not considered a ready-to-wear item. It will be distributed through professional men's hair stylists across the country.

SALONS WILL RECEIVE the wig with fibers trimmed to chin-length. The stylist will then cut and shape the wig to each man's facial structure and personal taste. Total price, including styling, will be approximately $150.

But take heart, men. Wigs for women were once expensive and only for the elite too until they began mass producing them. Anyhow, it still beats a $400 custom-built toupee.

Marie Andersen retires as homemaker secretary

Mrs. Marie Andersen

"This is your life, Marie Andersen."

Those words opened one of the moving ceremonies that honored Mrs. Andersen recently on her retirement as secretary of Cook County Homemakers Extension Association.

The party was planned for Heuer's Restaurant, Rosemont, and hosted by Mrs. Jesse Coulter of Lake Zurich, former assistant home advisor.

The other was held two days later, April 12, when Marie was made an honorary member of the Des Plaines Unit at a luncheon at River Forest Country Club. Marie, who has lived in Des Plaines since her birth, started 32 years ago as a temporary secretary for the county homemakers extension service. So efficient and conscientious was she that she became a fulltime secretary, working in the Des Plaines office until retiring.

It was like a family reunion when Marie was toasted by several hundred women at the retirement luncheon.

Working with so many extension advisors and assistant advisors through the years, she was greeted by many past associates at the county level.

Heading the guest list were the current advisor, Dorothy G. Landgraf, and her assistant, Shirley McCann. Also attending were representatives of all the units in the Cook County area; Mrs. Marvin Duntzman of Barrington, president of the Cook County units; Mrs. Helen Vogt, president of Lake County units; and Mrs. Dorothy Jacobs, chairman of the 4-H Girls Clubs in the area.

And of those who could not be present, there were letters galore from retired specialists in clothing, home furnishings and food, who had served the units from the University of Illinois extension service.

THE HONORARY membership conferred on Marie by the Des Plaines unit was a highlight of the unit's 31st birthday party. Louise Milano presided at the ceremony which brought Marie back to her hometown unit.

There was much reminiscing that day, all the way back to the time of the first meeting of the Des Plaines unit, held on the porch of Mrs. Frieda Hill.

Others who helped plan the unit's birthday party were Mrs. Mary Landt and Vernetta Shine, co-chairmen; Mrs. W. Weise, who made nametags; Mrs. Gladys Ramsauer and Mrs. Gene Sloss, who made the flower pot favors; and Mrs. Helene Mueller, who knitted the stole given to Mrs. Andersen as a welcome into the unit.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leimer

Family fetes Paul Leimers on 50th wedding anniversary

The Lutheran church and its affiliated schools have played a big part in the life of a golden anniversary couple, Paul and Ione Leimer of Rolling Meadows.

They both grew up on the Nebraska plains, met as children, married as young adults and raised a family around Paul's career as teacher and principal of Lutheran schools in the Midwest.

Until retiring seven years ago, Paul was principal and eighth grade teacher at Immanuel Lutheran School in Palatine for over 20 years. He and his family lived most of that time nearby at 207 N. Brockway.

PAUL AND IONE were married in Beemer, Neb., his hometown, on March 21, 1923. Fifty years later, minus a few days, they celebrated their golden wedding day at a party at Arlington Inn. Fifty guests, including their six children, toasted the milestone with them.

and Mrs. Joe Vrick of Arlington Heights and Mrs. Vanda Stenfeld of Chicago. The couple has another daughter, Jennifer, 3. Wendy's birth weight was 8 pounds 8 ounces.

mission which drafted the guidelines. He relinquished the post when he became an active candidate for the nomination.

MRS. FARENTHOLD said she hoped that the new commission, under Barbara Mikuski, would make any changes necessary "so that the concept of fair representation is not used as a narrowly applied quota system."

But Mrs. Farenthold said there must be a standard or guideline for judging results and added, "the guideline must continue to be 'reasonable relationship to their presence in the population' of women, youth and minorities."

"It would seem the task confronting the Democratic party at this juncture is to continue to expand the mandate embodied in the McGovern-Fraser reforms rather than to retreat and abandon the substantial gains made in 1972," she said.

"It is crucial that the Democratic party not overreact to the defeat of its national ticket by moving into the kind of political leadership which excludes traditional areas of Democratic support such as women, minorities, youth and rank and file workers."

April showers forecast rice and rings for them

Nancy Sarlas

An announcement is made of the engagement of Nancy Ann Sarlas, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John James Sarlas of Chicago, to Randall Robert Barth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert John Barth of Berwyn.

Nancy, now residing with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gene Brown of Rolling Meadows, is a recent graduate of Illinois Institute of Technology. Her fiancé is employed by Stewart Warner Corp., Chicago, and also attends IIT.

The couple became engaged last Sept. 9, the 22nd wedding anniversary of Mr.

Bonnie Liepitz

The engagement of a Roselle couple, Bonnie Liepitz and Randy B. Duncan, is announced by Bonnie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Liepitz. The wedding is set for Oct. 27.

Bonnie graduated from Lake Park High School and works for Homemakers Furniture in Schaumburg. Randy, son of the Norman H. Duncans, is a '71 graduate of Conant High now employed in Roselle by Maloney Plumbing.

and Mrs. Barth. Their wedding is planned for October in St. Colette Church, Rolling Meadows.

Diannie Ross

Diannie Marie Ross and Charles L. Healy are engaged and will be married Sept. 15, according to an announcement by Diannie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ross, 1329 Indigo Drive, Mount Prospect.

A '71 Hersey High School graduate, the bride-to-be works at Palwaukee Airport, Wheeling. Her fiancé, son of former Deerfield residents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Healy of Darien, Conn., is a pilot at Palwaukee Airport. He graduated in 1972 from Southern Illinois University with a degree in aviation management.

Maureen Callahan

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Callahan Jr. of Arlington Heights announce the engagement of their daughter Maureen Kathleen to Lloyd Eton Girdler of Rio, Ill. The pair will marry Aug. 25 in Our Lady of the Wayside Church, Arlington.

Maureen is a junior at Illinois State University but will continue her education in art and English at Monmouth College in fall. Her fiancé, a graduate of Blackhawk Junior College and Illinois State, is co-manager of a confinement production farm in Rio.

Deborah Balek

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Balek of 3707 Holly Lane, Rolling Meadows, announce the engagement of their daughter Deborah Ann to Stephen Joseph Regnier of Kankakee. Joseph's parents are the Russell Regniers.

The young couple have both attended Northern Illinois University. Deborah to graduate in August and her fiancé a January '73 graduate. She is studying special education and he was a history major.

Their wedding is planned for June 1974.

Karen Young

Karen Young's engagement to Jeffrey Sunderlin is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Young of Rolling Meadows. Jeffrey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Sunderlin of Chicago.

The couple is planning an August 1974 wedding.

A graduate of Forest View High School, Karen is a sophomore at Illinois State University majoring in special education. Jeffrey will graduate in June from Illinois State with a degree in physical education and will work on his master's.

'Y' Women's Auxiliary sets 13th annual luncheon date

Who's afraid of that unlucky number 13?

Not the Northwest Suburban YMCA Women's Auxiliary.

This is the auxiliary's 13th year, and plans are underway for a gala spring luncheon and program to culminate the volunteer group's activities.

The date is Wednesday, May 9, at Seven Eagles Restaurant in Des Plaines.

During luncheon the guests will be entertained by The Singing Strings, a group of Arlington Heights women who have been strumming guitars and singing together for area clubs and organizations.

AFTERWARDS Peter J. O'Reilly, management consultant, will give a talk on "How to Protect Yourself in the Clinches."

For the past eight years O'Reilly headed the Consumer Fraud Divisions of the Attorney General's Office of the State of Illinois and the State's Attorney's Office of Cook County. He now heads his own consulting firm.

Also during the afternoon program, the 'Y' volunteers will be awarded certificates and silver charms denoting 100, 200 and 1,000 hours of service. Most of the service is given in two-hour periods in the snack bar.

Guests are welcome to the luncheon as are any area women interested in the 'Y' auxiliary. Mrs. James Costello, Mount Prospect, is president; Mrs. Leonard Wander, Arlington Heights, is membership chairman.

Tickets can be obtained at the YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines, or from auxiliary board members.

Energy waste

NEW YORK (UPI)—Because of poor insulation, the typical American home is a "conspicuous and uncontrolled consumer of energy," according to C. E. Peck, vice president of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp.

"Important amounts of the nation's dwindling energy resources are literally escaping through the roofs and walls of the average home," said Peck.

The National Bureau of Standards, he noted, reports that proper insulation and construction practices in residential and commercial buildings could reduce the nation's total heating and cooling requirements by 40 to 50 per cent.

Spring festival Sunday

"Spring Thing," a needlework and craft festival, modeled after an old-fashioned country fair, will be held Sunday by Gamma Theta Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International. The Hoffman Estates Vogelei Park Barn, at the corner of Routes 58 and 72 is the site for the festival. There is no charge for admission, and hours will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Winning entries of the arts, crafts and needlework competition will be on display the day of the fair. The children's division winners are: first, Bobby Smithana, 11, Mount Prospect; and a tie for second place, Robby Keller, 7, Des Plaines, and Danny Simmons, 10, Mount Prospect.

INTERMEDIATE winners are Christine Schneider, 12, Des Plaines, first and third places, and Sherry Joy Libes, 14, Hoffman Estates, second place.

Adult needlework winners are: Lydia McCuiley, Hoffman Estates, first; Thelma Barr, Hanover Park second; Marjorie Bradley, Hoffman Estates, third; and honorable mention, Karen Komperda, Streamwood.

Tinwork, original jewelry, ceramics, oils on wood, ecology boxes, corn husk dolls, tote painting and decolite domes are just a few of the various booths at the fair. In addition, Thelma Barr will be giving quilting demonstrations after 12 noon.

GAMMA THETA will be featuring a rummage sale, handmade crafts, a bake sale, homemade soap, a Madam Alexander doll complete with wardrobe, a refreshment booth and a baby boutique.

All proceeds will go to the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Township Mental Health Center which serves the northwest suburbs in family and personal counseling. At this time, the center is functioning solely on donations from the community.

'Come as you are' to rose pruning show in garden

The annual rose pruning demonstration for District One of the Chicago Regional Rose Society, which covers this area, will include a contest for the "tackiest garden attire." A prize goes to the winner.

Those attending the 3 p.m. show Sunday at the Rudy Graff home, 1316 S. Chester St., Park Ridge, are encouraged to "come as you are." Old gardening clothes will be right in style as participants go outdoors to get the latest tips on pruning. All rose fanciers are welcome.

There is no charge, but telephone reservations are requested since the garden space is limited. Those interested should call Mrs. Graff at 823-3987.

EVEN THE CHILDREN will enjoy all the displays of needlework, other arts and crafts, and an assortment of sale booths Sunday at a "Spring Thing" hosted by Gamma Theta chapter of ESA International. Getting a preview are Stephanie Simmons and Tami Wu whose mothers are helping arrange the festival at Vogelei Park Barn, Hoffman Estates. The public is welcome.

Financial woes may often break marriage ties

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Countless problems contribute to the breakup of a marriage. But the real issues — according to a financial counselor — are often obscured by the shadow of one problem — money worries.

"Money woes far too frequently play a part in it," said William A. Reasoner, president of Waddell & Reed, Inc., a Kansas City-based firm which manages mutual funds nationwide.

He pointed to statistics predicting 1.5 million persons will become divorced this year and another 1.5 million will begin legal action towards divorce. The figures, he said, are four times the divorce rate 10 years ago.

"The sad part about these statistics is that many could have been alleviated, had the husband and wife given more thought to money management and sought proper counseling on how to avoid financial pitfalls," Reasoner said.

"Financial problems are often the hidden factors in marital dissolution. They just serve to camouflage the real reasons for dissent, to cloud important issues. Too many married couples simply are not equipped to cope with money problems."

THE FINANCIAL adviser said his points about seeking money management were not entirely self-serving. Ironically enough, he said, divorce is much more expensive than seeking financial advice.

"For young families, the sudden economic toll of divorce can be catastrophic," Reasoner asserted. "For older, more established families, the effect can be traumatic."

"Alimony and child support can devour one-half of a man's income and financial worth. And let us not forget the woman stretching the alimony dollar can be difficult for her. So everyone stands to suffer."

His advice? Before seeing the divorce lawyers, try to straighten out your budget problems. It could save both your marriage and your money.

Medical group's 3-day convention in St. Charles

April is the time of year when medical assistants throughout the state gather for their annual meeting and convention to elect officers. It is also an opportunity to hear educators and professionals lecture and exchange ideas.

This year's convention for the Illinois Society of the American Association of Medical Assistants is the coming weekend of April 27-29 at Pheasant Run Lodge in St. Charles.

Its theme is "Tomorrow's Galaxy," promising a star-studded program.

Three members of Northwest Cook County chapter will be delegates — Mrs. William Miller, Rolling Meadows; Mrs. Patrick McFadden, Wheeling; and Mrs. William Nelson, Schaumburg, president of the chapter.

Mrs. Nelson is also a candidate for second vice president of the Illinois Society and will be a hostess in the hospitality room the evening before the convention.

Charity helps

CHICAGO (UPI)—In its 1972 annual report, the National Easter Seal Society says contributions reached a new high of $47.9 million in 1971. The funds supported services to nearly a quarter million disabled persons in 1972. The Easter Seal Society is the oldest and largest voluntary agency in the country serving needs of the handicapped.

Designers' Showhouse opens April 30

This year's Designers' Showhouse sponsored by the Park Ridge School for Girls features a tour of The Continental House, otherwise known as "the big house with the little house inside."

The huge stone, brick and frame house with its luxurious guest facilities will be open Monday, April 30 to May 20 at 20 Locust Road, Winnetka, (northwest corner of Locust and Illinois). It boasts of fifteen rooms, five fireplaces and an eight-room guest house, adding up to a total of fourteen bedrooms.

The Showhouse is the sixth annual home tour arranged as a benefit by the women's boards of the Park Ridge School for Girls. This facility, which is also supported by the area Federated women's clubs, is a home for underprivileged and often emotionally disturbed girls from 12 to 18 years of age who come from all over the state.

EACH YEAR the boards choose an elegant home in the north suburban area and invite prominent members of the Chicago Chapter of the American Institute of Interior Designers to express their own ideas in a particular room.

Apricot is the major color of the Winnetka house, the designers using various contrasting colors to bring in a bright sunny day to all the rooms. One of the highlights is the meditation room designed by Bernard Nusinow. A serene room, its mood is for relaxing, listening to music and meditating.

THIS HOME was designed by H. King Clausen in 1936 and remodeled in 1971. It is listed for $315,000.

The public is invited to tour at $2.50 per ticket. They may be purchased at the door or in advance from Mrs. William Bendix of Wilmette, 258-4918. Hours are 10 to 3 daily, 7 to 9 Friday evenings, and noon to 4 Sundays.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We are being annoyed by earwigs coming into the house — actually just into one room. There is a compost pile fairly close to this room. Could this be where they are coming from? Are they dangerous? How can they be eliminated?

—Mrs. James Hopkins

There is no doubt but that the earwigs are coming from the compost pile. This is the type of food they feed on — debris, rotted leaves and so forth. They are not considered a dangerous insect, just annoying. They probably are attracted by the warmth of your home. You can spray diazinon, carbaryl or malathion across the surfaces of any entrance by which they come in. As of this writing, these insecticides are still on the shelves.

Dear Dorothy: Help! I have boarded a quart of pecans a little too long and they have a slightly rancid taste. Is there any way they can be made edible?

—Helen C.

As a rule, not. However, you might put them on a cookie sheet in a 400-degree oven for 10 minutes, turning them once or twice. You will have to then judge whether they are good enough to use.

Dear Dorothy: You've done it again. Had some stains on the car vinyl upholstery fluid took it off.

—Marilyn M.

Thank you. It was one of our men readers who provided this one.

Dear Dorothy: Did you know that piece of white bread will absorb odors in a refrigerator?

—Mamie D.

Never heard of this one. Dishes of either baking soda or activated charcoal granules do such a good job, I've stopped experimenting on this one.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

With dark skies threatening, Harper College's 14-foot-plus pole vaulter Tom Rambo warms up for big invitational which was stopped by rain.

Hersey golfers take 2nd in Champaign Invitational

by JIM COOK
Golf Editor

The countdown is on for the Hersey varsity golf team.

Having finished third at the Lake Park Invitational two weeks ago, the Huskies stormed to an impressive second-place slot in the talent-laden second annual Champaign Invitational.

Wheeling and Conant were the other two squads representing the Mid-Suburban League at the mammoth 27-team gathering won by Carmel of Mundelein.

The winners toured both the Orange and Blue Champaign courses in a sparkling 412 to edge the Huskies' 418 by six strokes. Conant nailed down a tie for 20th with 443 shots and Wheeling was two putts back in 22nd with 458.

"We went down with the intention of shooting 420 or better," Hersey head coach Ken Carter disclosed. "We figured if we shot better than 420, we'd accomplish our goal and be satisfied with whatever place we got."

The Huskies left a day earlier and fired a brilliant practice round of 406, but showers and a strong wind made the two 18-hole layouts extra tough.

"Both courses were playing long on Friday," Carter explained. "It rained for three days prior to the tournament and it was drizzling when the boys went out and when they came in."

Each school brought five players — two of whom tackled the tougher Orange Course and the other three challenging the Blue acreage.

Carter tabbed Ray Peterson and Jeff Kallman to play the Orange with Bruce Conroy, Cal Zimmerman and John Haas scheduled for the Blue.

"I don't know why, but it seems like we always get off to a slow start," Carter said. "We can't seem to get going on the first nine."

Peterson soared to 48, Kallman to 45, Conroy to 41, Haack to 43 and Zimmerman to 39 after nine holes, but after turning the corner, Peterson netted a 44, Kallman a 39, Conroy a 39, Haack a 39 and Zimmerman a 41.

Conroy and Zimmerman emerged as the Huskies' top shooters as each carded identical 80's on the Blue. Their efforts earned third-place medalist honors since only two other golfers managed to break 80.

Kallman, meanwhile, was the only linksman to break 40 on the back nine and his 84 was one of the top scores on the Orange.

Wheeling carded Mark Bull's 86 and John McDougall's 82 on the Orange to complement Dave Schultz' 86, Vince Allendorf's 89 and Rich Grossi's 85 on the blue.

The Cougars played consistently on both layouts as Dave Love and Kevin Eakins notched 85 and 83, respectively, on the Orange and Dave Domek 88, Bob Whiting 90 and Jim Gannon 92 on the Blue.

The Orange Course's meet medalist was Wheaton North's Dave Thornally who fired rounds of 38-43 for a 79 while the Blue champion was McNamara's Dennis Buck who notched a fine 78.

Rebels announce schedule; players, sponsors sought

The Northwest Rebels semi-pro baseball team has released an extensive schedule for this summer. At least 27 games, including 10 doubleheaders, are slated starting June 3.

Seventeen of the games will be on the Rebels' home field at Harper College, Algonquin & Roselle Roads, Palatine. Fifteen of the first 16 contests will be at home and the Rebels are not scheduled to play a road game until July 4 after the first 11 games at Harper.

The Rebels were born last year as an independent team of top college-aged players living in the Arlington Heights, Palatine and surrounding areas. Frank May is founder and coach and will be back to head the team this year. The Rebels will have the added incentive this time of competing in a league, the Greater Chicago division.

The squad posted a nifty 28-11 record in their first season of play and will have many of the same performers back, including May who is one of the top players as well as coach. He is a 1969 graduate of Forest View High School where he was a baseball standout and now attends Western Michigan University.

The main problem for the Rebels last year occurred not on the field, but in the bank account. They incurred a debt for uniforms which could not be paid off on time because, unfortunately, some sponsors who had promised money did not deliver. More sponsors and contributions are needed for this year so that boys older than 18 years of age may have an opportunity to compete.

Any interested players or sponsors should contact May at 537-7377. Those interested in playing should provide at least one baseball reference.

Fred Lussow to head Forest View football

A Dist. 214 product has taken over the head football assignment at Forest View High School.

Fred Lussow, 30, a three-sport star in his playing days at Prospect High, was named Friday to the head coaching position vacated when Paul Jordan became division head of the social science department at the new Buffalo Grove High School.

Lussow, who came to Dist. 214 in 1967 as a Wheeling coach, joined the Forest View staff in 1968, working with soph football and frosh basketball.

In 1969 he directed the junior-varsity football team at Forest View, continued with frosh basketball and added a track assignment to his duties.

He has continued to work in three sports but will concentrate now on his head coaching duties in football and his basketball assignment.

Lussow graduated from Prospect High in 1961. He was all-conference in football, basketball, and baseball and in football and basketball the Knights had state-ranked teams.

Lussow quarterbacked Prospect to an unbeaten football season in 1960 and was a guard in basketball on the Knight teams that won 47 games and lost only 4 in two seasons.

The new Forest View head coach graduated from Indiana University in 1965 after playing four years of football. He started in 30 straight games and ranked No. 3 in pass receptions as a senior in the Big 10.

In 1965-66 Lussow served as the frosh coach at Indiana under John Pont, the new head man at Northwestern.

Lussow, a resident of Arlington Heights for 28 years, and his wife Corrie have two sons, Eric 6 and Brett 2.

AT LAST — the tape! Prospect's Rich Reithal checks in after the grueling two-mile run, in which he placed second with 10:28.2 in a dual meet against Schaumburg. The Saxons' Arnie Jackson won in 9:59.2 and his team breezed, 88-39. (Photo by Jay Needleman)

Lions, Wagner post 6-1 victory

About the only weapon Immaculate Conception had against St. Viator junior pitcher Bob Wagner Friday was to stand still and not swing the bat.

I. C. wasn't hitting Wagner in this makeup, non-conference matchup. He yielded just two hits in a fine six-inning stint. Wagner did experience some control problems, walking seven with one strikeout, but had plenty of stuff to rack up a 6-1 victory, with reliever Dave Hutcheson retiring the last three batters in order in the seventh.

The win boosted St. Viator's overall record to 5-1 and the Lions of coach Pat Mahoney are 3-1 in the Suburban Catholic Conference East Division. Their only loss was by the same 6-1 score Thursday to undefeated SCC leader Notre Dame. The Lions were rained out of a scheduled game at Orr Saturday.

Offensive highlights of the victory over Immaculate Conception were triples by Steve Bobowski and Frank Cliggett as the Lions took control early.

Bobowski's three-bagger got a two-run rally started in the first inning. Bob Foster singled him in and also scored when Cliggett's triple followed.

Another run was added in the second when Mark Rickerson walked, stole second, took third on a single by Steve Bobowski and scored on a wild pitch.

St. Viator took a 5-0 lead in the fourth when Ed Collins reached base on an error, moved to second on a walk and to third on a fielder's choice by Tom Chapman, and both scored on Wagner's base hit.

The final tally scored in the sixth when an error put Collins on second, he went to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a wild pitch.

Immaculate Conception's only score resulted from a walk, two wild pitches and a fielder's choice.

If area fields dry fast enough after the weekend's downpours, the Lions are scheduled for games on four consecutive days this week — at St. Francis Tuesday (4:00), at Prosser Wednesday (3:30), at home against Marist Thursday (4:00) and at Barrington Friday (4:15). St. Francis and Marist are conference opponents.

Hersey, Palatine roll on; St. Viator hits sharp 147

by JIM COOK
Golf Editor

Two teams remained unbeaten in the Mid-Suburban League golf standings after a light schedule Thursday that included only one league meet.

Defending conference champion Prospect, a one-time loser in loop play this season, dropped Elk Grove from the undefeated ranks, 160-179. Hersey and Palatine are the only two clubs still boasting unblemished records, but that will be remedied Friday in a showdown with Prospect.

St. Viator and Forest View played the best they have all year, but the Lions emerged nine strokes superior, 147-156.

And youthful Rolling Meadows, having already won more meets this season than it had in 1972, nipped Notre Dame, 168-160.

KNIGHTS THROTTLE GRENS

Prospect's depth emerged as the decisive factor against Elk Grove. A quartet of Knights were within two strokes of each other while the Grenadiers found 10 shots separating their first and fourth players.

Rich Carlson showed the way for Prospect with a four-over-par 39 on the Mount Prospect Country Club front nine layout, but both Rich Reed and Norm Schwartz were one shot back with 40's. Bob Horwath contributed the Knights' final counter with a 41 while Craig Ridley carded a 44.

Elk Grove's Keith Moore continued to enjoy spring success by sharing medalist honors with a 39. Mark Christensen, however, was the Grenadiers' second man with a 44, Scott Walker third with a 47 and Mark Okuma fourth with a 49. Todd Gander's 54 didn't figure in the scoring.

Prospect made it a sweep as the frosh-soph Knights upended the Grenadiers, 166-168 behind identical 40's by Steve Spellmann and Pete Lund.

LIONS BLISTER FALCONS

Forest View's 156 would probably have beaten 90 per cent of the teams in the state, but it just wasn't enough against St. Viator on the Lions' home course at Rob Roy.

Viator's incredible 147 was derived from a pair of 36's by Tom McEnerney and Ken Rech — both of whom navigated the course just one stroke over par.

Larry Peifer contributed important support with a 37 and Mick Fitton clicked for a 38 as all four Lions eclipsed the magic 40 mark.

Bill Fitton came home next for Viator with a 40 while Kevin Hanigan carded a 42 and Marty Fenton a 44.

Forest View's effort was spiced by Gary Mayer's nifty 38, a set of 39's by Greg Martindale and Todd McDonald and a trio of 40's by Rick Keyser, Ron Romack and Paul Snyder.

Danny Meier's 41 was high score for the Falcons whose overall balance could not be surpassed.

MUSTANGS GALLOP TO RECORD

Rolling Meadows established a new school varsity low in registering its fine 166. Consistency was the key to the Mustangs' triumph as its top five scorers were bunched within two strokes of each other.

Todd Sander and Tom Carlstrom found their home Buffalo Grove surroundings to their liking as each toured the front nine, par 36 challenge in 41 shots.

Carl Schweikert and Tom Schramm signed scorecards with 42's with John Stahl just one more stroke back at 43.

Meadows duplicated its two stroke margin of victory on the frosh-soph level in earning a sweep for the day, 166-168. Jeff Stevens and Pete Aceto paced the lower-level triumph with 44's.

Entries pour in for International meet

"If the first three dozen entries indicate anything, it looks as if June 9 will be showdown day for the top senior athletes in the country."

Meet Director Joe Newton smiled as he commented on the flood of entries coming into his offices nearly two months before the second annual International Prep Invitational Track and Field meet is held at Prospect High School.

"We had a great inaugural last year," said Newton, "and our entries have been coming in at an absolutely fantastic rate this year. It's the meet the athletes want to run in."

The meet, sanctioned by the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, will be run on the eight-lane Unifroyal track. In addition, there will be a coaches smoker and an international coaching clinic offering three hours of graduate credit.

Some 18 states are now represented with the cream of an unusually strong crop of foreign athletes competing against the top seniors in this country.

The roster of entrants following includes their best performances during their junior year unless otherwise noted.

Palatine, Fremd remain unbeaten in MSL track

Track & Field Editor

One commercial says, "The more things change, the more they stay the same." That seems to be applying so far in Mid-Suburban League track.

Plenty of things have changed in the last decade or so, including the local sports scene, but in track one thing seems to remain constant. You can always count on Palatine being at or near the top of the MSL track standings, and village neighbor Fremd always seems to make a strong showing also.

That situation has held in the early part of this spring. Palatine is perched on top with a 4-0 record, Fremd stands 3-0, and a third District 211 school — Schaumburg — plus Hersey are right behind at 3-1. Elk Grove also continues to Grove over Forest View 93-34, Wheeling over Rolling Meadows 69-60 and Glenbard North over Conant 76-53.

The Pirates' Fitzgerald, who seems to have again recovered from a knee problem, won the 100-yard dash and both hurdles events. His most impressive time was :20.3 in the 180 low hurdles. In the conference, that has been topped only by Jensen's 20.0 for Elk Grove.

Jensen reached that mark for the second time Thursday and also ran a fine :15.4 in the 120 high hurdles, though that was second to a standout :15.1 by teammate Steve Busse. In the same event, Mark Kleiner set a new Hersey record with :15.3. Other fine low hurdles times were :20.5 by Palatine's Dave Bailey and :21.4 by Kleiner for another first.

Probably the most single notable event was the 100-yard dash for Elk Grove. In sweeping it, the Greens recorded three of the best area times, including the very fastest thus far — 10-flat by Lawson. Don Weedley followed with :10.2 and Scott Dorsey had :10.3.

Finis again flexed his muscles with the longest distances of the day in both the shot put (57-9, a quarter-inch off his area-leading effort) and discus throw (150-8½). Finis also holds the top discus mark in the area, 159-0.

Palatine's Jim Grab was also a double winner in the same events with 49-9 and 140-11. There were several other fine shot puts — 55½ by Wheeling's Bill Cholebek, 54½ by Rolling Meadows' John Sloan, 50-2 by Forest View's Rich Novak and 49-7 by Conant's Russ Windholz.

Steve Balogh of Meadows was easily the high jump leader of the day with 6-2, a half-inch from the MSL best which he also achieved.

In the pole vault, Arlington's Dave Hillert and Wheeling's Bill Pickler led with 12-6 apiece, Fremd sophomore Mike Vasquez hit 12-3, and there were four boys at 12-0 — Dave Auge of Arlington, Paul Lundquist of Wheeling, and Doug Paape and Scott Clark of Conant.

Palatine turned in the top mile relay time of 3:30.8, second only to Hersey's area peak of 3:29.0.

A Pirate sophomore, Chuck Bell, had the top half-mile time (second-best in the area) with a standout 1:59.4 and teammate Tom Glenn was clocked in 2:01.5. Fremd's Dave Scott had 2:01.2.

Quarter-mile leader was Hersey's Chris Cooney with :51.9 and next was Arlington's Mike Dolinajec with :52.2.

Finally, the best runners in the first event of each meet — the two-mile run — were Arlington's Tom Holub with 9:38.5, Palatine's Dave Teble with 9:39.3 and Hersey's Jay McCarthy with 9:47.2. Leading area mark so far is 9:29.0 by Schaumburg's Arnold Jackson.

Cards explode; rip Hersey, 11-1

Arlington broke into the conference win column explosively Friday, unleashing a 13-hit attack against visiting Hersey to dominate a makeup tilt 11-1.

The contest was prompted by a 4-4 stalemate the previous evening after eight innings of play.

Greg Hauptly poked and pitched the Cards to victory in the rematch, collecting three hits, driving in three and scoring twice and limiting the Huskies to five safeties while going the route to net his team's first league win after a pair of setbacks.

The hosts were already well ahead when Brian Nelson broke up Hauptly's shutout with a double to left field. Nelson had seen his own decision go down the drain Thursday when Arlington rallied in the bottom of the seventh with two outs to close up a 4-2 deficit.

Bob Marzec was the victim of most of the Cardinal fireworks Saturday before being lifted from the hill in the sixth stanza.

Arlington struck for a trio of tallies in the second inning on back-to-back singles by John Dillon and Dan Cunningham, Wayne Geyer's sacrifice, Hauptly's base hit scoring Dillon and Jeff Heidenson's two-run single.

In the third a couple of Hersey errors and a wild pitch accounted for one run and Hauptly singled in another to boost the Card lead to 5-0.

Hersey came up with their lone score in the top of the fourth. Steve Arneri was plunked with a pitch and came all the way around and in moments later on Nelson's two-bagger.

The Redbirds promptly retaliated in their half of the fourth on Bobby Harth's base hit, a free pass to George Vukovich, another wild fling and Dave Sherrow's sacrifice fly. In the next inning they put three more runs on the board after two were out on consecutive singles by Hauptly, Heidenson, Harth and Darwin Townsend.

Hauptly came in on a wild pitch, Harth singled in Heidenson and netted one of his three stolen bases to move into scoring position for Townsend's one-base rap during that fifth inning outburst.

For good measure Arlington added another pair of runs in the sixth. Dillon poked a leadoff double and was singled in by Brian Deevy. Deevy advanced on a stolen base and an out and was driven home on Hauptly's sacrifice fly.

The setback was Hersey's second in as many conference tries. Arlington is now 2-2 overall.

GARY PLAYER'S GOLF CLASS:

Mid-Suburban tennis highlights

Cards, Knights sweep 5-0; Hersey, Conant win by 4-1

Tennis Editor

Four conference meets and one non-conference affair made for nearly a full afternoon for Mid-Suburban League tennis. Only Wheeling was idle.

Two shutouts were recorded, a pair of 4-1 victories and a near-miss win.

CARDS BEAT RAIN, PIRATES

Palatine was scheduled to host Arlington, but rain met the teams at the Palatine Hills Golf Club courts.

So the Pirates and the Cardinals moved the meet to Arlington and dry courts. The "new" visitors could only manage 11 game wins in losing 5-0 to the unbeaten Cards.

The easy victory came like this:

Jim Merket over Matt Borman 6-2, 6-1; John Paczkowski over Steve Snyder 6-2, 6-0; Rex Miller and Craig VanGorp over Andy Hazel and Lew Sevey 6-0, 6-0; and Dave Mack and Todd Reese over Dave Bals and Fred Hoegler 6-3, 1-1.

The younger Cards matched the varsity's score.

KNIGHTS STAY TOUGH

Only once in the meet with visiting

Schaumburg did Prospect have problems before rolling to a 5-0 victory. Mike Passaglia, playing third singles, pushed Spencer three sets before losing 6-4, 6-4, 2-4.

The rest of the Knights only lost eight games en route to straight set wins:

Mark Meves over Mike O'Laughlin 6-0, 6-1; Rob Zimmanek over Pete Viohl 6-1, 6-1; Jeff Risteen and Charles Clemis over Jim Brennan and Ed Amatis 6-0, 6-1; and Steve Ristow and John Waters over Drew Kron and Gary Wright 6-2, 6-2.

The same score was rolled up by the Prospect frosh-soph team.

HUSKIES NEAR PERFECT

Fremd may have thought it was off to a fast start when see Viking Chris Laffey defeated Dave Schunk, Hersey's No. 1 man, 6-3, 6-4. But that was the last win.

The Huskies registered all the rest like this:

Keith Rayner over Rich Courtney 6-2, 6-2; Mark Jonsson over Mike Lincoln 6-4, 4-6, 8-6; Alan Myers and John Hastings over Tom Jensen and Bob Norris 6-4, 7-5; and John Walsworth and Bruce McAllister over Mitch West and Dan Seeley 7-5, 6-2.

The Vikings managed a 3-2 victory on the frosh-soph level.

COUGARS CRUSH FALCONS

Only a victory at third singles prevented a Conant sweep over hosting Forest View. Forest View's Charles Cooksey spoiled the visitors' hopes by beating Rob Wade 6-3, 6-2.

The rest of the Cougars came through with straight set victories:

Buddy Edmondson over Joe Karwinski 6-1, 6-1; Marty Rohr over Greg Meyer 6-1, 6-0; Bruce Koehler and Kurt Eckert over Jeff Aubert and Chris Phillips 7-5, 7-5; and Eric Burseth and Vince Kirby over Dave Jacob and Randy Router 6-4, 8-6.

Forest View salvaged the day with a 3-2 win.

GRENS JUST MISS

The first and second singles players came through for Elk Grove against non-conference opponent Addison Trail, but the rest did not as the Grebs went down to a 3-2 loss.

Len Greenberg beat Archie Neil 6-1, 6-4. Second singles player Ken Pollitz handed Bill Harms 6-3, 6-2.

Grove setbacks came like this:

Dan Jarka and Gary Keyes over Tom Gurnack and Bill Hatzold 6-3, 6-2; Mark Laine and Kevin Block over Duane Silkwitz and Neil Nishihira 6-4, 6-2; and Kerry Hong over Bruce Kinn 6-4, 6-3.

The Grenadiers won the frosh-soph meet by a 4.5 to 0.5 count.

Harper enjoys net profit

Harper College had a very profitable tennis week in the Skyway Conference.

The Hawks of Coach Roy Kearns just got by Triton, 4-3, and hammered Lake County, 7-0.

Kearns had to be worried when his top three singles players went down to defeat at the hands of Triton. Paul Stevens lost to Ken Skopek

Brosnan wins but Demons lose fifth

Tim Brosnan scored Maine East's only team point last Thursday as the Blue Demons were defeated, 4-1, in varsity tennis by Glenbrook South. Maine is now 0-5.

Playing at second singles, Brosnan was a 7-6 and 7-5 winner over Preston Cobb.

At first singles, Maine East's Bob Weidner was defeated, 6-2 and 6-3, by Dave Snyder. Dave Mozdren lost, 6-4 and 6-3, to Glenbrook's Rich Salter.

In first doubles action, East's Bill Jensen and Ed Passen went down by identical 6-1 scores to Curt Anstett and Bob Mabley.

Glenbrook's Chuck Vogl and Bill Iversen were 6-1 and 6-0 winners over Kent Silbert and John Cwaygel at second doubles.

Maine East will travel to Niles East on Tuesday afternoon and then host Maine North two days later.

Barrington defeats St. Viator netmen

St. Viator might have made the final score closer than what it was, but darkness blanketed the Lions' courts Thursday against Barrington. The Brochos won the tennis meet 3-1.

Tom Wenzel was the only Lion who was able to solve the Barrington serves. He bested Eric Fischer 6-1, 6-2 in first singles.

Barrington's victories came like this: Mike Gostogarek over Mike Revnes 6-3, 4-6, 6-2; Mark Richter and Regan Rome over Bruce Fischer and Russ Fliton 6-5, 6-1; and Jeff Hulz and Mark Griese over Don Barnak and Jim Bernardini 6-4, 6-4.

The third singles match was stopped by darkness.

Barrington's frosh-soph team won 3-1.

Elk Grove hockey

The Elk Grove Village Amateur Hockey Association Midlets concluded their season with one win and two losses in the final week.

Elk Grove defeated Des Plaines 3-1. Jim Samuels scored the first goal assisted by Bob Morita and Ron Cleavek. Tom Balcer scored the second, assisted by Mike Tucker. Goske scored the third goal unassisted.

Elk Grove lost to Wilmette 4-1. Elk Grove outshot Wilmette 38-15 but could not score until Ron Cleavek scored assisted by Mark Christensen and Rob Goske.

Elk Grove was upset by Elmhurst 3-2. Jim Samuels scored the first goal assisted by Morita and Cleavek. Mike Tucker scored the second goal assisted by Cleavek and Goske.

The Elk Grove Midlets concluded their best season so far with a record of 29 wins 14 losses and 7 ties.

Elk Grove started slow, splitting their first six games, then put it together compiling a record of 26 wins 2 losses and 7 ties in their next 29 games. Then tragedy struck as all-star defenseman Bill Halpeny suffered a broken ankle which put him out for the season.

Elk Grove slumped to a 6-9 record in the final 15 games. Elk Grove's success was contributed mainly to the tremendously unselfish attitude of the players, and the desire of each and every player, instilled by Capt. Bill Halpeny and Alternates — Rob Goske, Larry Ritsch and Ron Cleavek.

Goal-tending was a strong position all year, led by Steve Cimino and Larry McDermott. The scoring was balanced:

	Goals	Asst	Pts
Mitch	39	26	65
Goske	17	32	49
Cleavek	23	25	48
Christensen	22	21	43
Brunn	19	29	39
Balcer	16	22	38
Rodwell	11	22	23
Tucker	9	23	22
Halpeny	9	23	22
Samuels	13	16	29
Morita	8	21	29
Danka	6	18	24
Lamanita	4	17	21
Gustafson	8	12	20

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is LONGFELLOW

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Herald Newspaper does not knowingly accept HELP WANTED ads that indicate a preference based on age from employers covered by the AGE DISCRIMINATION IN EMPLOYMENT ACT. HELP WANTED headings directed specifically toward either men or women are used merely for the convenience of our readers, to let them know which jobs have historically been more attractive to persons of one sex than the other. The placement of an ad under a heading is not in itself an expression of a preference, limitation, specification or discrimination based on sex. For further information contact the Wage and Hour Division Office of U.S. Department of Labor at 4032 N. Milwaukee Ave., Chicago, Illinois. Telephone (312) 736-2909.

UPS 'N DOWNS NEEDS MANAGERS

For their great expansion program. Manager trainees needed right away who can relocate to any section of the eastern half of the U.S. Local applications also accepted. Ups 'n Downs, America's most unorthodox female junior sportswear chain now operates over 57 stores with 20 new stores opening in '73. If you are over 20 years of age, able to model junior sizes 3-13, not afraid of hard work, and want to be continuously recognized for your efforts, then you are qualified and this is the company for you. Those with retail experience and/or retail education will be considered first. After a short observation period, applicant will be flown to our managers training school-store in Louisville, Kentucky. All expenses paid for 4-8 weeks of accelerated training, then to management of one of our stores. Advancement after this to Area Supervisor of 3-5 Ups 'n Downs stores comes fast for real volume producers. Ups 'n Downs managers make $130 and 1/2 per cent of store's volume paid weekly; our average manager makes upwards of $8,500-year. You know if you are this person, so don't waste our time if you aren't. Write with complete resume to Gayle Daves, District Supervisor, Woodfield Mall, E132 Schaumburg, Illinois 60172. ## 'Spray more,' reader urges

Dear Charles Willis, Elk Grove Village manager:

I am writing to you for some information on our problem of mosquitos. All of us realize that the abundance of mosquitos has doubled since the summer before last. I would like to know why the village of Elk Grove has not sprayed as much as they used to. I know that we had had a very damp summer, but if our village had sprayed more often the mosquitos would not have been so plentiful. To my knowledge our village sprayed about once out of every two months, and when they did it was a very small amount of pesticide. Is there some reason why our village hasn't sprayed more often? It apparently can't be because of the pollution, because the Village doesn't seem to mind about the exhausts coming out of the United Steel Company, in the Centex Industrial Park. Is it because of the shortage of funds? Now that the Vietnam War is over the taxes could be put into local needs, such as the mosquito abatement. I know it sounds like a small problem, but many problems arise from the mosquitos. Some mosquitos carry a disease, which gives dogs, when they are bitten, heartworms. This disease is very deadly to dogs.

'Taxes wasted' on program

'Zoom' campaign blasted

I think our code of ethics is going downhill when people can think a letter-writing campaign is worthy of praise where children have been duped into participating, and that's exactly what the Zoom letter-writing campaign was all about.

I, for one, along with my children, have often wondered how Zoom was able to stay on the air this long. We feel the program was a very poor attempt at trying to be equal in worth to such similar programs as Sesame Street and The Electric Company, so you can see why I wasn't pleased to find out that in school my children were asked to write a letter to keep the program on the air. I'm glad to say that my children knew they were being asked to support something they didn't believe in and would not take part. However, since children like to please their teachers on such matters, how many other children said no when asked to write? More important, how many really knew what they were supporting when they said yes? Also, how many parents who feel as I do, even knew about this writing campaign until days later when it was too late to discuss the issue with their children?

Mrs. Rankin seems to think the President is taking special privileges; however, I happen to think that educators and the small minority like herself are taking too many privileges which they have no right to when they feel free to use unsuspecting children as they have.

I for one didn't know that Zoom was supported by our taxes, but since it is, only letters from adult taxpayers should be taken into consideration on this matter. I am tired of seeing my taxes being wasted but I'm even more disturbed at the attempts of adults to use my children for their own purposes and then probably get away with it besides.

'Adventures' are 'garbage'

I think I've just about had it with Laseke Disposal Co. with their "Adventures of your Garbage" program.

Either they want Arlington Heights as an account or they don't. They certainly don't have to play the Big Martyr of Arlington Heights by comparing what other communities are paying for their garbage pickups and saying that they are underpaid. They sound like a bunch of cry babies, which I think they are.

What about all the communities that do not have to pay for garbage pickup? How come we never hear about them? They only choose to write about the ones that pay more.

And what about their men forgetting to take all the garbage out of our cans? And about some of their men collecting with a can of beer in their hands, and how our garbage has to be gift wrapped before they will collect it.

I guess I'm sick and tired of hearing them complain and it sounds like a one-sided affair. If they don't want the job, they should come right out and say it.

The statement in the April 2 paper really got to me. "But... I guess you can't have everything."

What they are doing is insulting our intelligence and crying on our shoulders.

She praises Rausch

I am proud to say that I campaigned for John Rausch in his bid for park commissioner of Hoffman Estates. Being a resident of the Knolls, I am quite pleased with the votes John received here, 112 for John, 121 for the resident from the Knolls. However, the Herald's description of John's defeat was unfortunate. I do not consider a nine vote loss "out-classed," as your paper implied. The reverse should be said. John outclassed the other candidates with his tireless devotion to the parks. John lost; so did the people of Hoffman Estates.

'Let mother decide'

Which is more appalling? The death of two little girls, or an unwanted child never being born? Again, which is worse, a child physically scarred for life by parents who beat him, or possibly worse, emotionally scarred by a broken home and bad marriage between two people who "had" to get married; or, a last ditch method of birth control by a woman who obviously disdains motherhood at the present?

The time has come to face facts, lily-white suburbanites not all babies are planned and brought into loving families. Not all parents-to-be anxiously await the "pitter patter of little feet." If a woman knows she does not want a child, and prefers to have an abortion, I say, let her have it! Surely she knows better than anyone else how equipped for the trials of motherhood she is.

And as a rebuttal to those who say abortion is not civilized: Isn't elimination before birth much more civilized than maiming or killing a child after it has been born?

Sales tax relief bill supported

A story on the business page of the Herald Thursday, April 12, described opposition by the Illinois Retail Merchants Association to H.B. 634 which would lower the sales tax on food and prescription drugs by two cents on the dollar.

As president of Health, Inc., an association of privately owned nursing homes, and as administrator of Magnus Farm, I would like to reiterate my support and that of our organization for this bill.

Persons on low incomes, particularly the elderly, desperately need tax relief in this period of soaring food prices. These persons made our nation what it is today — their tax dollars built our schools, highways and hospitals. But their use of these facilities is greatly reduced, while their tax burden continues.

It is an inescapable fact that the lower a person's income, a higher percentage of his income is spent on food and other items subject to sales tax. This is akin to

'Meat boycott's not the best way'

This morning's paper (April 5) read: 20,000 men laid off due to the meat boycott and more to come. Radio and TV news tell us this plant closing and that plant cut back and farmers are withholding beef. Prices are still high.

How sad, how sad. To think men are being deprived of their livelihood, wages are smaller and less money is there for family living and life. Yes, even being deprived of one day's wages in this level of economy today is quite a hardship.

Is the boycott really that important or needed when the end results are so serious to so many? How many of these boycotters are honestly and truly not eating meat this week or next? I do not feel it is many or even a slight majority. What about the meat in your freezers, ladies, is this what you used up last week?

Yesterday, oranges I paid 98 cents for six last week were $1.18 for six this week (I did not buy them), coffee in the one pound can was $1.13, lettuce two for 49 cents a head (small) and tomatoes were almost 20 cents apiece. How about boycotting all food? It's not only meat that upsets the food budget, it's all the food and items on the grocer's shelves! Milk increase coming up! Bread increase due soon.

Have you stopped and thought about the amount of grain exported by President Nixon? That grain could have been sold to farmers for cattle raising, in turn keeping the farmers' costs down. I have reached the point where I believe and feel it's our President and government who are creating these high prices and the farmer, packer, butcher, chain store or food packer, cannery or dairy farmers are not wholeheartedly to blame.

What can we do to stop this excessive exporting and inflation at home? There must be a better way than creating unemployment by picketing, boycotting and rabble-rousing. Write a letter campaign to Washington and state politicians could be a first step.

In the end we will pay these high prices — we have to, we must eat.

Mr. J. Johnson

More physicians needed

Dear Senator Charles Percy, R-Ill.:

During the past decade our country's population has reached a peak, totalling over 200 million people in 1970. With this increase in population there is also an increase in the need for medical care and doctors.

In the United States I understand there now to be a shortage of at least 50,000 doctors. How can a country possibly strive to provide for the health, safety and well-being of its people by allowing this shortage to reach such a large total?

We cannot solve this problem by forcing students to go into medicine, but we can help by providing the opportunity for those who wish to go into this field to be able to study. I understand that within the past year some 20,000 applicants, many well qualified, were denied acceptance into medical schools simply because of lack of space. How can a country as prosperous as ours allow this to happen?

I have read in the March issue of Changing Times magazine that this year three new medical schools are scheduled to open throughout the United States. It is not nearly enough. Changing Times also pointed out that Congress has authorized the financing of five new schools. But as yet, no one has released the funds to build them. Why is this so? If these schools could be financed, built and opened it would provide the space needed for many more qualified medical school applicants to study. This would help restore a more reasonable balance between population and doctors.

I would appreciate it if you could help us, the people, get these funds that were promised for the building of these schools, to correct this inequity.

He blasts reader's anti-war 'cliches'

I had hoped that with the return of the last ex-POW, we might end some of the basic dialogue on Vietnam. Yet in a few short paragraphs, a writer to your paper of April 5 has regurgitated for print the Clark-Fonda cliches of "inhumane involvement," "policeman of the world," "Country right or wrong," "needless slaughter,"... ad nauseum.

In describing the war strategies employed the writer spoke "definitely" and "quite frankly" of it as a game of chess. Well, I'm not sure of his rule book on chess but I am sure that quite frankly I've never read so much bunk.

He also quoted the Bible about not raising swords against one another. Indeed, right on! It takes more than a sword nowadays to defend the lives of your loved ones be they at home or abroad.

The previous critic also noted our brutal participation in what was actually civil war. Let's see now, what was the tonnage of Chinese and Russian weaponry shipped last week to Vietnam?

Finally, he belittled Mr. Nixon's policy. Let me tell you, Nixon was the only President who ever fought that war as a war.

Seriously, all that I can relate about Vietnam is what I've heard, read, or observed first hand while serving in Vietnam as a captain in the Med Serv Corps. In essence, the South Vietnamese are genuinely grateful for U.S. involvement.

I have attempted to discuss the critic's words rather than the critic. However I would like to leave words for him to ponder. A philosopher named Theophrastus once said "Blessed is the man who, having nothing to say, abstains from giving in words evidence of the fact."

Bring back the death penalty!

I think President Nixon should bring back the death penalty for such crimes as killing a federal officer or peddling drugs to youngsters and/or other crimes.

In my opinion, there have been more crimes in the news since the death penalty was ruled unconstitutional. The President should have it brought back because there has been about a 25 per cent increase in crime over the past 10 years.

President Nixon could have the Constitution amended to fit the death penalty if it was what he really wanted.

'Israel a lively democracy'

As I have only just seen the articles by Tom Tiede which appeared in your March 16 issue, may I be permitted a belated comment.

Alas, Mr. Tiede appears not to have seen the wood for the trees. He describes the suffering of the Arab refugees in Lebanon and other Arab "host" countries, but seems to ignore or to accept as justified the fact that this is the direct result of a calculated policy designed to keep alive hatred and hope for war. He also fails to mention the fact that these were not the only refugees of the 1948 Israel-Arab conflict. A similar number of Jews were forced to flee from the Arab countries. However, while the Arab states, in a deliberate act, have made no effort to absorb their brothers, who are denied even the formal gesture of citizenship, Israel has fully integrated her refugees.

In the article on Israel, Mr. Tiede seems to base his impressions largely on the views of a disgruntled tourist. The fact is that Israel is anything but a militaristic monolith. With a dozen political parties vying for power it is as lively a democracy as any. There was certainly no unanimity of views on the tragic downing of the Libyan plane anymore than there is unanimity over the future of the territories controlled by Israel since 1967. Is it not amply significant that an Army officer should feel free to say to a visiting newsmen, the "heresies" attributed to Lt. Kissel?

The fundamental fact overlooked by Mr. Tiede is that peace could come to the Middle East tomorrow if the Arab leaders would only renounce the statement made by Azzam Pasha, then Secretary General of the Arab League, on May 15, 1948, the day the State of Israel was born: "This will be a war of extermination and a momentous massacre which will be spoken of like the Mongolian massacres and the Crusades."

Thank you

On behalf of the Advisory Council to The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, I'd like to thank those persons who made our annual dinner meeting, April 7, such a great success.

Our first thanks go to the people who attended the dinner. Their support of our agency is important in helping to maintain the Center's vital services to the Northwest suburbs.

A special thanks to Gov. and Mrs. Dan Walker for gracing our dinner with their presence and to the Governor for the commentary he offered in support of The Salvation Army and its services in our area.

Thanks are also extended with special feelings to Robert Kopecky of Nelson's Boy Florist, Palatine, and to Mrs. JoAnn Hoste of The Brass Rail Restaurant, Arlington Heights. The professionalism, care and quality they demonstrated through their businesses helped greatly in making the event successful for those who planned it and enjoyable for those who attended.

My personal gratitude is extended to all who, through serving on the dinner committee, helped make the event successful.

'Protect park'

Your recent article reporting on the request by the Boys Club for a 15 year lease on Chino Park brought out points of concern to any parent in this area. Apparently the issue became a political football for the elections and it should not have been one. For over eight years the Boys Club has offered programs to the youth of the area at the Chino Park site under a lease arrangement with the village.

Should the area now be turned over to another body and the Boys Club lease not be renewed, there is no alternate facility for the Boys Club program. To acquire land and build a new one would require a substantial financial investment. A burden that a non-profit organization such as the Boys Club could not bear. In effect, it would eliminate a valuable resource from the community.

The article suggested that the village could offer a lease with a termination clause at the discretion of the village.

This is not a lease, but a rental agreement holding eviction over the head of the tenant. Despite the reimbursement for improvements suggested by the village in the event of termination, our area would suffer from the loss of this program.

The Boys Club proposal for an expanded program would benefit this community in many ways. Obviously private improvements, in the public interest, at low tax dollars to be channeled into areas where private groups are not active. And taxes are of concern to every property owner, with or without children.

I would hope that other parents would make their views known to the board, whether they agree or disagree with my point of view. The board's actions have far reaching effects that are too often overlooked.

Meet The Herald Sharpshooters!

What distinguishes Herald news photographers from other professional photographers?

It could be the ability to focus on a subject so sharply that even the smallest details are clearly outlined. Or maybe the know-how so essential for selecting the correct lens and film for any type of shot: still or action, day or night, close or distant. Or perhaps the difference lies in manipulating light and angle to obtain good contrast and tone.

While all these skills are important, The Herald photographer must develop his talents one step further than other professionals into the realm of photo-journalism. As a visual reporter, he uses his camera to mirror life much the same way a writer uses words. Whether the assignment is a fireman battling a building engulfed in flames or a wide-eyed child watching a chick hatch, the photo-journalist must identify with the situation. He must find the story angle that will make the picture fresh, different and interesting. At a split-second peak of drama, he must capture on film what words alone cannot express, that unique combination of hard-core news and human emotion.

The Herald staff of experienced photographers (The Sharpshooters, as we call them here) accept and meet the challenges of their job every day to bring you top photo coverage of community news. Their talents have not gone unnoticed—they have averaged nearly 100 awards a year in state and national competition.

We're proud to have you meet The Herald Sharpshooters:

Hawthorn, Swanson projects to be weighed

Annex vote tonight could add 5,000 people, 240 acres

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove Village Board tonight will vote on two annexations that could bring almost 5,000 persons and 240 acres into the village. It is expected to approve the annexations.

The first project, the 124-acre Hawthorn development, has been proposed for an area directly north of the Lake-Cook county line, east of Weiland Road. It will house about 4,000 persons.

The second project, the 40-acre Swanson development would be constructed at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights and Checker roads. It will house about 900 persons.

Next to the Hawthorn development, a 60-acre tract adjoining the Soo Line R.R. tracks is also expected to be annexed for future industrial development. A 16-acre corridor, for which there are no construction plans at present, will also be annexed to connect the rest of the land with the village limits. Joining the land with part of the village is required by law.

A PUBLIC hearing on the project, which will take about five years to complete was held last week before the village board. The board voted to direct Village Atty. Richard Raysa to prepare the final annexation agreement.

The developers of the Hawthorn property, Tekton Corp. and the Richards Group told the village board they wanted "total flexibility" in varying the types of units to be constructed. The developers, however, compromised after the board said it would not accept the project without some control over the kinds of units built.

The developers said they need some flexibility in case one or more of the types of units fail to sell as planned.

The development, as planned, will contain 1,234 individually owned units, consisting of 288 apartments, 522 townhouses and 124 multi-plex units.

The village board has agreed to allow the developers to vary the units to include no fewer than 80 apartments, 200 townhouses and 250 multi-plex units. This will allow them to vary the units by as much as 70 per cent from original plans.

THE PLAN commission, which approved the project several weeks ago, recommended the board allow more than a 10 per cent variance.

The plan commission also suggested the board allow the developers only a 10 per cent variation from original plans in the number of one, two and three-bedroom units. The board made no stipulation as to the bedroom mix.

If the annexation is approved, neighboring Wheeling's expansion northwest of the county line would be virtually blocked. Wheeling officials said several weeks ago they might protect the development, however, they did not send a representative to the public hearing.

The Swanson development, if approved, will contain 319 individually owned townhouses and apartments. The project should be completed in about three years.

SOME RESIDENTS have voiced objection to the project because 47 per cent of it will be built on the flood plain. The developers, Arthur Swanson and Associates and the Donald Scholz Co., said they plan to alter the flood plain and provide for storm water retention. This will be done by deepening the area adjacent to Buffalo Creek on each side and using fill to build up the low region.

The residents have argued that flood problems have occurred in the past whenever the flood plain was altered. They also expressed concern over the closeness of the development to Buffalo Creek. The impact it will have on flooding will not be known, however, until after it is built, they said.

Paul Swanson, of Arthur Swanson and Associates, said the condominiums will start at about $30,000 and the townhouses will be priced between $47,500 and $59,500. All units will have two or three bedrooms.

It'll all be official tonight for three trustee winners

The winners of the April 17 Buffalo Grove village election officially will be declared tonight after the village board makes its vote canvass.

The unofficial winners of four-year terms on the village board were incumbent Trustee Thomas Mahoney, who ran on the Village Independent Party (VIP) slate, and independents Clarice Rech and incumbent Trustee Jerry Driscoll. The winners were chosen from a field of 10 candidates.

Mahoney captured the highest number of votes with 811, followed by Mrs. Rech with 836 and Driscoll with 738. Driscoll edged out VIP candidate Philip Ralston by 22 votes.

The canvass by the village board will entail checking the unofficial returns against the figures recorded by the election judges. Although, unlikely, it is conceivable a candidate who lost in a close contest could be declared a winner because of a mistake in the unofficial election returns.

Village Clerk Verna Clayton said only 2,078 of more than 7,000 registered voters in the village voted in the election. Mrs. Clayton said there were 55 spoiled ballots in 9 of 10 precincts.

Is the election, Mahoney carried four precincts, Mrs. Rech won in two and Driscoll won one.

WHEELING VILLAGE PRES. Ted C. Scanlon, who was reelected by only 11 votes in last Tuesday's election, views the locked and sealed cabinet that holds the official tally sheets and ballots. The bags in the foreground hold the unused ballots. The cabinet will not be opened until the village board tonight conducts the official canvass of the votes. The board will then announce the official winners in the closely contested village election.

Wheeling Independent Party keeping tight guard on ballots

Members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) are expected to continue guarding the ballots and election results from last Tuesday's election until the official vote canvass tonight.

WHIP members began their vigil last Thursday afternoon, more than a day and a half after the ballots were counted and sealed in a locked cabinet in the village hall.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund, WHIP candidate for village president, said the vigil was a way of safeguarding the ballots until the vote returns were made official at the canvass.

All election results are unofficial until the vote tallies are compared against the returns called into the village hall by election judges Tuesday night. Since several positions were decided by as little as three votes, any error in reporting the results could turn the apparent winners into losers.

HAROLD FAGAN, a WHIP candidate for trustee in the election, said he was not satisfied with the present security for the vote returns. "I would like the ballots kept more secure than they are now," he said. "If they would put them in a safe which (Village Clerk) Evelyn Diens was totally responsible for, I would buy it."

When asked why the party waited more than 36 hours to begin their watch, Fagan said, "It's better late than never."

Hedlund said the decision to guard the ballots was made only after several WHIP members tried to get other agencies to provide better security. Hedlund said he contacted the Cook County Election Board, the state's attorney and the county sheriff's police.

"They've always been sealed in there and locked," Mrs. Krause said. She explained that while there was a safe in the office, it was not large enough to hold all the election materials.

While several village staff members have keys to the storeroom, Mrs. Krause said she and Mrs. Diens have the only keys to the cabinets.

WHIP members originally asked to be allowed to guard the ballots inside the storeroom. "They wanted to sit in the room with the ballots," said Village Mgr. George Passolt.

PASSOLT SAID he did not think this request was practical. He did, however, allow the WHIP members to sit outside the village office where they could watch the door to the storeroom.

Now homeowners in Arlington Heights' Northgate subdivision say they want a third street, University Drive, closed to Frenchman's Cove traffic.

Northgate homeowners were represented at an Arlington Heights Plan Commission last week and requested that University Drive off of Dryden Place be closed, except for emergency vehicles, at the entrance to Frenchman's Cove.

If the village board acts to restrict the street as the homeowners suggest, access to Frenchman's Cove will be limited to two driveways leading south off of Dundee Road. Both driveways deadend at the southern end of the development.

Rape suspect not linked to area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1 1/2 years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

But Ekblad said Madsen is not the same person who has been assaulting women in the area.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Lt. Paul Vanick of the Cook County Sheriff's Police said the physical descriptions make him believe that there is no link between Madsen and the series of rapes in this area.

Police reports describe the area rapist as white, 25 to 30 years old, between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing from 160 to 175 pounds. The man has worn either a ski mask or nylon stocking to conceal his face.

Madsen, 30, is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds with blondish hair. Madsen reportedly would pose as a salesman of religious articles and approach women working alone in churches, police said. In each case the rapes took place in the church, police said.

Madsen, who was arrested Wednesday near the Evangelical Free Church, 1331 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Cook County jail.

'Cove' condos being isolated from neighbors

Frenchman's Cove, a 482-unit condominium development in north Arlington Heights, is being cut off from its single-family neighbors.

Recently the Village of Buffalo Grove vacated two streets in its Mill Creek subdivision that adjoins the multi-family development. The streets — Old Post Road and Carriage Way Drive — have since been closed, restricting access to the development.

Now homeowners in Arlington Heights' Northgate subdivision say they want a third street, University Drive, closed to Frenchman's Cove traffic.

Northgate homeowners were represented at an Arlington Heights Plan Commission last week and requested that University Drive off of Dryden Place be closed, except for emergency vehicles, at the entrance to Frenchman's Cove.

If the village board acts to restrict the street as the homeowners suggest, access to Frenchman's Cove will be limited to two driveways leading south off of Dundee Road. Both driveways deadend at the southern end of the development.

The nation

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnap and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

Leaking gas which accumulated under the floor of a low-income apartment house near the Mexican border, exploded Easter morning, demolishing the building and killing a number of inhabitants. Authorities said nine persons were killed and 23 injured near El Paso, Tex.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs of staffs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the blue banners of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in observance of the 57th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising that eventually re-

Boys find the home they never knew at the MRB Ranch

by JOANN VAN WYE

The MRB Ranch in Palatine Township has all the characteristics of a stately horse farm you would expect to find in the bluegrass regions of Kentucky.

A large, white-pillared house of pre-Civil War vintage sits back off the road at 1502 W. Northwest Hwy. looking over the ranch's 18 sprawling acres of wooded land. The size of the ranch seems even more massive because of its location adjacent to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Horse stables, riding corrals, a swimming pool, bathhouse, barbecue pit and numerous brick buildings are visible from inside the house. Tennis courts, basketball courts and other hard-surface areas will be installed this spring.

But the MRB Ranch is not just an ordinary residence. Named after its owner, Milroy R. Blowitz, the ranch is home to many boys who are wards of the state.

OFFICIALS THERE refer to it as "a residential facility for boys with problems in home adjustment." It has been licensed by the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services as a child-care facility since August.

Most of the boys living on the ranch have been taken away from their home by the court because their parents would not or could not care for them. Some have been in trouble with the law, others abandoned by their parents and others had problems with the school they attended. But most of the boys' problems lie within themselves and just need time to be worked out.

They are a diverse group whose one similarity is that they have all passed the ranch's admission criteria of being a male adolescent between 12 and 17 years old, capable of living in an open setting and capable of attending public school.

Most come to this sprawling estate via a foster home or larger institution. The consensus of opinion about the ranch was summed up by one of the boys who said, "It is a lot better (than other institutions). Here you don't have to worry about staff kicking in your rear end. It's more like home, or at least like home should be."

For some, the ranch is a last chance. For others it is a last stop before they return home but for many it is all they have.

UNLIKE THE stereotype of a child-care institution, the MRB Ranch is open, unstructured and noninstitutional. The boys are integrated into the community, attending public schools and getting into town frequently, and are free to roam.

The boys share their home with 13 horses, two dogs and two hamsters they bought themselves and are trying to mate. As soon as a boy is admitted, he is given a horse and it is his responsibility to care for it. Some refer to their horses as "the old mules" while others spend most of their free time in the stables caring for their horse and often purchase blankets and other things for their horse from money they have earned.

The boys live in two adjacent brick cottages set back from the colonial house that serves as an office for the ranch and

Did MRB forerunner lead to Jayne death?

The MRB Ranch, a wooded estate at Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, is a home for 30 boys who are wards of the State of Illinois. They attend local schools and are a part of our Northwest suburban community.

But before the MRB Ranch emerged, a controversial project was planned there. It was to be called Ridgeway Farm, where emotionally disturbed youth, referred from Ridgeway Hospital, Chicago, would be placed.

The project drew the ire of local municipalities and many area residents, including Inverness horseman George Jayne. Jayne was gunned down in his home Oct. 28, 1970. The attorney for the alleged triggerman indicated last week the Ridgeway Farm project may have led to the killing — not the long-standing rivalry between George and his brother Silas.

a residence for the Blowitz family. The younger boys live in one cottage with the older boys sharing an identical cottage next door. Each building has a living room and recreation area on the main floor. Upstairs there is a kitchen and three bedrooms.

A housemother is on duty in each cottage 24 hours a day. The cottages are set up as self-governing units. Meetings are held once a week with all the boys of the cottage, the housemother and the ranch's director, Miss Carol Jacobson. At this time problems and complaints are ironed out.

"THE HOUSE meetings really help. They get people calmed down and get the gripes out. Considering the different personalities we get along most of the time but sometimes there are blow-ups," said one of the older boys.

"We try to help them respect each other's differences. We teach them if they can't care about each other they have nothing," said Miss Jacobson.

The limited knowledge the boys have about each other's past is surprising, but they seem to accept the fact it isn't important why they are on the ranch but that they are there and must work together.

Each boy has a personality and style of his own and is given freedom to express it. One will be wearing shoulder length hair and blue jeans, another a shag haircut and the latest style in men's clothing and yet another a crewcut.

The differences are more than physical. One will talk your ear off about religion, another will be interested in cars and another talks of plans of going to trade school and setting up his own business. They are no different than their classmates in Dist. 15 and Dist. 211 schools.

SINCE THE RANCH opened in August, hundreds of forms on possible admissions have been received. Everytime

A horse and harmonica amid the quiet solitude of nature gives this MRB Ranch resident a chance to think there is an opening Miss Jacobson goes through the forms and tries to select the boy she feels could benefit most from the farm.

"When you take a kid you hope you have what they need. You work with them and try to help them but you never really know," said Miss Jacobson. She steers away from admitting blacks because she feels they will have a difficult time adjusting in the school and community life.

In some cases after a preplacement visit to the ranch, a possible admission is discussed with the boys already there. "It's not up to the kids (who get admitted) but I get a feeling by talking to them," she said.

The housemothers are not maids and the boys are expected to take an active part in the work. Each boy is responsible for his own bedroom and chores are rotated each week. The boys also have a voice in planning menus.

The older boys are expected to do some of the cooking and their own laundry. Miss Jacobson explained some of the boys will remain at the facility until they are 18 and no longer wards of the state. Since they will not be returning home it is important they learn to take care of themselves.

"The philosophy in too many institutions is to do too much for the kids. We're not always understanding here just like the outside world isn't always understanding," she continued. "We help them learn to deal with life but we don't plan out their life for them."

THERE ARE FEW rules on the ranch. The boys earn privileges through their behavior on the ranch and in school. Each month they receive a rating which determines how many privileges and responsibilities they will have for the following month. A fourth rating is the highest and means the boy gets longer vacations at home, can go out with friends one night a week and in general has more privileges and responsibilities.

"If you don't let the kids go home, they don't realize their family for what it is," said Miss Jacobson, explaining that some kids start glamorizing their home life when they are away from it for long periods.

Spending money is earned by the boys rather than doled out. The boys frequently contract with Blowitz to do work around the ranch or in the cottages. The boys are free to and even encouraged to take part in school activities but if they cost money they must pay their own way.

Officials say they are encouraged with the ranch's success in the short period it has been open. Already there is talk of someday expanding the facilities to accommodate a maximum of 30 boys.

"WE'VE HELD KIDS no other institution has been able to," said Miss Jacobson. Only one boy has run away from the ranch, which has no fence, locked doors or gates, and he returned voluntarily within 24 hours.

Many things contribute to the success of this home for troubled boys, according to Miss Jacobson.

She says it's a place where the kids can grow and have the freedom to make mistakes. And where adults really care for the boys and their problems.

And even the horses, which are the first possessions some of these youth have ever had to call their own.

Ruling by Downing permits testimony

Strong St. response Friday

W Strong Street residents will respond Friday to new evidence that has weakened their case in a zoning suit filed against the Village of Wheeling.

Judge Robert J. Downing ruled last week to allow attorney John M. Burke, representing the homeowners, to present new testimony and argument in the case.

The suit challenges last year's rezoning of 47 scattered lots in the Strong Street area for six-flat apartment buildings. Residents claim this action was spot-zoning because it ignored the single-family homes already in the area.

In the middle of the case, the village took action to rezone the entire W. Strong Street area to allow apartment buildings. Residents charge that this action was a deliberate attempt to undermine the spot-zoning charge.

In granting Burke the right to present new evidence, Judge Downing requested that testimony be kept brief. "It is Judge Downing's feeling that we have already presented enough evidence to cover all implications brought out by the new zoning," Burke said.

BURKE SAID Judge Downing will be promoted to the appellate court effective May 1. He said in order for Downing to rule on the case, all court proceedings would have to be completed by April 30.

"I might have some additional testimony on Friday," Burke said. "But I'm still mulling over the necessity of it, because, in all fairness, I think we should have a judgment from Judge Downing."

Burke said Downing did indicate he (Downing) would be able to rule on the case. Burke expects a judgment in the case either Friday or next Monday.

Oakton College board member

Flynn insists he didn't seek organizational campaign aid

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Thomas Flynn has denied charges that he was a political candidate in the Oakton Community College Board of Trustees election.

"I did not publicly or privately ask for support from the Maine Democratic Organization, said Flynn, last week as he took his seat on the board. "Nothing is further from the truth." Flynn did not say in his prepared statement who made the charges against him.

Flynn was an unsuccessful democratic candidate for state senator in the 4th District last year. Some members of the Maine Democratic Organization distributed campaign literature for Flynn and candidates running for Dist. 63 school board the week before school elections April 14.

Flynn said some members of the party campaigned voluntarily for him along with many of his "personal friends." He said he received no "public or private backing from the party. I personally feel that I am an American first and everything else second."

As evidence of his non-partisan position, Flynn pointed to his endorsement by the Independent Voters Assoc. of Niles and Maine townships a group of residents is the college district who reviewed and recommended candidates for the Oakton board of trustees. He said 20 members of that group are Republicans.

THE OAKTON Community College Convention, a coalition of school caucuses in Maine and Niles townships, did not endorse Flynn. Flynn, who did not appear before the convention, said he decided to enter the race because he believes in contested elections.

Flynn thanked the residents in Maine and Niles townships for supporting him in the election. He said local newspapers were fair in their coverage of his campaign, "except one," the "Skokie News" published by Roland Moore.

"This man has continued to make untrue statements about me," said Flynn. A recent article in the "Skokie News" which said Flynn is a full-time law student is a "blatant lie," he said. Flynn is project coordinator for the Cook County Department of Planning and Development and assistant commissioner of consumer fraud for the Village of Niles.

A "Skokie News" article which said Flynn slandered Niles Mayor Nicholas Blase is "another lie," said Flynn and a story in the April 19 issue of the paper which said Flynn withdrew his support of former U. S. Congressman Abner Mikva before the election last year that Mikva lost is "another outrageous and blatant lie."

IN COMMENTING on articles in the Skokie News about Flynn, the trustee said, "as far as I'm concerned enough is enough." If Moore wants to write about something why doesn't he write about the bugging of the democratic headquarters in the Watergate Hotel in Washington D. C. during last year's presidential campaign, asked Flynn.

Flynn refused to give copies of his speech to reporters or to college officials for what he said were "personal reasons." The trustee said he had no further comments for the press.

"Please judge me by my actions," said Flynn in his speech. "The board is here to represent this entire community. Politics does not belong on the college board."

In other action Thursday night, Paul Gilson, Oakton trustee who was reelected April 14 was named chairman of the board by a unanimous vote of the college trustees. Raymond Hartstein, also reelected this year, was elected vice chairman, and Vivian Medak, newcomer to the board this year, was elected secretary.

CLEAN UP — THROW OUT. Public Works Department crews are helping residents with their spring cleaning by picking up discarded items. The city cleanup has been in progress two weeks. People with Wednesday garbage days can place furniture, appliances, garden debris — everything except building materials — by their curbs for pickup this week. Ernest Behm, left, and Dave Mendel will help pickup discards April 30-May 4 for those with Thursday garbage days, and May 7-11 for residents with Friday garbage days.

Chicago man charged with unlawful use of weapon

Des Plaines police arrested a Chicago man when they found a sawed-off shotgun in his possession while he was trying to obtain help after his car broke down.

According to police, the man, Kopel D. Raggs, 18, 7550 Sheridan Rd., Chicago, and four companions had asked a local woman, Patricia Lopatowski if they could use her telephone last Thursday to obtain help when their car stalled near her home at 1555 Marshall Dr.

A neighbor called police after seeing the men near the house and becoming suspicious.

When police arrived, the other men said they were trying to locate a friend who lived in a housing development near Oakton St. when the car trouble came.

While police were questioning the men Mrs. Lopatowski began screaming that the man using her telephone had a shotgun with him.

Police arrested Raggs charging him with unlawful use of weapons and failure to carry firearms registration.

He is being held on $5,000 bond and is scheduled to appear in Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court May 10.

The other four men were released without charges.

Children must be taught to accept death as natural event

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Johnny's mother died when he was six. Johnny was a good little boy and took his mother's death very well.

Many children regress to babyish behavior or throw temper tantrums when they lose a parent or sibling, but not Johnny. He was a perfect child. He helped with the family chores, did the dishes, dressed himself and made his own bed.

Johnny got good grades in school, too. He played with the other children, participated in every school event and soon became one of the best students in his first grade class.

Still, Dr. Elizabeth Ross, psychiatrist at the Cook County family service and mental health center in Chicago Heights thought she should pay Johnny a visit.

WHEN DR. ROSS arrived at Johnny's house, the little boy was smiling brightly. He showed the doctor his homework papers and told her how he helped his father with the housework and how he always went to bed on time without being told. Dr. Ross concluded that Johnny was a healthy, normal child who understood and accepted his mother's death.

As Dr. Ross was leaving the house she saw an apple on the window sill and asked Johnny what it was doing there. The boy lowered his eyes to the floor and his face stiffened. Dr. Ross repeated the question.

"Mommy likes big, red apples," said

This is the bird of peace, with a ray of sunshine on its wing, said the dying child.

Johnny, "so I put it on the window sill to ripen. Then Mommy will like it and come back and she won't be mad at me any more."

Guilt is a normal reaction to the death of a loved one, but it is a reaction too often repressed, only to reappear decades later to plague the adult, says Dr. Ross. It's often a feeling not visible to others. The child, trying hard to be good to make up for the wrong he thinks he has committed, appears to be happy and well-adjusted to those around him.

A young child who represses such feelings fantasizes about death. He may feel he is to blame for the death. He often feels unloved and abandoned by the person he has lost. He may fear impending punishment for his wrongdoing.

Such unexpressed feelings remain with the child to grow and take root in the subconscious, said Dr. Ross. A high percentage of adults under psychiatric care harbor this kind of guilt which often can be traced to a death that occurred in the patient's early childhood.

IT IS IMPORTANT for the child to tell someone how he feels about the death, said Dr. Ross, and it is important to teach every child, by the time he is old enough to walk, that death is a normal part of life.

Dr. Ross is considered an expert on emotional problems related to death, by her colleagues. She is the author of two books on the subject, "On Death and Dying," and "On Children and Death."

Just as a family discusses the impending birth of a child to the other children in the family, the family should also discuss an impending death, said Dr. Ross.

Adults often protect the child from a subject that the adult finds painful. "We don't really protect them, we protect ourselves," she said.

A good way to teach children about death at home is with a story book, said Dr. Ross. One she recommends is "Why Did He Die," by Audrey Harris from Lerner Publications, Minneapolis, Minn., which is designed for preschool children.

An "ideal moment" to teach a child about death is when the family pet dies or when the child finds a dead animal, said Dr. Ross. Many mothers are taken aback when a child brings home a dead bird and they quickly ask the child to take the animal away. Dr. Ross said the parent should talk to the child, explaining how the animal could have died and what it means to be dead. The parent should tell the child that death is natural — everything dies, and should not convey a dread or revulsion for the dead animal to the child.

AS A CHILD matures, he passes through learning stages that determine the way he understands death, said Dr. Ross.

For an infant or toddler, death is connected with the fear of separation from his parents, brothers and sisters or other people who care for him. These children, are too young to comprehend what death is, said Dr. Ross. They know that someone who once cared for them is now gone and they don't know why. They feel abandoned, she said.

At age 3, many children fear death in the same way they fear physical mutilation, said Dr. Ross. A child at this age is especially afraid of going to the doctor. The parent shouldn't lie to the child, telling him the injection of serum he is about to receive, won't hurt him.

The mother should tell the child that it will hurt just a little bit and if possible she should show the child what's going to happen by practicing on a stuffed animal toy. It probably won't make the child stop crying, said Dr. Ross, but it may relieve some of his fears.

At age 4, children often play games associated with death. "Bang, bang you're dead," says the child. To this child death is not final, it's just a game that everyone plays and can be ended like a game. Death seems temporary, and because the child has the power to make sister fall down dead in play, he thinks he has the power to bring her back to life, she said.

If someone does die, the child can't bring him back and as a result he often feels a deep sense of guilt and shame. If the child doesn't express these feelings, said Dr. Ross, he can go through life with the threat of punishment hanging over his head.

BETWEEN THE AGES of 5 and 9, children personify death as a ghost, skeleton or the "boogie-man," Dr. Ross said. He often thinks he can escape death by hiding, running fast to get away or by leaving a light on when he sleeps.

As a child progresses through adolescence and adulthood, he should come to realize that death is not only final and happens to everyone, but that it is inevitable. The way most adults feel about death can be visualized as an "iceberg," says Dr. Ross. What we see is a simple fear of death and dying, she says, but what is hidden underneath is a fear of a "catastrophic, destructive event." It is important for everyone, children and adults, to talk about death as a means of relieving this fear, she says.

Children let you know when they want to talk, says Dr. Ross, but the adult must be willing to listen. "One hour at the right time, can save 10 hours at the wrong time," she said. Almost anyone close to the child can help him talk about death, a member of the family, a school counselor, a minister or a doctor. Under no circumstances should a child be forced to attend a wake or a funeral if he is afraid to go, she says.

Using religion to explain death should be done with caution, says Dr. Ross. "If it is just nice, phony words," it may be harmful, she says, but if the parent has a genuine belief "it can help tremendously." The parent should not tell the child what he ought to believe, but should present religious belief as one of the ways to understand death, she said.

ONE OF THE changes in society that causes problems in understanding death is the removal of elderly family members from the home, Dr. Ross said. Children should see the aging process first hand. Now many children are afraid of old people, thinking they are sick and harmful. "Children in our society don't grow up knowing this is just a part of life," she said.

Dr. Ross blames the rules of many hospitals for a child's fear of sickness and death. Because small children are usually not permitted in the hospital ward, they don't understand what a hospital does and may dream about it as an evil place full of Frankenstein tortures and death. They see Mommy being taken away in an ambulance and maybe the next time they see her is in a coffin, said Dr. Ross.

The nightmare that may accompany this family tragedy "can frighten a child for the rest of his life," Dr. Ross said, and "sets the tone of how people later on relate to sickness and death." She recommends a change in hospital rules, "We could have much better society if we took the signs down that say no children allowed."

How do you comfort a dying child?

How do you comfort a dying child?

Children with terminal illnesses often realize that they are going to die without being told by parents, doctors or relatives, says Dr. Elizabeth Ross, psychiatrist at the Cook County Family Service and Mental Health Center in Chicago Heights.

Parents should not bring up the subject of death with the child, says Dr. Ross. The child will usually let someone know when he is ready to talk, but he often doesn't pick a close member of the family to tell his fears.

Many children talk about their death indirectly, often saying they are simply afraid, according to Dr. Ross. When the child is ready to talk, the adult must listen closely to his words and be able to interpret the child's feelings.

DR. ROSS TELLS the story of an eight-year-old girl with a terminal illness who spent her last days in an oxygen tent in a hospital. Late at night the girl asked for her favorite nurse. She knew that oxygen is flammable and she asked the nurse what would happen if a fire broke out in her room. "I can't do anything about it," said the girl.

The nurse, not understanding that the child was expressing a fear of the death she knew was coming, simply told the girl not to worry because no one would smoke in her room. But the nurse thought about the girl's question again and phoned her supervisor who had gone home for the evening.

The supervisor returned to the ward and asked the girl to repeat her question. When she did, the nurse opened the tent, lay down with the child and told her not to be afraid. Crying, the little girl said, "I know I'm going to die soon." She told the supervisor she couldn't tell her parents that she was afraid because they were so sad because she was sick.

HOSPITALS SHOULD change the rules of visiting hours for children who are sick or dying, says Dr. Ross. These children need love and attention and parents should be allowed to stay with the child as much as possible, she said.

Children should not be told, "You are going to die," said Dr. Ross, but at the same time they should not be told they will get well. Many children use symbolism in pictures to show their feelings, she says. Someone who understands what the child is saying can help him accept his death and realize that death is as much as possible, she said.

An eight-year-old boy, dying of a brain tumor, drew a picture for Dr. Ross. The picture showed a little boy standing before a large army tank with the gun pointed toward him. The boy was holding a stop sign.

Dr. Ross said it must feel terrible to be so small against so large a weapon. The boy said yes, he was afraid and he talked to the doctor about his fear.

Later the boy drew his last picture for Dr. Ross. It was all white except for a patch of yellow on the outline of a bird in flight. "This is the bird of peace, with a ray of sunshine on its wing," he said.

DEATH TO CHILDREN, is a mystery. Psychiatrist Elizabeth Ross says children should be allowed to talk about a death in the family to relieve feelings of rejection and guilt. Such unexpressed feelings can cause mental and emotional problems in later life, she says.

Maine West senior play set

"The Death and Life of Sneaky Fitch," a comedy by James L. Rosenberg, will be staged as Maine West High School's senior class play. The production will be presented at 8 p.m. in the Maine West auditorium, 1755 S. Wolf Rd., on Friday, May 4 and Saturday, May 5.

The western-comedy is set in the town of Golpher Gulch and is made to entertain the entire family. It concerns Sneaky, the town coward and bum who comes back to life only to become the town hero.

The play is under the direction of Daryl D. Schultz, speech-drama instructor at Maine West. Robert E. Norris, a Maine West English teacher, will be the technical director of the production.

Assisting Schultz as student director will be Pam Mosciński. Norris will be assisted by Carol Jensen, stage manager, Nina Leone, costume design, and Nancy Meyer, props chairman.

The cast includes David Franks as Sneaky Fitch, Matt O'Grady as the Singer, Bob Repts as Rackham, Bob Komopazas as Doc Burch, Steve Schaeffe as Mervyn Vale, Patti Interante as Mrs. Vale, Jo Falabakas as Mrs. Blackwood, Dale Leigh as Reverend Blackwood, Jim Hajost as Sheriff Jack Oglesby, Celeste Andrews as Maroon, and Dave Hock as the guitarist.

The chorus, townspeople and cowboys will be portrayed by Ginger Reinhart, Joni Huff, Nancy Seitz, Claire Robinson, Paula Steffen, Vale Gross, Dawn Wacker, Dan Pechan, Jim Moore, George Galses, Frank Mrozek, Norb Bartosiak, Gary Blume, Tom Sandri, Rod Loage, and Steve Martini.

Tickets for the production will be available at the Maine West bookstore or at White Oak Drugs, 1595 Oakton, Des Plaines, from April 24 until May 4. Tickets will also be available at the door.

Track team practicing

The Gemini School track and field team is practicing for its third year of interscholastic competition. The team is coached by Lawrence Baskin and Paul Kremkau.

Eighty-seven junior high school students from Gemini School, 8955 Greenwood, Niles are members of this year's team. The program emphasizes both techniques of track and field competition as well as physical conditioning.

Tires stolen

A pair of rear tires and a spare wheel worth a total of $210 were stolen from the car of Michael Kowaczky, 1114 Hawthorne St., Arlington Heights, Des Plaines police said Friday.

The theft occurred, according to police while Kowaczky's car was being served at Lademorf Auto Leasing, 77 Rand Rd., in Des Plaines.

WHIP maintains tight security over ballots

by LYNN ASINOF

Members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) are expected to continue guarding the ballots and election results from last Tuesday's election until the official vote canvass tonight.

WHIP members began their vigil last Thursday afternoon, more than a day and a half after the ballots were counted and sealed in a locked cabinet in the village hall.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund, WHIP candidate for village president, said the vigil was a way of safeguarding the ballots until the vote returns were made official at the canvass.

All election results are unofficial until the vote tallies are compared against the returns called into the village hall by election judges Tuesday night. Since several positions were decided by as little as three votes, any error in reporting the results could turn the apparent winners into losers.

HAROLD FAGAN, a WHIP candidate for trustee in the election, said he was not satisfied with the present security for the vote returns. "I would like the ballots kept more secure than they are now," he said. "If they would put them in a safe which (Village Clerk) Evelyn Diens was totally responsible for, I would buy it."

When asked why the party waited more than 36 hours to begin their watch, Fagan said, "It's better late than never."

Hedlund said the decision to guard the ballots was made only after several WHIP members tried to get other agencies to provide better security. Hedlund said he contacted the Cook County Election Board, the state's attorney and the county sheriff's police.

"They all expressed a great deal of desire not to do anything," he said. He added that the WHIP members were still hoping to find some agency that would assume responsibility for the ballots, relieving the party members of their vigil.

WHEELING'S deputy clerk, Roberta Krause, said the ballots have been handled the same way they have been in all other elections. She said all election materials are in locked cabinets in a locked village hall storeroom. All of the cabinets have been sealed with official village seals.

"They've always been sealed in there and locked," Mrs. Krause said. She explained that while there was a safe in the office, it was not large enough to hold all the election materials.

While several village staff members have keys to the storeroom, Mrs. Krause said she and Mrs. Diens have the only keys to the cabinets.

WHIP members originally asked to be allowed to guard the ballots inside the storeroom. "They wanted to sit in the room with the ballots," said Village Mgr. George Passolt.

PASSOLT SAID he did not think this request was practical. He did, however, allow the WHIP members to sit outside the village office where they could watch the door to the storeroom.

The manager also refused the WHIP request to allow members to stay in the village hall after closing hours. He did, however, leave the blinds open and the lights on in the office, so WHIP members could watch the door to the storeroom from outside the village hall.

The ballot watchers, who are on rotating shifts, said they would continue their watch from outside the hall after the village closed for business at 2 p.m. Friday.

Many village officials said they thought the WHIP vigil was uncalled for and unnecessary. They said if such a guard was to be posted, it should be have been done immediately after the election.

Attorney John M. Burke, representing the WHIP party, said the decision to post the guard was made only after his clients learned that Village Clerk Evelyn Diens would not be in the office until Monday. "So there was some concern about who was watching the ballots," he said.

Burke, however, said he was satisfied with the present arrangements.

River Trails school costs up

Going to school in River Trails Dist. 26 will cost a little more next year.

The Dist. 26 board voted 4-3 last week to increase the textbook and materials fees by $1.50 per child.

The administration recommended that increase. "One of the difficulties we're running into is some limitation of the types of books you can purchase under state funding," said Supt. Tom Warden. He also said the individualized programs at the schools require more materials.

In discussing the administration's recommendation, board member Sylvia Lurie said she was opposed to charging fees to parents for a public education. "If it's supposed to be a public education, it really is questionable on a fee basis," said Mrs. Lurie.

"I feel we should charge on the optional things (such as field trips, many for which the district does not charge extra). On the other things that are not optional, we shouldn't make people pay," said Mrs. Lurie.

Board member William Haase agreed that charges should be increased for such discretionary items as field trips. However, in regard to the increase in book fees, Haase said, "I view it as an added $4,000 of revenue that this budget desperately needs."

BOARD MEMBER James Bowes said he could justify a fifty cent increase, but not $1.50. "We're talking about basically a 15 per cent increase per student," he said.

"We've already agreed on a staffing plan that requires individualization," said board member Michael Sheyker. "I feel that based on that, it justifies the cost."

When the vote finally came, Bowes, Mrs. Lurie and Mrs. Rosen all voted no. The motion was carried by the other four board members.

The increase in fees will mean that textbook charges for children in grades one through six will be increased from $8.50 to $10. Those for students in junior high will go from $9.50 to $11. The kindergarten fee will continue at $5 per child. There will be an optional towel fee of $4.25 for physical education.

In other business, the board approved entering into a contract with the Guarantee Trust Co. for student insurance for the district next year. Randy Swenson, the district's insurance agent, recommended the company on the basis of price and benefits. The premium for parents who would like their children covered during school hours is $2.75 per year. The premium for 24 hour coverage is $16.

$1,000 for NW Center

Some $1,000 has been collected by the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows from pledges made during the center's Hike for Your Neighbors April 8.

Rena Trevor, treasurer of the center's board of directors and hike chairman, vboard of directors and hike chairman, said last week the money pledged during the annual hike has been coming in at a steady flow.

The official collection day was Saturday.

The hike drew some 900 marchers who received a pledge of monetary support from individuals for each mile they walked during the 20-mile hike.

MRS. TREVOR said the center is hopeful of collecting some $15,000 from the hike, which would be $2,000 more than last year's collection.

"It depends on how effective we are in getting all the pledges," Mrs. Trevor said. She said since the hike was held earlier this year than last year, collection efforts could be sustained longer through the end of the school year.

She said center officials are "optimistic" about making good on pledges.

The money collected in the hike is of particular importance to the center this year because of the end to federal funding ordered by President Nixon. Some $60,000 in federal funding will be cut off from the center due to the order to dismantle the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The center provides services to needy families in a number of areas, including supplemental food programs for pre-and post-natal mothers and children up to six years old, family planning counseling, legal aid, housing referral, food stamps, job referral, income tax assistance and educational programs.

Burglars hit Boomer's

Burglars stole $23 in cash after breaking into the Boomer Tap, 1000 E. Ave., early Thursday, according to Des Plaines police.

Also taken in the theft were several jars of peanuts from a window display case, police said.

$3,000 damage done in rental garage fire

Fire caused an estimated $3,000 damage to the contents of a rental car garage at 2399 Mannheim Rd., early Friday, according to the Des Plaines Fire Department.

The fire started when a car ignition spark ignited a combustible fluid on the garage floor, firefighters said.

A vacuum cleaner, air compressor, and car washing equipment were among damaged items in the garage being used by American International Rent-A-Car Corp.

Firefighters were able to keep the blaze away from several 55-gallon drums containing gasoline in the garage.

Village may get bus system if franchise is OK'd

Elk Grove Village may get a bus system operated by a taxicab company if a franchise agreement can be worked out with the Elk Grove Village Cab Co.

Village Trustee Nanci Vanderweel said she will be meeting today with Robert Birks, owner of the Mount Prospect-based cab company, to discuss his submitting a proposal for some type of mass transportation system in the village. A year ago, Birks offered to provide a 15-passenger minibus service in the village, but no action was ever taken.

Mrs. Vanderweel said last week that her transportation committee intends to propose some type of bus service for the community, and she wants to find out exactly what Birks' proposal would cost.

THE COMMITTEE wants to know what the cost would be to operate the service as a franchise, and how much the cab company would charge riders, she said. Mrs. Vanderweel said she will be asking what Birks' plans would be for a communications system, storage, maintenance and hours of operation.

Also, the type of operation — a scheduled route or a dial-a-ride system — would have to be discussed, she said.

"Right now, we are talking about operating one bus with room for about 15 passengers," she said. A bus like this could cost from $4,000 to $25,000 depending on the model, she said.

ALTHOUGH SEVERAL candidates in the recent election suggested the village operate two or three buses in the community this year, Mrs. Vanderweel said she felt it was best to start with just one bus and add to the system later. "I don't want to over-commit with the number of buses and the amount of money until we know how the buses will operate, the cost and the demand by the community."

She said she had asked to meet again with Birks because he had an established, well-known business with a transportation system already in operation. Last year when Birks talked to the village he said he could provide a mini-bus service to Elk Grove Village at a cost of $3,000 per month. He said this would cover leasing a bus to the village and providing service six days a week.

Metron Systems Corp. also has approached Elk Grove Village with an offer to provide bus service. Claude Luisada, Metron president, said his company would like to operate rush-hour commuter runs, a shoppers' route and a dial-a-ride (phone request) service. The transportation committee has made no official decision on the Metron proposal.

Link School behind schedule

by MARILYN HEISER

Inclement weather has held up work on Adolph Link School in Elk Grove Village, but the school is expected to open in time for the first day of class, Sept. 4, Dist. 54 Business Mgr. Marvin Lopicola said Friday.

Architect S. Guy Fishman and a representative of Egyptian Construction Co. told Dist. 54 board members Thursday work is about two months behind schedule. The completion date of July 13 may not be met, Fishman said.

While Lopicola thought it unlikely, a delay in the opening beyond Sept. 4, would force busing of Elk Grove Village students to another school, he said. Double shifting would be a possibility, he said.

However, if the opening is only a few days late, the district would probably just delay school briefly for the children affected, Lopicola added.

Schaumburg School, which many Elk Grove Village students presently attend, would not necessarily be affected by problems at Link, he said. Double shifting could take place at another school, especially because Schaumburg School was on double shifting for a couple of months just two years ago.

ACCORDING TO the architect, excessive rain held up the Link School masonry work and the roof construction. Work on the roof, which was supposed to be finished by the middle of March, has not yet begun, he said.

Lopicola agreed that rain has been a problem, but said the board feels more brick layers should have been on the job during the crucial months of January and February. Often only 5 to 7 men were working, when perhaps 20 were needed, he said.

"If the masonry had progressed on time, the roof would now be on, and the building would have dried out so that the other work, such as painting, would be on target," Lopicola said.

The architect said the school would not be finished until the first week of September, Lopicola said. However, the contractor estimates completion during the third or fourth week of August, Lopicola added.

IN EITHER CASE, the school would be nearly enough finished to open, even if it is not "100 per cent complete," Lopicola said. A penalty of $100 per day could be assessed, he said, for each day the work continues past the July 13 completion date. However, the board would have to decide to assess the penalty, and may not feel it's warranted, he added.

"Realistically, the building is almost under roof. I personally feel the building will be complete enough. As much as we dislike moving in when a building is under construction, we have done so before," he said.

Approximately 400 to 500 children can be accommodated at Link School, about 70 per cent from Elk Grove Village. The remaining 30 per cent could be bused in, Lopicola said, or school enrollment could be on the light side initially to allow

Park site OK depends on improvements

The Elk Grove Park District will accept a 1½-acre park and lake site in the Vale Development Co. tract west of Rte. 53 if certain improvements are made.

Representatives of the park district Thursday night told the village plan commission they would accept an eight-acre site from the development company that will include a retention lake.

Centex developers, owners of the Vale firm, are required to provide the retention basin according to Metropolitan Sanitary District regulations, but want an agency like the park district to maintain it. The site is in section 19 of the 1,100-acre Vale tract west of Rte. 53. Site 19 is west of Rohlwing Road and north of Nerge Road.

Ed Hauser, president of the park district, told the commission the park district would like six provisions concerning the lake. Hauser said the land should be leveled to final grading, an easement should be provided between homes in the section instead of off Nerge Road, and some lots adjoining the lake property should be changed so homes are not so close to the lake. Original plans showed property only 25 feet from the lake.

Other requirements would include seeding of the sloped banks of the lake, a walkway around the edge, and a Centex agreement to fence in the lake if neighbors should ever complain of the hazard.

BOB CAULKINS of Centex indicated his firm would be willing to comply with most of the park district's requests.

Plan commission member Tom Hamilton said he thought a fence was stupid, and Hauser replied that the request was only in case complaints did come in.

The lake property donation would be in addition to the 10 per cent land donation Centex has already agreed to give the park district. Commissioner Mead Killian suggested that some houses be eliminated in the plan to make a larger park, but Hauser said the park district did not see a need for more space in the area because it will be for passive recreation only. Hauser said the district did not have $20,000 to buy about an acre of the land, and it would not want the donation because it would rather have the land elsewhere in the project.

Caulkins and other representatives of Centex also asked the commission for advice as to the best procedure for a rezoning request for the remainder of the Vale Tract.

The large area presents a zoning problem, Caulkins said, because it is much bigger than anything considered in present village zoning ordinances.

CAULKINS SAID the planned unit development ordinance, which allows a mixture of housing types based on an entire development rather than lot by lot, is not feasible for such a large development (as the Vale tract).

The PUD is not feasible, he said, because Centex cannot predict what sizes and types of buildings they will want during the next 10 years it will take to complete the project. He said Centex can conform to all other requirements, but cannot provide the preliminary plan. If a plan were written it would probably be changed 50 times in the next 10 years, he said.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said the commission had two alternatives — to give Centex advice, although it would not be binding later in consideration of the merits of the project, or let Centex proceed any way it chooses and run the risk of wasting time because of conflicts that would occur later.

The commission said it would decide in the near future and inform Centex of its decision, which might involve an amendment to the zoning ordinance.

Mental health center has a waiting list

by FRED GACA

A sharp increase in the number of clients is forcing the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center to put people on a waiting list before they can be treated.

Jordan Rosen, executive director, said the increase has placed "considerable pressure" on the center's staff and facilities.

Rosen reported to the health center's board of directors Thursday that between 40 and 50 cases were handled in June, 1972. For March, 1973, almost 340 cases were being treated.

He said that for the first time in the agency's history, clients must be placed on a waiting list before they can be treated.

Currently, 25 people are waiting to be scheduled for regular treatment and 17 people are on a list for an initial interview.

ROSEN SAID each staff member is now handling an average of 30 cases per week. He said a normal case load would be only 20 cases per week.

The present facilities at the "farmhouse," 700 Biesterfield Rd., are almost fully utilized, according to Rosen, and either another facility or an addition to the farmhouse is needed.

The board's facilities planning commission had been considering possible new facilities. Marilyn Quinn, board chairman, told the committee to increase its efforts. She also told the committee to work with the fund-raising committee.

At Rosen's request, the board approved the immediate creation of a new position, "clinical director." Originally, a clinical director was to have been hired after July 1, when a grant is expected from the state department of mental health.

JOHN ROADHOUSE, a staff member at the center, will be promoted to the position. Another therapist will begin work on May 10 to replace Roadhouse.

Roadhouse, in addition to being clinical director, will spend about half his time treating clients. Rosen said this would ease the caseload pressure somewhat.

As clinical director, Roadhouse will supervise the other therapists in treating patients and will be responsible for the clinical operations of the center, freeing Rosen to do more administrative work.

The increased case load is also affect-

$5,500 fire hits home of doctor

A fire caused an estimated $5,500 damage to the home of Dr. Ronald Schmutzer, 531 N. Hampton Circle, early Sunday.

The fire was believed to have been caused by an electrical short. According to an Elk Grove Village Fire Department report, at about 7:10 a.m. Dr. Schmutzer found a circuit breaker in his home had opened. He attempted to reset the circuit breaker, but it would not remain set. He then smelled smoke and called the fire department.

Damage to the home was estimated at $4,500 with $1,000 damage to contents.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

A 24-year-old gunman, who killed five persons and wounded three others during a series of robberies yesterday afternoon, was critically wounded during an exchange of gunfire with Los Angeles police who finally captured him, authorities said. William Bonner reportedly held up three liquor stores and a gas station and then opened fire on a family at their residence.

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of

San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnap and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

Leaking gas which accumulated under the floor of a low-income apartment house near the Mexican border, exploded Easter morning, demolishing the building and killing a number of inhabitants. Authorities said nine persons were killed and 23 injured near El Paso, Tex.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs of staffs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Boys find the home they never knew at the MRB Ranch

by JOANN VAN WYE

The MRB Ranch in Palestine Township has all the characteristics of a state farm you would expect to find in the bluegrass regions of Kentucky.

A large, white-pillared house of pre-Civil War vintage sits back off the road at 1502 W. Northwest Hwy. looking over the ranch's 18 sprawling acres of wooded land. The size of the ranch seems even more massive because of its location adjacent to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Horse stables, riding corals, a swimming pool, bathhouse, barbecue pit and numerous brick buildings are visible from inside the house. Tennis courts, basketball courts and other hard-surface areas will be installed this spring.

But the MRB Ranch is not just an ordinary residence. Named after its owner, Milroy R. Blowitz, the ranch is home to many boys who are wards of the state.

OFFICIALS THERE refer to it as "a residential facility for boys with problems in home adjustment." It has been licensed by the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services as a child-care facility since August.

Most of the boys living on the ranch have been taken away from their home by the court because their parents would not or could not care for them. Some have been in trouble with the law, others abandoned by their parents and others had problems with the school they attended. But most of the boys' problems lie within themselves and just need time to be worked out.

They are a diverse group whose one similarity is that they have all passed the ranch's admission criteria of being a male adolescent between 12 and 17 years old, capable of living in an open setting and capable of attending public school.

Most come to this sprawling estate via a foster home or larger institution. The consensus of opinion about the ranch was summed up by one of the boys who said, "It is a lot better (than other institutions). Here you don't have to worry about staff kicking in your rear end. It's more like home, or at least like home should be."

For some, the ranch is a last chance.

Did MRB forerunner lead to Jayne death?

The MRB Ranch, a wooded estate at Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, is a home for 30 boys who are wards of the State of Illinois. They attend local schools and are a part of our Northwest suburban community.

But before the MRB Ranch emerged, a controversial project was planned there. It was to be called Ridgeway Farm, where emotionally disturbed youth, referred from Ridgeway Hospital, Chicago, would be placed.

The project drew the ire of local municipalities and many area residents, including Inverness horseman George Jayne. Jayne was gunned down in his home Oct. 28, 1970. The attorney for the alleged triggerman indicated last week the Ridgeway Farm project may have led to the killing — not the long-standing rivalry between George and his brother Silas.

For others it is a last stop before they return home but for many it is all they have.

UNLIKE THE stereotype of a child-care institution, the MRB Ranch is open, unstructured and noninstitutional. The boys are integrated into the community, attending public schools and getting into town frequently, and are free to roam.

The boys share their home with 13 horses, two dogs and two hamsters they bought themselves and are trying to mate. As soon as a boy is admitted, he is given a horse and it is his responsibility to care for it. Some refer to their horses as "the old mules" while others spend most of their free time in the stables caring for their horse and often purchase blankets and other things for their horse from money they have earned.

The boys live in two adjacent brick cottages set back from the colonial house that serves as an office for the ranch and a residence for the Blowitz family. The younger boys live in one cottage with the older boys sharing an identical cottage next door. Each building has a living room and recreation area on the main floor. Upstairs there is a kitchen and three bedrooms.

A housemother is on duty in each cottage 24 hours a day. The cottages are set up as self-governing units. Meetings are held once a week with all the boys of the cottage, the housemother and the ranch's director, Miss Carol Jacobson. At this time problems and complaints are ironed out.

"THE HOUSE meetings really help. They get people calmed down and get the gripes out. Considering the different personalities we get along most of the time but sometimes there are blow-ups," said one of the older boys.

"We try to help them respect each other's differences. We teach them if they can't care about each other they have nothing," said Miss Jacobson.

The limited knowledge the boys have about each other's past is surprising, but they seem to accept the fact it isn't important why they are on the ranch but that they are there and must work together.

Each boy has a personality and style of his own and is given freedom to express it. One will be wearing shoulder length hair and blue jeans, another a shag haircut and the latest style in men's clothing and yet another a crewcut.

The differences are more than physical. One will talk your ear off about religion, another will be interested in cars and another talks of plans of going to trade school and setting up his own business. They are no different than their classmates in Dist. 15 and Dist. 211 schools.

SINCE THE RANCH opened in August, hundreds of forms on possible admissions have been received. Everytime there is an opening Miss Jacobson goes through the forms and tries to select the boy she feels could benefit most from the farm.

"When you take a kid you hope you have what they need. You work with them and try to help them but you never really know," said Miss Jacobson. She steers away from admitting blacks because she feels they will have a difficult time adjusting in the school and community life.

In some cases after a preplacement visit to the ranch, a possible admission is discussed with the boys already there. "It's not up to the kids (who gets admitted) but I get a feeling by talking to them," she said.

The housemothers are not maids and the boys are expected to take an active part in the work. Each boy is responsible for his own bedroom and chores are rotated each week. The boys also have a voice in planning menus.

The older boys are expected to do some of the cooking and their own laundry. Miss Jacobson explained some of the boys will remain at the facility until they are 18 and no longer wards of the state. Since they will not be returning home it is important they learn to take care of themselves.

"The philosophy in too many institutions is to do too much for the kids. We're not always understanding here just like the outside world isn't always understanding," she continued. "We help them learn to deal with life but we don't plan out their life for them."

THERE ARE FEW rules on the ranch. The boys earn privileges through their behavior on the ranch and in school. Each month they receive a rating which determines how many privileges and responsibilities they will have for the following month. A fourth rating is the highest and means the boy gets longer vacations at home, can go out with friends one night a week and in general has more privileges and responsibilities.

"If you don't let the kids go home, they don't realize their family for what it is," said Miss Jacobson, explaining that some kids start glamorizing their home life when they are away from it for long periods.

Spending money is earned by the boys rather than doled out. The boys frequently contract with Blowitz to do work around the ranch or in the cottages. The boys are free to and even encouraged to take part in school activities but if they cost money they must pay their own way.

Officials say they are encouraged with the ranch's success in the short period it has been open. Already there is talk of someday expanding the facilities to accommodate a maximum of 30 boys.

"WE'VE HELD KIDS no other institution has been able to," said Miss Jacobson. Only one boy has run away from the ranch, which has no fence, locked doors or gates, and he returned voluntarily within 24 hours.

Many things contribute to the success of this home for troubled boys, according to Miss Jacobson.

She says it's a place where the kids can grow and have the freedom to make mistakes. And where adults really care for the boys and their problems.

And even the horses, which are the first possessions some of these youth have ever had to call their own.

Mental health center has a waiting list

ing service the mental health center is able to provide to the Elk Grove Village Police Department.

Previously, at least one hour daily was kept open for police cases. Police used the hour occasionally to have juveniles counseled when they felt professional therapy was needed.

THE OPEN time for the police has now been cut down to one hour a week.

Lt. Raymond Marinac and Detectives Melvin Mack and William Ulke, Elk Grove Village policemen, appeared before the board to request that additional time be made available. The officers said they realize the center is now under pressure to meet its current case load, but said cutting back on the hours is not satisfactory.

Ulke said when the police department had daily hours available, most of the youths and families they sent to the center kept their appointments. He said the rate of repeating incidents among persons who had been counseled was low.

With only one hour per week, Ulke said the police department has not been able to get people to keep their appointments at the center.

THE BOARD told the center's staff to continue meeting with the police to work out a satisfactory solution to the problem.

Bill Brauer, center staff member, said arrangements could be made to give the police a priority, but said the increased case load pressure would just shift to another area. He indicated that more persons would have to be put on the waiting list.

The mental health center was established last summer after receiving an initial grant from the state mental health department. Originally, the center operated as Elk Grove Village Community Service, to provide therapy, youth counseling and other social services to the residents of the village.

ALL MENTAL health aspects of Community Service are now under the responsibility of the mental health center, which serves both townships.

Community Service continues to operate all non-counseling services for the residents of Elk Grove Village.

Community Service and the mental health center operate in close coordination and the boards of the two agencies share some common members.

A RAINCOAT and umbrella were required for Saturday's Easter egg hunt, sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Jaycees. The wet weather did not stop this little girl from going out and finding some of the eggs.

Wednesday rape suspect not connected with area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1½ years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

But Ekblad said Madsen is not the same person who has been assaulting women in the area.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Lt. Paul Vanick of the Cook County Sheriff's Police said the physical descriptions make him believe that there is no link between Madsen and the series of rapes in this area.

Police reports describe the area rapist as white, 25 to 30 years old, between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing from 160 to 175 pounds. The man has worn either a ski mask or nylon stocking to conceal his face.

Madsen, 32, is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds with blondish hair. Madsen reportedly would pose as a salesman of religious articles and approach women working alone in churches, police said. In each case the rapes took place in the church, police said.

Madsen, who was arrested Wednesday near the Evangelical Free Church, 1331 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Cook County jail.

Rudd to head township grade school board

Donnie Rudd was elected president of the Schaumburg Township Elementary Dist. 54 Board of Education last week at a meeting to canvass the results of the April 14 election.

Arlene Czajkowski was elected board secretary. New board members installed for three-year terms were newcomers Brenda Pulla and incumbents Bonnie Hannon and Rudd.

Rudd said he will outline his plans for the coming year at the next school board meeting. He did announce that his main goal is "to try to bring the community more together, to overcome all the areas of friction involving teachers, unification and municipalities. I hope to get us back on our main task — educating children."

Rudd said he would appoint each of seven board members to a committee chairmanship to spread the workload.

Mrs. Pulla, waiting in the audience before her installation, said she felt "numb" but terribly excited about her position. Her first choices for committee participation are the education curriculum committee and the legislation committee, she said.

She has previously been an active citizen participant on the board's legislation committee.

COMMENTING ON her victory, Mrs. Pulla said, "Hanover Park's turnout was much greater than in previous years as a result of a lot of hard work. 'Hanover Park has always been known as a reaction town, not an action town. That hurt a little, but the turnout we got showed Hanover Park is a part of the district."

While a resident of Hanover Park, Mrs. Pulla said she would represent all of Schaumburg Township and its more than 50,000 residents.

Dianne Marks, retiring school board president, said in her traditional recapping-the-year remarks, "It was a good year. For me personally, my years on the board were a good experience and a time of personal growth."

She pointed to board accomplishments during the year, including the rejoining of the Northwest Educational Cooperative, the establishment of the individually-guided-education program at two schools, the opening of the John Muir School, and an excellent state evaluation of the district.

Miss Marks was defeated in her bid for the High School Dist. 211 School Board April 14.

JACK MOODIE

Mayor steps down next week

Jack's looking forward to those free Mondays

by MARCIA KRAMER

It's been a while since Jack Moodie has had a free Monday night. During the past 12 years, he's spent something like 576 Monday nights at Palatine Village Board meetings.

Now, he'll have Mondays to himself. And practically every other day too.

The 50-year-old mayor of Palatine officially will step down next week, when he presides at his last village board meeting.

It's been a long 12 years, but a worthwhile 12 years, Moodie says. And, in an interview looking back on his years as a village official, the first six as a trustee and the past six as mayor, Moodie asserted: "I think I'm leaving with a very capable and efficient operation in all (village) departments."

"Palatine is a well-run, an efficiently-run, town. I think it's a good place to live."

MOODIE LOOKS upon increasing the scope of the various village departments as his proudest achievement.

With a politician's touch, he rattles off changes made in the departments during his administration: The public works department now monitors sewers with television-type equipment and has developed methods and obtained equipment to repair the sewers; the police department has grown and taken on the responsibility of patrolling parks ("a very successful program, by the way," he notes); the finance department has become automated; the fire department is becoming professional; the health department "handles all sorts of complaints."

Add to this the water system is now "on firm footing." And, Moodie says, the moving of the Palatine commuter station "gives us the possibility of a lot more development, and I think it's occurring."

More can be done, he concedes. "You can always give more service, or less service."

But, the outgoing mayor cautions: "You have to do it within the framework of your revenue and the desire of the people to pay for these services."

MOODIE, A VILLAGE Independent Party member, suggested strongly that the incoming village officials — members of the Republican Party — may get tripped up on finances.

"They can do anything they say they can do if they are willing to spend the money and people are willing to spend the money," he said.

"But I don't feel that service can be increased at less cost. It can be done for a short term by altering your finances — taking money that's been put aside and spending it on general fund purposes. But then you'll pay the piper later on. You can defer payments, but eventually it will catch up with you."

Except for writing a cover letter for VIP literature, Moodie didn't get directly involved in the recent battle for his post. He told the VIPs "not to be afraid to criticize" if they felt he'd done anything wrong as mayor, but they didn't take him up on it.

In stepping down, Moodie himself can think of a few things he'd have done differently. For one, he would have pushed harder to enact the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Plan. "This is the key to our (flooding) problems," he said.

ATTEMPTING to come up with stop-gap local solutions, he said, "would be a waste of money and wouldn't accomplish anything."

Moodie says he also would have liked to have completed the Colfax Street improvements, now tied up in litigation; and to have kept high rise apartments out of the village.

He regards government as a victim of the "damned if you do, damned if you don't" philosophy. "Whenever you restrict someone's freedom of action by controlling what he could do, you're condemned by that person. But if somebody in his own judgment makes a mistake, he immediately looks to the government — some way, it's the government's fault."

Moodie characterizes himself as a believer in people. "I have confidence in

Two developers pledge financial support to schools

Two local developers have pledged financial contributions to School Dist. 15 to help pay for the education of children who will live in their developments.

School district officials accepted the total $30,000 in pledges, which is aimed at offsetting the tax lag between the time the district receives the children and the time it receives tax revenues from the projects. Taxes are not received until a year after occupancy.

Orloff Associates Inc., developers of Las Haciendas, a condominium-apartment project on the northeast corner of Nicholas and Hicks in Palatine Township, has agreed to contribute $50 for every two-bedroom unit and $100 for every three-bedroom unit. Fifty per cent of the money will be paid when the building permit is obtained and the remainder will be paid at the time of occupancy.

Plans for Las Haciendas call for 14 one-bedroom units, 176 two-bedroom units and 182 three-bedroom units. An estimated 164 elementary age children will live in the project and attend Dist. 15 schools.

The other pledge is from Isenstein, Parker Development Co., developers of Valley Lake Villas, a condominium project to be located on Algonquin Road near Rolling Meadows. The contribution is $5,000 to be paid 15 months after the first building permit is issued on the project.

The Valley Lake Villas project will have 60 one-bedroom units, 184 two-bedroom units and 22 three-bedroom units. District officials have estimated that 142 elementary age children will live in the project and attend Dist. 15 schools.

Developers are not required to make the donation to the school district but most firms either give money or land for a possible school site.

School district studies show that one and two-bedroom units each bring less than one child into the district while three-bedroom units add an average of 1.3 children.

It costs about $800 to educate a child for one year, according to school district officials.

Boys find a home they never knew...

by JOANN VAN WYE

The MRB Ranch in Palatine Township has all the characteristics of a stately horse farm you would expect to find in the bluegrass regions of Kentucky.

A large, white-pillared house of pre-Civil War vintage sits back off the road at 1502 W. Northwest Hwy. looking over the ranch's 18 sprawling acres of wooded land. The size of the ranch seems even more massive because of its location adjacent to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Horse stables, riding corals, a swimming pool, bathhouse, barbecue pit and numerous brick buildings are visible from inside the house. Tennis courts, basketball courts and other hard-surface areas will be installed this spring.

But the MRB Ranch is not just an ordinary residence. Named after its owner, Milroy R. Blowitz, the ranch is home to many boys who are wards of the state.

OFFICIALS THERE refer to it as "a residential facility for boys with prob-

This Morning In Brief

The nation

A 24-year-old gunman, who killed five persons and wounded three others during a series of robberies yesterday afternoon, was critically wounded during an exchange of gunfire with Los Angeles police who finally captured him, authorities said. William Bonner reportedly held up three liquor stores and a gas station and then opened fire on a family at their residence.

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of

San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnap and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

Leaking gas which accumulated under the floor of a low-income apartment house near the Mexican border, exploded Easter morning, demolishing the building and killing a number of inhabitants. Authorities said nine persons were killed and 23 injured near El Paso, Tex.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs of staffs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the blue banners of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in observance of the 57th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising that eventually resulted in independent for the Irish Republic.

Two North Vietnamese army divisions have withdrawn from their positions in South Vietnam and returned home across the Demilitarized Zone separating the two countries.

Students asked for critique of graduation code

Student leaders from the four Dist. 211 high schools will be asked their opinions this week on dress code for graduation ceremonies.

The board Thursday agreed to invite the students to its meeting April 26 after board member Paul Hughes protested a recommended letter spelling out dress requirements for students taking part in graduation ceremonies.

The letter, if approved, would have been sent to families of graduates. Boys would be required to wear a shirt and tie, turtleneck shirt of a color compatible with the traditional gown, or buttoned sport shirt, dress slacks and dress shoes and socks.

Girls would have been required to wear the collar furnished with their gowns, hose and a skirt or dress, although the letter also said, "on warm evenings some girls choose to let the gown serve as a dress."

The letter, Hughes said, "made me ill. I think it's 15 steps backwards from the liberal approach we've taken. He added that the gown worn by graduates "covers 99 per cent of their bodies and now we're telling them what to wear under it."

HUGHES SAID the board should set no guidelines on dress and added, "If your child walks in barefoot in front of all those people, that's between you and your child, not between the board of education and your child."

Supt. Richard Kolze said the district has in the past sent letters on proper dress to graduates, but has not asked for formal board approval. "We feel a good, dignified ceremony is important," he said.

Board Pres. Robert Creek said he agreed the sample letter contained "too many chicken rules," but added that if the board issues no guidelines, "If one kid comes in barefoot we'll get calls from irate parents who made their children come in shiny shoes."

Board member William Stenstrom suggested that the board invite student leaders for this week's meeting to find out how the students feel about the necessity of rules. "We don't hear from students very often but this is something I think we should ask them about," he said.

THE BOARD agreed to invite the student leaders and also agreed that the sample letter be rewritten and submitted to the board.

In other action, Creek, who was reelected to the board April 14, was elected president of the board. He has served as board president since 1970.

The board also canvassed the results of the election and seated new board member Edward Perry.

Final totals for the seven candidates were: Creek, 1,161; Perry, 1,045; Dianne Marks, 856; John Heuman, 658; Orland Vangsnes, 535; John Kennedy, 520, and Robert Weseman, 364.

Village officers to be inaugurated

Newly elected village officers will be inaugurated tonight at the Palatine Village Board meeting at 8 p.m. in village hall, 54 S. Brockway St.

Wendell Jones, elected village president on Tuesday will head the new board of trustees. New board members to be installed include Richard Fone, Robert Guss, James Shaw, four-year terms and Bryan Coughlin, two-year term. Diane Greenlees was elected clerk. All were elected on the Republican ticket.

Also on the board are Clayton Brown, defeated Village Independent Party candidate for the presidency, said Fred Zajonc.

Before the actual transfer of officers, the current board will canvass the votes cast in Tuesday's contest for the final, official election totals. Jones and the Republican slate swept the village election, winning all six offices on the ballot.

more like home, or at least like home should be."

For some, the ranch is a last chance. For others it is a last stop before they return home but for many it is all they have.

UNLIKE THE stereotype of a child-care institution, the MRB Ranch is open, unstructured and noninstitutional. The boys are integrated into the community, attending public schools and getting into town frequently, and are free to roam.

The boys share their home with 13 horses, two dogs and two hamsters they bought themselves and are trying to mate. As soon as a boy is admitted, he is given a horse and it is his responsibility to care for it. Some refer to their horses as "the old mules" while others spend most of their free time in the stables caring for their horse and often purchase blankets and other things for their horse from money they have earned.

The boys live in two adjacent brick cottages set back from the colonial house that serves as an office for the ranch and a residence for the Blowitz family. The younger boys live in one cottage with the older boys sharing an identical cottage next door. Each building has a living room and recreation area on the main floor. Upstairs there is a kitchen and three bedrooms.

A housemother is on duty in each cottage 24 hours a day. The cottages are set up as self-governing units. Meetings are held once a week with all the boys of the cottage, the housemother and the ranch's director, Miss Carol Jacobson. At this time problems and complaints are ironed out.

"THE HOUSE meetings really help. They get people calmed down and get the gripes out. Considering the different personalities we get along most of the time but sometimes there are blow-ups," said one of the older boys.

"We try to help them respect each other's differences. We teach them if they can't care about each other they have nothing," said Miss Jacobson.

The limited knowledge the boys have about each other's past is surprising, but they seem to accept the fact it isn't important why they are on the ranch but that they are there and must work together.

Each boy has a personality and style of his own and is given freedom to express it. One will be wearing shoulder length hair and blue jeans, another a shag haircut and the latest style in men's clothing and yet another a crewcut.

The differences are more than physical. One will talk your ear off about religion, another will be interested in cars and another talks of plans of going to trade school and setting up his own business. They are no different than their classmates in Dist. 15 and Dist. 211 schools.

SINCE THE RANCH opened in August, hundreds of forms on possible admissions have been received. Everytime there is an opening Miss Jacobson goes through the forms and tries to select the boy she feels could benefit most from the farm.

Did MRB forerunner lead to Jayne death?

The MRB Ranch, a wooded estate at Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, is a home for 30 boys who are wards of the State of Illinois. They attend local schools and are a part of our Northwest suburban community.

But before the MRB Ranch emerged, a controversial project was planned there. It was to be called Ridgeway Farm, where emotionally disturbed youth, referred from Ridgeway Hospital, Chicago, would be placed.

have what they need. You work with them and try to help them but you never really know," said Miss Jacobson. She steers away from admitting blacks because she feels they will have a difficult time adjusting in the school and community life.

In some cases after a preplacement visit to the ranch, a possible admission is discussed with the boys already there. "It's not up to the kids (who get admitted) but I get a feeling by talking to them," she said.

The housemothers are not maids and the boys are expected to take an active part in the work. Each boy is responsible for his own bedroom and chores are rotated each week. The boys also have a voice in planning menus.

The older boys are expected to do some of the cooking and their own laundry. Miss Jacobson explained some of the boys will remain at the facility until they are 18 and no longer wards of the state. Since they will not be returning home it is important they learn to take care of themselves.

"The philosophy is to do too much for the kids. We're not always understanding here just like the outside world isn't always understanding," she continued. "We help them learn to deal with life but we don't plan out their life for them."

THERE ARE FEW rules on the ranch. The boys earn privileges through their behavior on the ranch and in school. Each month they receive a rating which determines how many privileges and responsibilities they will have for the following month. A fourth rating is the highest and means the boy gets longer vacations at home, can go out with friends one night a week and in general has more privileges and responsibilities.

"If you don't let the kids go home, they don't realize their family for what it is," said Miss Jacobson, explaining that some kids start glamorizing their home life when they are away from it for long periods.

Spending money is earned by the boys rather than doled out. The boys frequently contract with Blowitz to do work around the ranch or in the cottages. The boys are free to do and even encouraged to take part in school activities but if they cost money they must pay their own way.

Officials say they are encouraged with the ranch's success in the short period it has been open. Already there is talk of someday expanding the facilities to accommodate a maximum of 30 boys.

"WE'VE HELD KIDS no other institution has been able to," said Miss Jacobson. Only one boy has run away from the ranch, which has no fence, locked doors or gates, and he returned voluntarily within 24 hours.

Many things contribute to the success of this home for troubled boys, according to Miss Jacobson.

She says it's a place where the kids can grow and have the freedom to make mistakes. And where adults really care for the boys and their problems.

And even the horses, which are the first possessions some of these youth have ever had to call their own.

Scouting news

GIRL SCOUTS and their leaders are getting ready for the third annual Keep America Beautiful Day on Saturday, April 28, when attention will be focused on the nationwide litter problem.

Palatine Girl Scouts will be sponsoring a "Drive Thru" newspaper and recycling center. Residents are asked to bring their bundled newspapers and bottles with labels and caps removed to the bins at the rear of the health department, 49 S. Greeley St., on Saturday. Cadette Scouts will be waiting to unload the cars from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The money earned from the recycling center will be donated to the Paramedic Fund of the Palatine Fire Department as a memorial to the three firemen who died in the Ben Franklin store fire.

In Rolling Meadows, the Girl Scouts are participating in plans for Keep America Beautiful Day by cooperating with Recycling, Ecological and Beautification (REB) committee in a city wide cleanup campaign. Each troop will be assigned a specific area to concentrate on throughout the parks, school grounds, library and the cadets will work on the Salt Creek area. After working hard all morning, the scouts will join the other groups for a sack lunch picnic in Kimball Hill Park sponsored by the REB committee.

Rape suspect not linked to area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1½ years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

But Ekblad said Madsen is not the same person who has been assaulting women in the area.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Lt. Paul Vanick of the Cook County Sheriff's Police said the physical descriptions make him believe that there is no link between Madsen and the series of rapes in this area.

Police reports describe the area rapist as white, 25 to 30 years old, between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing from 160 to 175 pounds. The man has worn either a ski mask or nylon stocking to conceal his face.

Madsen, 30, is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds with blond hair. Madsen reportedly would pose as a salesman of religious articles and approach women working alone in churches, police said. In each case the rapes took place in the church, police said.

Madsen, who was arrested Wednesday near the Evangelical Free Church, 1331 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Cook County jail.

their ability to make their own decisions," he said.

Several of the village ordinances and regulations, he believes, are unnecessary for that reason. "If somebody sells me a garbage bag that drops my garbage on the ground, I'm not going to buy it again."

"Let the free economy prevail. We'll end up with a satisfactory bag at a minimal cost."

Moodie says he doesn't regret his decision, following his last election in 1969, not to run again. "I think all public officials should step down in a reasonable time," he said. "You get to know too many things that can't be done. New approaches and new ideas are always good."

Two developers pledge financial support to schools

Two local developers have pledged financial contributions to School Dist. 15 to help pay for the education of children who will live in their developments.

School district officials accepted the total $30,000 in pledges, which is aimed at offsetting the tax lag between the time the district receives the children and the time it receives tax revenues from the projects. Taxes are not received until a year after occupancy.

Orloff Associates Inc., developers of Las Haciendas, a condominium-apartment project on the northeast corner of Nicholas and Hicks in Palatine Township, has agreed to contribute $50 for every two-bedroom unit and $100 for every three-bedroom unit. Fifty per cent of the money will be paid when the building permit is obtained and the remainder will be paid at the time of occupancy.

Plans for Las Haciendas call for 14 one-bedroom units, 176 two-bedroom units and 162 three-bedroom units. An estimated 184 elementary age children will live in the project and attend Dist. 15 schools.

The other pledge is from Isenstein, Parker Development Co., developers of Valley Lake Villas, a condominium project to be located on Algonquin Road near Rolling Meadows. The contribution is $5,000 to be paid 15 months after the first building permit is issued on the project.

The Valley Lake Villas project will have 60 one-bedroom units, 164 two-bedroom units and 32 three-bedroom units. District officials have estimated that 142 elementary age children will live in the project and attend Dist. 15 schools.

Developers are not required to make the donation to the school district but most firms either give money or land for a possible school site.

School district studies show that one and two-bedroom units each bring less than one child into the district while three-bedroom units add an average of 1.3 children.

It costs about $800 to educate a child for one year, according to school district officials.

Chief Case elected head of association

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case has been elected 1973 president of the Northwest Suburban Police Chief Association.

Elected along with Case were Elmhurst Chief William Payne as vice president, Elk Grove Village Chief Harry Jenkins as secretary, Arlington Heights Chief William Calderwood as treasurer. The organization consists of police chiefs from 25 suburban municipalities.

Boys find the home they never knew at the MRB Ranch

by JOANN VAN WYE

The MRB Ranch in Palatine Township has all the characteristics of a state horse farm you would expect to find in the bluegrass regions of Kentucky.

A large, white-pillared house of pre-Civil War vintage sits back off the road at 1502 W. Northwest Hwy. looking over the ranch's 18 sprawling acres of wooded land. The size of the ranch seems even more massive because of its location adjacent to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Horse stables, riding corrals, a swimming pool, bathhouse, barbecue pit and numerous brick buildings are visible from inside the house. Tennis courts, basketball courts and other hard-surface areas will be installed this spring.

But the MRB Ranch is not just an ordinary residence. Named after its owner, Milroy R. Blowitz, the ranch is home to many boys who are wards of the state.

OFFICIALS THERE refer to it as "a residential facility for boys with problems in home adjustment." It has been licensed by the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services as a child-care facility since August.

Most of the boys living on the ranch have been taken away from their home by the court because their parents would not or could not care for them. Some have been in trouble with the law, others abandoned by their parents and others had problems with the school they attended. But most of the boys' problems lie within themselves and just need time to be worked out.

They are a diverse group whose one similarity is that they have all passed the ranch's admission criteria of being a male adolescent between 12 and 17 years old, capable of living in an open setting and capable of attending public school.

Most come to this sprawling estate via a foster home or larger institution. The consensus of opinion about the ranch was summed up by one of the boys who said, "It is a lot better (than other institutions). Here you don't have to worry about staff kicking in your rear end. It's more like home, or at least like home should be."

For some, the ranch is a last chance. For others it is a last stop before they return home but for many it is all they have.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

A 24-year-old gunman, who killed five persons and wounded three others during a series of robberies yesterday afternoon, was critically wounded during an exchange of gunfire with Los Angeles police who finally captured him, authorities said. William Bonner reportedly held up three liquor stores and a gas station and then opened fire on a family at their residence.

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of

San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnap and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

Leaking gas which accumulated under the floor of a low-income apartment house near the Mexican border, exploded Easter morning, demolishing the building and killing a number of inhabitants. Authorities said nine persons were killed and 23 injured near El Paso, Tex.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs of staffs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the blue banners of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in observance of the 57th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising that eventually resulted in independence for the Irish Republic.

Two North Vietnamese army divisions have withdrawn from their positions in South Vietnam and returned home across the Demilitarized Zone separating the two countries.

Bakery sales, distribution center planned

A bakery sales and distribution center is planned for 1½ acres at Kirchoff and Rohlfing roads, pending a zoning change from the Cook County Board of Commissioners.

Just outside the Rolling Meadows city limits, the bakery center would be constructed on the south side of Kirchoff Road 500 feet east of Rohlfing Road. Pankratz Weldner currently owns the property.

According to present Cook County zoning, the land is scheduled for single family homes. The Cook County Zoning Board of Appeals will have a hearing on the rezoning request May 4 at 3 p.m. in the Palatine Village Hall. If granted, the new zoning would allow commercial construction on the property.

Another rezoning request, for retail shops near the intersection of Rand and Wilke roads, will be heard May 4. The shops would be built on a one-half acre site on Rand Road by Able Construction Co. and the First Bank and Trust Co. through a trust.

Developers of the shops also have requested a rearward variation, cutting the requirements for distance of the building from the lot line from 15 feet to 5 feet. In their application, the developers said the property will front on the frontage road, creating a hardship if the building has to be constructed 15 feet from the rear lot line. More details of the plans will be explained at the public hearing.

Final action on rezoning requests usually takes six weeks or longer. Zoning officials meet after the public hearing to review the evidence and make a recommendation to the county commissioners, who make the decision.

Spare time is often used by the boys to earn some extra spending money.

Parks cited for fire code violation

Rolling Meadows police Friday issued a ticket to the Rolling Meadows Park District for apparent violations of city fire codes at the Rolling Meadows Sports Complex.

The ticket was issued when fire department officials reported that fire escape "panic" doors at the complex were chained closed in violation of city codes, police said. Fire officials said the park district had been warned of the violation before the ticket was finally issued.

Steve Person, director of parks and recreation said he had discussed the matter with fire and police officials, adding that if the doors were chained, the ticket was deserved.

Media intern plan participation OKd

Participation in a media intern program for the 1973-74 academic year has been approved by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education.

The participation will be in cooperation with High School Dist. 214 which has already entered into an agreement with Eastern Illinois University to serve as a resident center for the program.

Employment of three media interns, who will be graduate students at Eastern Illinois University working toward a master's degree in media, is proposed by Dist. 15. The interns will receive a salary of $1,600 per semester. Cost to Dist. 15 is $4,800.

The interns will work in the district's audio visual department relieving a personnel shortage there.

UNDER THE PROGRAM proposal, one intern would work in all of the district's elementary schools and the district's four junior highs would share the other two interns. The junior highs would pay $2,400 for the two interns and the district would pay the remaining $800. The salary of the elementary school intern would be paid from the department of instruction budget.

At the district level the interns would be involved with checking in new equipment and conducting inventories; learning production techniques; observing the film library operation, film preview and the acquisition program; learning to perform minor repairs and adjustments on district media equipment; learning budget development planning and preparation of bid specifications and orders; and planning, development and production of instructional television materials.

While the interns are working in the schools, they would also be attending afternoon and evening classes in Dist. 214 taught by Eastern Illinois University professors. These courses would be open to district personnel on a tuition free basis.

Link school work behind schedule; 'will open on time'

by MARILYN HEISER

Inclement weather has held up work on Adolph Link School in Elk Grove Village, but the school is expected to open in time for the first day of class, Sept. 4, Dist. 54 Business Mgr. Marvin Lapicola said Friday.

Architect S. Guy Fishman and a representative of Egyptian Construction Co. told Dist. 54 board members Thursday work is about two months behind schedule. The completion date of July 13 may not be met, Fishman said.

While Lapicola thought it unlikely, a delay in the opening beyond Sept. 4, would force busing of Elk Grove Village students to another school, he said. Double shifting would be a possibility, he said.

However, if the opening is only a few days late, the district would probably just delay school briefly for the children affected, Lapicola added.

Schaumburg School, which many Elk Grove Village students presently attend, would not necessarily be affected by problems at Link, he said. Double shifting could take place at another school, especially because Schaumburg School was on double shifting for a couple of months just two years ago.

ACCORDING TO the architect, excessive rain held up the Link School masonry work and the roof construction. Work on the roof, which was supposed to be finished by the middle of March, has not yet begun, he said.

Lapicola agreed that rain has been a problem, but said the board feels more brick layers should have been on the job during the crucial months of January and February. Often only five to seven men were working, when perhaps 20 were needed, he said.

"If the masonry had progressed on time, the roof would now be on, and the building would have dried out so that the other work, such as painting, would be on target," Lapicola said.

The architect said the school would not be finished until the first week of September, Lapicola said. However, the contractor estimates completion during the third or fourth week of August, Lapicola added.

IN EITHER CASE, the school would be nearly enough finished to open, even if it is not "100 per cent complete," Lapicola said. A penalty of $100 per day could be assessed, he said, for each day the work continues past the July 13 completion date. However, the board would have to decide to assess the penalty, and may not feel it's warranted, he added.

"Realistically, the building is almost under roof. I personally feel the building will be complete enough. As much as we dislike moving in when a building is under construction, we have done so before," he said.

Approximately 400 to 500 children can be accommodated at Link School, about 70 per cent from Elk Grove Village. The remaining 30 per cent could be bused in, Lapicola said, or school enrollment could be on the light side initially to allow space for future growth.

Two other schools under construction are expected to be finished on time, according to the architect. These are Albert Einstein School, due for completion Dec. 1, 1973, and J. Edgar Hoover School, due for completion Feb. 1, 1974.

Einstein is located in Hanover Park and Hoover in Schaumburg's Sheffield Park subdivision.

140 N. Washington Blvd., Hoffman Estates. He sees the library as the potential intellectual and cultural center of the community, and as a trustee hopes to improve on a good thing.

Public works strike off — 'for now'

A threatened strike of public works employees in Hoffman Estates has been delayed, but not eliminated, according to spokesmen for the fledgling union.

While employees worked according to schedules Saturday, they have only deferred implementing their strike vote until after May 1, said Daniel Hedlund, one of four shop stewards among the 23 union members. Whether a strike actually will be held depends on the results of a meeting at 2 p.m. May 1 between the union members, Mayor-elect Virginia Hayter and Village Mgr. George Longmeyer, he indicated.

The union will make no further public statements until after that meeting, said Hedlund.

The village employees unionized with the help of William Bunta, staff representative and organizer with the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO.

BUNTA SAID Friday he feels "progress is being made" in the union's efforts to obtain recognition. He was encouraged by a statement Mrs. Hayter recently made regarding unionization of fire district employees. She had been asked how she would react to a fire district union, should the village assume responsibility for the district, and said she would recognize a union with 80 per cent membership among employees.

"She has a reputation of being a fair-minded woman," said Bunta, adding he expected she would apply the same principles to one group of employees as another. He did comment, however, 80 per cent is an unusually high ratio to demand of a new union, when the national labor relations board requires only 50 per cent plus one employee.

The public works employees claim 100 per cent membership.

Bunta said the union already has offered a procedure to satisfy any questions village officials might entertain concerning the level of union membership.

"WE SUGGESTED if there was any doubt in the minds of the village we did represent a majority (of employees) we would be willing to go to the state labor department," said Bunta. He explained the department offers a service to resolve such questions. The village would submit a list of employees to the department, and the union would submit a list of persons who hold union cards, he said. The department then would compare the two lists to determine actual percentage of membership, he said.

The union hopes to discuss this offer at the May 1 meeting, said Bunta.

And while Bunta said any refusal by the village to recognize the union would mean the members "will have a decision to make," he emphasized "we are not trying to brag or swagger. We're simply doing what has to be done."

Library trustee, 19, didn't ride youth vote

by MARILYN HEISER

The youth of Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates did not propel the youngest Schaumburg Township Library Board Trustee into office in the recent township election.

Richard Miller, 19, says youth may have been his distinguishing feature as a candidate, but young people were probably not responsible for his election.

He may have a point.

Last week, Miller bumped into an old high school friend outside the library. After exchanging the usual "and what are you doing now," Miller mentioned his studies at the University of Illinois Circle Campus. He pointed to the new library building, "I'm a trustee here too."

WITH THE blank look of one who has no idea what a trustee is or does, the friend responded, "But I thought you said you went to school."

So much for the mystique of the youth vote.

Along with little fame, the trustee position has not brought Miller fortune.

A junior at Circle Campus, Miller plans to enter medical school in fall, 1974. What he really needs is a job that pays well. He pointed to Northwestern University's medical school costs which have risen $1,500 this year, including tuition, room, and board.

He expects he will have to take out a loan for medical school, even if he ends up attending Chicago's University of Illinois Medical School.

SO WHY DID someone who needs money run for a non-paying job as library trustee? Miller finds Circle Campus unstimulating educationally, and commuting to school daily is wearing and on the boring side.

He likes books, wants to get involved in the community, and as a student spends a lot of time in the library. "The library is my last connection to the community. Most of the kids I know are long gone," he said.

"The library's fantastic — it's far superior to the one at Circle," he said.

While there are areas he's like to improve, Miller thinks the policy of the library, "to make it what the people want, not what a few trustees think it should be," is an excellent one.

Because Circle is a campus in name only, Miller said he spends his spare time at home. And what does a youth do in Hoffman Estates?

He would like to encourage greater use of the library. "If you're not going to Harper, there's nothing else cultural or intellectual happening around," he said.

HE LIKES the special fringe benefits of the library: the cassettes, films, art prints, and records available on loan. The inter-library loan system is excellent too. But he would like to improve the reference section and the fiction offerings.

Subscribing to a bestseller service would allow the library to rent large numbers of best sellers, and then return them when the demand ended, he said. This eliminates long waits for best sellers, and doesn't require large outlays of funds for books with no lasting value. Another possibility would be buying books, and selling some of them back to the public, he said.

Miller also is thinking of encouraging the expansion of the library's film series and theater presentations. Adult activities are high on his list of improvements, he said.

Through an accelerated program at Circle Campus, Miller has progressed at a more rapid pace than the usual student. A junior majoring in biology, he maintains excellent grades, although he says he doesn't study much after school hours.

The son of Bernard and Harriet Miller, 140 N. Washington Blvd., he is following in his father's footsteps. Bernard Miller was the first and only elected librarian to the old library on Roselle and Schaumburg roads.

A PROTOZOOLOGY enthusiast, Miller said the study of one-celled animals is simply a hobby, one he became interested in while a junior high student. He says he is probably the youngest member of the Society of Protozoologists, and produced their jargon-filled, thick journal, most of which he says he understands.

Trustee Richard Miller is not looking toward greater political heights. He refuses to be categorized as a political liberal or conservative. "I hate those meaningless titles. They don't fit the definitions of the words anymore."

He isn't a rebel or a follower for the sake of rebelling or following. He says it all depends on the issue. When he talks about city versus suburb, he sees the good and bad in each life style.

But Miller joins the rest of the youth in this country in one complaint. He needs a job, and suggests this subtle advertisement:

"Poor student needs $7,000 for medical school."

Improvement fund of $110,000 gets initial OK

A capital improvement fund of $110,000 has been given tentative approval along with the 1973-74 Mount Prospect village budget. This money, designated for municipal and library expansion, will most likely be used over the next year as a down payment on the Central School property.

Trustee Donald B. Furst, who recently urged the village to buy the school property at Central Road and Main Street, was the prime proponent of the capital improvement fund.

Furst has estimated that the land would cost $500,000 and it would take another $200,000 to renovate the existing building. "I feel it is a sound building, of good construction and in an ideal location," Furst said in a recent letter to the board.

Furst said he did not want to "tip the village's hand" when asked if negotiations on the Central site would begin soon.

THE CAPITAL improvement fund was revealed at Thursday night's village board meeting. The board, in a 4-0 vote, placed the budget on public display for 10 days. Final passage of the $6,672,622 budget will come May 1. The tentative budget, which the board has discussed for the past month, was lower — $6,610,765.

This $6.6-million budget figure does not include the capital improvement fund, $254,005 for the public library or $699,540 for motor fuel tax projects, which are listed separately. The higher budget is still in balance because a recheck of revenue figures for the street and bridge property tax fund disclosed a $160,000 omission.

During the board meeting, Furst explained that $160,000 had been "inadvertently omitted."

FURST, who had originally objected to some of the village's federal revenue sharing monies being used for personnel salaries, said he is now completely satisfied with the budget and will vote for its passage.

"This is a magnificent job that has been done," he said. "It has satisfied me (that) in fact we will have a balanced budget next year (1974-75) also."

Furst had questioned the use of two years' revenue sharing funds, or $363,000, in the budget because he said the village would only receive half that amount in subsequent years. With $110,000 set aside for capital improvements and $130,000 used for non-recurring expenses such as equipment, Furst said his objections had been resolved.

Garbage pact extension made through Aug. 1

The Barrington Division of Browning-Ferris Industries will continue to pick up Mount Prospect's garbage at least through Aug. 1.

The village board voted 4-0 Thursday to approve a three-month contract extension with the firm, which has been providing the village's scavenger service for the past 10 years. The current contract was to expire a week from today.

The village agreed to pay Bruning $3 per unit per month or what the company bids, whichever is lower, for the three months. Currently, the rate is about $1.85 per unit per month, according to Trustee Donald B. Furst.

THE CURRENT rate will be paid for the three months, with the difference to be paid in a lump sum at the time bids are opened. The village requested the extension so more time could be spent drawing up the bid specifications and studying the subsequent bids.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said that because Barrington will be in a competitive bid situation, it would be unlikely they would come in with a high bid just to get a additional income from the three months. The contract that will be awarded will probably be for five years and may contain a five-year renewal option, as did the current contract.

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley's office is seriously considering the inclusion of a different type of trash container in the bid specifications. This would most affect the metal dumpsters used by apartments and condominium developments. Brush pickup will probably be included in the specifications also.

IT'S NOT QUITE 76 trombones — as five members of the Lincoln Junior High School Jazz Band concentrate on their music. The jazz band, made up of seventh and eighth grade students from Lincoln Junior High School, has been playing barely a year but already has won several important awards. To join the band, a student must have at least two years' experience playing an instrument.

A scaled-down Stan Kenton band

Midget jazz band keeps 'em toe-tappin'

by MARY HOULIHAN

It might have been a jam session for a Stan Kenton band.

The hall was bare except for the rows of steel fold-up chairs and the inevitable music stands. Sprinkled throughout were the musicians: sax players and trumpeters, drummers, pianists — lounging or talking, many sitting alone with their instruments, practicing the familiar non-song of half-played scales.

The only real difference was the size of the players — most of them only about three-fourths as tall as what one might expect in a Stan Kenton group. But what the Lincoln Junior High School Jazz Band lacks in age and experience they make up for in enthusiasm.

No matter how hard they tried, they couldn't keep that rhythm inside. It always burst through subconsciously in the quiet toe-tapping or the eager looks in their eyes at the first downbeat of "Proud Mary."

AND SHOULD the enthusiasm ever be used up, the youngster need only look to their director for encouragement. Tall, with long sideburns and looking almost as young as some of his students, Dave Metzler's whole body spells soul. "Good music should turn you on," he explains. "That's what it's all about."

But Metzler is too much a teacher to let the students in the audience just listen. Good music has to communicate, too. And communicating requires understanding.

"This is a jazz band and it plays an entirely different type of music," Metzler explains, turning to the audience. "Jazz is a music we can be proud of because it's the only true art form that originated here in the U.S."

With the students' interest aroused, Metzler begins to talk of the origins of jazz, born out of the souls of Negro slaves imported to work for the landowners in the South. "These slaves brought with them their feelings and the blues was a way of expressing themselves," he says.

The slow wail of the trumpet is all the students need to understand. "With the blues came rhythm," he says, turning back to the students. "There was always some cat out there in the jungle beating on a log."

SOON, WITH A one-two beat, the rhythm begins. Feet tap. The amplifiers electrify it.

"Then jazz began the route North from New Orleans along the Mississippi River. Anyone know where it settled?" Metzler asks. A lot of guesses. Finally, "Chicago!" is shouted from the audience.

"Yeah, remember that town? Frank Sinatra wrote a tune on that," he says. "In every bar and honky tonk there was a band playing. It got saturated then and jazz was brought north of Chicago, and then to the east and the west coasts. But there's a different feeling between the east and west coast jazz," Metzler notes. He goes back to his hand to demonstrate.

"That was a good solid rock sound with a lot of bass," he says of the first sample. The last jazz part is driving.

FINALLY, as the kids catch on, Metzler begins to let the band play alone without comments between songs. "You've Got a Friend," "Proud Mary," "Going Out of My Head" and then end.

Colony told to cut number of units

The Mount Prospect Plan Commission Friday night demanded that developers of the Colony project reduce their density from 704 apartments to 659 apartments.

The commission also said it would approve the project only if at least 252 more parking spaces were provided and if the commercial area were held to the 20 per cent allowable under village ordinances.

If the developer, Lincoln Property Co., refuses to meet these requirements, the plan commission's tentative approval of the multi-use project will be voided. The commission also asked the developer, Lincoln Property Co., to submit a new site plan incorporating the requested changes.

Plans for the development, to be located at the northwest corner of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, call for a 258-room hotel, a 450-seat movie theater, a retail center and an office-finance center. The property is being considered for annexation by the village.

NO REPRESENTATIVE of the developer was present at the meeting.

Tentative approval of the project came on a 7-1 vote on a report by Commissioner Robert McBride. That report outlined what the current village ordinances would permit in the development.

According to McBride's report, 659 units would meet the village's 23.6 units per acre ordinance limit. McBride strongly urged that the developer not be allowed to compute dedicated portions of Oakton Street and Elmhurst Street in his density figures. The other commissioners agreed that only the net acreage should be used.

The report also said the commercial use of the property should be kept to the allowable 20 per cent, rather than the 30 per cent the developer was seeking. The additional 252 parking spaces would be needed in the commercial area and takes into account some extra parking in the residential area (if the 659-unit figure were used and the residential parking already planned were kept).

No reduction in open space would be tolerated either, under McBride's report.

IRONICALLY, McBride was the only commissioner to vote against acceptance of his report. He said no residential development should be built at the site because of the low overhead O'Hare Airport flight patterns.

A game where everyone loses

by STEVE FORSYTH

The people of Mount Prospect have a new game that is quite unique — everyone loses.

The game is called Huntington Commons, and all you need is a friend who will listen to your rums. There is no board, you do not pass go, and you do not get $200. Any number up to 50,000 can play.

The object of the game is to make residents of the apartment complex look like second-class citizens, so they get stares when they try to cash checks or do business in the village. One way to do this is to call them low-income apartment dwellers instead of moderate-income, and call them welfare-supported instead of federally-subsidized.

If this works, the people who live in the apartments lose, obviously. But I said everyone loses, and that is true.

The next step, once the apartments have a bad name, is that no one wants to live there at present rent rates. Management doesn't want to go broke, so they lower the rents and cut back on expenses. If this keeps up, soon there is no maintenance, and low-income people really will be the only tenants. So management loses.

BUT THE REST of Mount Prospect cannot build a wall around Huntington Commons, and if it deteriorates, so will the village. The high regard for Mount Prospect will slip, and like magic, everyone loses. Just like I said.

The point is, everyone doesn't have to lose. The residents of the apartments are not objectionable people. I met several of them in a meeting last week, and they want help from the community.

They want to be proud of where they live, and they are tired of remarks made about them. They are tired of having to produce several identification cards just to cash a check because they live in Huntington Commons. They are tired of their children being harassed because of the growing bad reputation of an apartment complex that hasn't even been open a year yet.

The residents agree with some remarks that have been made recently about the condition of the complex. They say it is dirty and run-down — but not because of the people who live there. They say they can't get the buildings cleaned and maintained on a regular basis.

THE RESIDENTS are as concerned about having a good complex as are the local homeowners, and they are in the process of preparing a petition asking for paving and other repairs to be done.

They do care, and they are upset with the stigma that has been attached to them. Most are not from inner city ghettos — probably none of them are. One family moved here from Buffalo Grove, another from elsewhere in Mount Prospect, others are from other nearby suburbs.

So they are not aliens from another planet. They come from the same backgrounds as most other Mount Prospect residents. They all have jobs, many in this area. Their furnishings are attractive, carpets are clean, and the children are healthy. And like any other apartment dweller, they are having disagreements with the manager.

Some of their complaints are justified. A small swamp with a chorus of bullfrogs adjoins one driveway. Locked "security doors" can be pulled open without the use of keys. Huge chuckholes jar the teeth of drivers and passengers. But the residents hope these problems can be remedied.

The answer is not to throw mud at the name of the development, but to do everything possible to keep it up to standards of Mount Prospect. In fact, the buildings themselves are more attractive than many in this area.

Huntington Commons does not have to continue to be a sore spot in the village unless you want it that way. And then everybody loses.

Mini-bike stolen

A blue mini-bike was stolen from the Allen Bartlett garage, 304 S. Lancaster St., Mount Prospect, between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Tuesday. Police said the garage was unlocked when the $150 mini-bike was taken.

Revenue collections from regional shopping centers

Bill urges shop center tax funds split

by MARILYN HEISER

A new bill to redistribute municipal sales tax revenue collected at regional shopping centers has been introduced in the Illinois House by Rep. Daniel M. Pierce, D-Highland Park.

Under Pierce's bill, the municipality in which the regional shopping center is located would retain 50 per cent of the one per cent municipal sales tax rebated. The remaining 50 per cent would be divided among all villages and cities within a six mile radius of the shopping center.

The new bill differs from one introduced by Rep. Giddy Dyer, R-Hinsdale, which was recently voted down in a House committee. Mrs. Dyer's bill would have distributed 80 per cent of the municipal sales tax on a statewide per capita basis. The municipality in which the tax was collected would retain 20 per cent of the revenue.

Most Northwest suburban mayors opposed Mrs. Dyer's bill and several, including Schaumburg Mayor Robert O. Atcher, Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert and Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland Meyer testified against the bill in the house committee.

TEICHERT SAID Wednesday he was equally opposed to Pierce's proposal. "All the reasons for opposing the Dyer bill would be just as valid. This also changes the ground rules now that everyone has planned and developed their community."

Reducing the area of redistribution and applying it only to regional shopping centers does not change the principle of state redistribution of local funds, he said. It is only a maneuver to make the bill more palatable to more communities, he added.

"Communities who didn't want commerce and industry, the traffic and other problems that go with it, would now reap the benefits," Teichert said. "I really don't think this bill will garner more support, as the principle is still wrong."

Pierce's bill would affect many of the Northwest suburbs because of their proximity to Schaumburg's Woodfield Mall and Mount Prospect's Randhurst.

IF THEY ARE within the six mile radius Pierce's bill specifies, the suburbs would share in the sales tax revenues which presently goes only to Schaumburg and Mount Prospect.

Pierce is specifically concerned with the Sears Roebuck plan to construct a major shopping center to County Line Road in Northbrook, adjacent to Deerfield and Highland Park. Traffic would increase in the neighboring suburbs and shoppers from the surrounding area would use the center, but only Northbrook would get sales tax revenue, Pierce said.

Co-sponsors of the bill are also concerned with other Lake County centers, such as New Century Town in Vernon Hills and Lakehurst Shopping Center in Waukegan.

Looking for summer job?

If you are a young person age 16 to 21 and are looking for a job, you should contact the Elk Grove Township office, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

The township youth committee will be interviewing job applicants between 2 and 4 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays and 10 a.m. to noon on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Youths may also call the township office at 437-0300.

The youth committee has sent out about 1,500 letters to businesses and industries in the township asking if they have any jobs for young people. From the replies, the committee has built up a file of part-time and full-time jobs for youths.

The township is acting only as a referral agency, trying to match job seekers with employers. There is no charge for the township's service.

Employers who have jobs that a young person could do also may call the township office.

Midget jazz band keeps Lincoln School jumping

ing appropriately with "suburban Soul" as the students let out a slow "Ahhh! ..."

Later, when the concert is over and Metzler has time to talk, he points out it takes more than just wanting to play in a jazz band to be a member of one.

"It just doesn't happen by going out and buying an instrument and sitting down in this band and then ZAP!" he said. "There's no magic potion that exists. You've got to give something of yourself."

Metzler is quick to mention, however, this band works hard. Started in October as the outgrowth of a Dist. 57 summer school program and supported by interested parents, the students really put themselves into it. By February, when they went to the Oak Lawn Jazz Festival, their hard work paid off earning them a superior rating and second place of 10 junior high bands competing.

WHY DOES a kid decide to join a jazz band, Metzler is asked.

"The need to play their music," he answers. "A lot of kids can't express in words what they feel, and the music gives them a chance to express it."

Getting into the band depends on a lot of things, he says — what kind of tone a student has, personality, and whether they're willing to work. It is the more gregarious kids who usually have the best success in such a band, he explains. "The outgoing young folks have a tendency to lay right into it. But they have to be mature and be able to handle it," he adds.

According to Metzler, most of the students in this band will continue their involvement with jazz at least through college. Whether they'll go further is hard to predict, he says. But whether they continue or not, it's going to be hard for them to forget that jazz.

Romance Restaurant asks liquor license

A wine and beer liquor license for Romance Restaurant and Pizzeria will be considered May 1 by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

Owners of the restaurant, at 818A N. River Rd., originally asked for the license in November, 1971. Because of the recent annexation of the area, the restaurant property had to be rezoned first.

Since that time, additional parking has been provided and the restaurant has passed health and fire safety inspections. According to Trustee Donald B. Furst, the restaurant has stabilized its carry-out business to about 35 per cent of its total sales.

The village board voted 3-1 to concur with the finance committee recommendation that a license be created. Trustees George Anderson and Kenneth Scholten voted with Furst; Trustee Daniel Ahern cast the negative vote. Patrick Link and Bud Richardson were absent.

$700 goods stolen

at G. C. Murphy store

Almost $700 worth of merchandise was taken Wednesday night from the G. C. Murphy store, 1127 Mount Prospect Plaza. It was the second burglary in four days at the store.

After two planks were used to loosen a rear window, the burglars took a cassette recorder, a nine-band radio, three butane cigarette lighters, four rolls of film, camera, six cartons of cigarettes, 36 men's gold wedding rings, 15 electric watches and another watch. Wednesday's loss was set at $685.31.

The night of April 15, two stereo sets valued at $187 were taken from the store. Again, entry was through the garden shop. A door was forced open that time.

Wednesday rape suspect not connected with area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1½ years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

But Ekblad said Madsen is not the same person who has been assaulting women in the area.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Lt. Paul Vanick of the Cook County Sheriff's Police said the physical descriptions make him believe that there is no link between Madsen and the series of rapes in this area.

Police reports describe the area rapist as white, 25 to 30 years old, between 5 feet 8 and 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighing from 150 to 175 pounds. The man has worn either a ski mask or nylon stocking to conceal his face.

Madsen, 30, is described as white, 5 feet 10 inches tall, 165 pounds with blondish hair. Madsen reportedly would pose as a salesman of religious articles and approach women working alone in churches, police said. In each case the rapes took place in the church, police said.

Madsen, who was arrested Wednesday near the Evangelical Free Church, 1331 N. Belmont, Arlington Heights, has been transferred to Cook County jail.

Road upgrading for intersection still uncertain

by KURT BAER

Future road improvements at the congested Arlington Heights Road-Palatine Road intersection apparently are still uncertain.

Henry Yamanaka, an official with the state highway department, said Friday the state has not decided whether an underpass or an overpass should be constructed at the intersection, and will probably present proposals for both.

He said he hoped plans for the intersection could be the subject of a public hearing sometime before the end of the year, but added that right now, no hearing dates have been set.

"The timing depends partially on our getting caught up with environmental impact studies. A study has to be completed before any public hearing," Yamanaka said.

IMPROVEMENT OF the heavily-traversed intersection is one recommendation in a forthcoming study of Arlington Heights Road being prepared by the Arlington Heights planning department.

Over the years both an underpass and an overpass have been talked of for Palatine Road from Rand Road to Arlington Heights Road.

Yamanaka said the federal government, which would fund the major part of any improvement project, has indicated a preference for an overpass. "Financially, the government has some reservations about an underpass," he said.

Though both projects would cost several million dollars, an overpass would be less expensive to build than an underpass. An underpass would have additional flooding problems associated with the area. Drainage conditions would probably force the installation of pumps in the underpass to keep it from flooding during heavy storms.

For these reasons, some members of the village master plan committee, who last week reviewed the future land use portion of the Arlington Heights Road study, say an underpass at the intersection may be an unrealistic expectation.

VILLAGE PLANNER Joe Kesler, however, says an overpass could seriously jeopardize prospects for a desirable commercial development on the vacant land south of Palatine Road at Rand.

"An overpass would depreciate this property tremendously," Kesler told the master plan committee.

One committee member, Trustee Frank Palmatier, said the most realistic possibility for improving the intersection may be to redesign it for grade-level traffic signals.

"The state doesn't want to put any money into traffic signals the way the intersection is now," he said.

The wide median between the east and west bound lanes of Palatine Road, and the nearness of the Arlington Heights Road intersection to the Palatine-Rand roads intersection make signalization of the present intersection a complex and expensive proposition.

IT WOULD TAKE a number of traffic signals to do the job right and they would have to be timed with the Rand Road signals, Palmatier said.

There is certain to be more discussion about what to do with the Palatine-Arlington Heights roads intersection. Eventually the state may schedule public hearings on underpass and overpass proposals or perhaps redesign the crossing for traffic signals.

Before this, a public hearing on the north Arlington Heights Road plan will be held May 3, and residents will have an opportunity to voice their opinions on how to solve the intersection problem.

But at this point, the only thing certain about the intersection is that long lines of cars and short-tempered drivers will continue to squeeze their way past one another.

IT JUST TAKES a couple of warm days to bring out the sidewalk lemonade stands. Patti Hoffman and Meg Heinz get a glass of juice from Patti Bruder, Martha Allman and Laura Perez. These girls set up business on Campbell Street Friday.

Rape suspect not linked to area cases

Robert R. Madsen of Rockford, who has been charged with the rape of five women during the last 1½ years and the attempted rape of a Buffalo Grove woman Wednesday, is believed not to be connected with the series of rapes in the area during the past year, suburban police said.

Madsen has been identified Thursday by rape victims from West Dundee, Fox Lake, Belvidere, Carpentersville and Racine, Wis., said Arlington Heights Police Lt. George Ekblad.

Buffalo Grove Police Chief Harry Walsh Jr. said the woman who was raped in Buffalo Grove two weeks ago was at a lineup for Madsen in Arlington Heights. "She looked right at him and said he wasn't the man," said Walsh.

Park board to meet at Hasbrook Park

The Arlington Heights Park Board will meet with residents from the Hasbrook area at 7:30 p.m. tonight at Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude Ave.

The meeting will air residents' feelings about proposed storm water retention projects at the park, and other matters concerning park district programs.

Boys find the home they never knew at the MRB Ranch

by JOANN VAN WYE

The MRB Ranch in Palatine Township has all the characteristics of a stately horse farm you would expect to find in the bluegrass regions of Kentucky.

A large, white-pillared house of pre-Civil War vintage sits back off the road at 1502 W. Northwest Hwy. looking over the ranch's 18 sprawling acres of wooded land. The size of the ranch seems even more massive because of its location adjacent to the Deer Grove Forest Preserve.

Horse stables, riding corrals, a swimming pool, bathhouse, barbecue pit and numerous brick buildings are visible from inside the house. Tennis courts, basketball courts and other hard-surface areas will be installed this spring.

But the MRB Ranch is not just an ordinary residence. Named after its owner, Milroy R. Blowitz, the ranch is home to many boys who are wards of the state.

OFFICIALS THERE refer to it as "a residential facility for boys with problems in home adjustment." It has been licensed by the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Services as a child-care facility since August.

Most of the boys living on the ranch have been taken away from their home by the court because their parents would not or could not care for them. Some have been in trouble with the law, others abandoned by their parents and others had problems with the school they attended. But most of the boys' problems lie within themselves and just need time to be worked out.

They are a diverse group whose one similarity is that they have all passed the ranch's admission criteria of being a male adolescent between 12 and 17 years old, capable of living in an open setting and capable of attending public school.

Most come to this sprawling estate via a foster home or larger institution. The consensus of opinion about the ranch was summed up by one of the boys who said, "It is a lot better (than other institutions). Here you don't have to worry about staff kicking in your rear end. It's more like home, or at least like home should be."

For some, the ranch is a last chance. For others it is a last stop before they return home but for many it is all they have.

UNLIKE THE stereotype of a child-care institution, the MRB Ranch is open, unstructured and noninstitutional. The boys are integrated into the community, attending public schools and getting into town frequently, and are free to roam.

The boys share their home with 13 horses, two dogs and two hamsters they bought themselves and are trying to

Did MRB forerunner lead to Jayne death?

The MRB Ranch, a wooded estate at Dundee Road and Northwest Highway, is a home for 30 boys who are wards of the State of Illinois. They attend local schools and are a part of our Northwest suburban community.

But before the MRB Ranch emerged, a controversial project was planned there. It was to be called Ridgeway Farm, where emotionally disturbed youth, referred from Ridgeway Hospital, Chicago, would be placed.

The project drew the ire of local municipalities and many area residents, including Inverness horseman George Jayne. Jayne was gunned down in his home Oct. 28, 1970. The attorney for the alleged triggerman indicated last week the Ridgeway Farm project may have led to the killing — not the long-standing rivalry between George and his brother Silas.

This Morning In Brief

The nation

A 24-year-old gunman, who killed five persons and wounded three others during a series of robberies yesterday afternoon, was critically wounded during an exchange of gunfire with Los Angeles police who finally captured him, authorities said. William Bonner reportedly held up three liquor stores and a gas station and then opened fire on a family at their residence.

The federal investigation into the Watergate case appeared to be focusing on efforts to hide involvement of some of President Nixon's closest advisers, particularly White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman. Meanwhile, Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass., said it is "inconceivable" President Nixon did not have prior knowledge of plans to bug the Watergate offices of the Democratic National Committee.

Temporarily putting aside his Watergate worries, President Nixon joined his family and about 500 neighbors for Easter services and heard a sermon on repentance.

New-found geysers, spouting potentially explosive gases, heightened the danger to inhabitants of the crater-infested northern Michigan community of Williamsburg.

Workers struggled against floodwaters and unfavorable winds to protect a hospital and 150 homes from being inundated in East Central Louisiana. The flood threat to coastal areas subsided as tides fell.

The suspected "Nob Hill Rapist" of

San Francisco, who led police on a 500-mile kidnap and bullet punctuated chase through Northern California, was captured Sunday when he was jumped by an unarmed man, police said.

Leaking gas which accumulated under the floor of a low-income apartment house near the Mexican border, exploded Easter morning, demolishing the building and killing a number of inhabitants. Authorities said nine persons were killed and 23 injured near El Paso, Tex.

The world

A captured Al Fatah guerrilla told newsmen he had infiltrated Israel with orders to "kill whatever there was to kill" in a suicide raid on the bus depot in a resort city near the Sea of Galilee. Meanwhile, Egypt announced plans to open "popular resistance training" camps throughout the nation as Arab military chiefs of staffs concluded a two-day meeting to coordinate strategy against Israel.

Thousands of Roman Catholics marched behind the blue banners of the outlawed Irish Republican Army in observance of the 57th anniversary of the 1916 Easter uprising that eventually resulted in independence for the Irish Republic.

Two North Vietnamese army divisions have withdrawn from their positions in South Vietnam and returned home across the Demilitarized Zone separating the two countries.

Rep. Macdonald protests Nike housing plans

State Rep. Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, has joined a growing list of public officials protesting plans to build 140 Naval housing units at the Arlington Heights Nike Base.

"It is inconceivable that this project should be approved after Sen. Percy and other Washington officials have indicated support of local interest in reserving the Nike Base as a flood control basin and recreational area," Mrs. Macdonald said.

"If the housing is intended to serve Glenview Naval Air Station, then the units would be more appropriately and conveniently placed in that area where government land is also available."

Earlier this month Congress appropriated funds for 140 Naval housing units at the Nike base, located at Wilke and Central roads in Arlington Heights. Construction of the units is scheduled to begin this fall.

Mrs. Macdonald wired her opposition to Senators Percy, Adlai Stevenson and Congressmen Philip Crane and Samuel Young.

Meetings this week

Monday, April 23

The village board will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

The park board will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Hasbrook Park, 333 W. Maude Ave.

The zoning board of appeals will meet at 8 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

mate. As soon as a boy is admitted, he is given a horse and it is his responsibility to care for it. Some refer to their horses as "the old mules" while others spend most of their free time in the stables caring for their horse and often purchase blankets and other things for their horse from money they have earned.

The boys live in two adjacent brick cottages set back from the colonial house that serves as an office for the ranch and a residence for the Blowitz family. The younger boys live in one cottage with the older boys sharing an identical cottage next door. Each building has a living room and recreation area on the main floor. Upstairs there is a kitchen and three bedrooms.

A housemother is on duty in each cottage 24 hours a day. The cottages are set up as self-governing units. Meetings are held once a week with all the boys of the cottage, the housemother and the ranch's director, Miss Carol Jacobson. At this time problems and complaints are ironed out.

"THE HOUSE meetings really help. They get people calmed down and get the gripes out. Considering the different personalities we get along most of the time but sometimes there are blow-ups," said one of the older boys.

"We try to help them respect each other's differences. We teach them if they can't care about each other they have nothing," said Miss Jacobson.

The limited knowledge the boys have about each other's past is surprising, but they seem to accept the fact it isn't important why they are on the ranch but that they are there and must work together.

clothing and yet another a crewcut.

The differences are more than physical. One will talk your ear off about religion, another will be interested in cars and another talks of plans of going to trade school and setting up his own business. They are no different than their classmates in Dist. 15 and Dist. 211 schools.

SINCE THE RANCH opened in August, hundreds of forms on possible admissions have been received. Everytime there is an opening Miss Jacobson goes through the forms and tries to select the boy she feels could benefit most from the farm.

"When you take a kid you hope you have what they need. You work with them and try to help them but you never really know," said Miss Jacobson. She steers away from admitting blacks because she feels they will have a difficult time adjusting in the school and community life.

In some cases after a preplacement visit to the ranch, a possible admission is discussed with the boys already there. "It's not up to the kids (who gets admitted) but I get a feeling by talking to them," she said.

The housemothers are not maids and the boys are expected to take an active part in the work. Each boy is responsible for his own bedroom and chores are rotated each week. The boys also have a voice in planning menus.

The older boys are expected to do some of the cooking and their own laundry. Miss Jacobson explained some of the boys will remain at the facility until they are 18 and no longer wards of the state. Since they will not be returning home it is important they learn to take care of themselves.

"The philosophy in too many institutions is to do too much for the kids. We're not always understanding here just like the outside world isn't always understanding," she continued. "We help them learn to deal with life but we don't plan out their life for them."

THERE ARE FEW rules on the ranch. The boys earn privileges through their behavior on the ranch and in school. Each month they receive a rating which determines how many privileges and responsibilities they will have for the following month. A fourth rating is the highest and means the boy gets longer vacations at home, can go out with friends one night a week and in general has more privileges and responsibilities.

"If you don't let the kids go home, they don't realize their family for what it is," said Miss Jacobson, explaining that some kids start glamorizing their home life when they are away from it for long periods.

Spending money is earned by the boys rather than doled out. The boys frequently contract with Blowitz to do work around the ranch or in the cottages. The boys are free to and even encouraged to take part in school activities but if they cost money they must pay their own way.

Officials say they are encouraged by the ranch's success in the short period it has been open. Already there is talk of someday expanding the facilities to accommodate a maximum of 30 boys.

"WE'VE HELD KIDS no other institution has been able to," said Miss Jacobson. Only one boy has run away from the ranch, which has no fence, locked doors or gates, and he returned voluntarily within 24 hours.

Many things contribute to the success of this home for troubled boys, according to Miss Jacobson.

She says it's a place where the kids can grow and have the freedom to make mistakes. And where adults really care for the boys and their problems.

And even the horses, which are the first possessions some of these youth have ever had to call their own.

Adventures of your Garbage

"Spring Clean-Up" Starts Next Week

During a week listed below, we will make free pick-up of your old furniture and appliances, if placed at your curb, from all customers within the village limits of Arlington Heights. This service will be spread out over 4 weeks, so that your particular week will depend on your location in town, as follows:

Northwest section - Week of April 30

Northeast section - Week of May 7

Southeast section - Week of May 14

Southwest section - Week of May 21

Dividing lines for the above sections are Northwest Highway and Arlington Heights Road

On each day during those weeks, after finishing their normal garbage collection, our men will go back into the area to pick up "Clean-Up" trash. They may not get your trash on your normal service day. But if not, they'll get it before the week is over. It's a big job - please be tolerant.
